Professional Development Certificate

2015 ASA Annual Meeting, Chicago, IL

ASA Student Forum is pleased to offer a Professional Development Certificate (PDC) for its members, based on attendance (proof by signature of the session organizer/leader/presider) at SIX (6) sessions, meetings, or workshops. Students must attend SIX (6) total sessions. In an effort to be more flexible with those participating, students can choose to attend SIX (6), FIVE (5), OR FOUR (4) from the list provided here. If you attend FOUR (4) or FIVE (5) from the list you MUST include a session you are presenting in at ASA and/or a session you are presenting in at a meeting held in conjunction to ASA. An ASA pre-conference workshop is also an eligible session.

The Student Forum Advisory Board (SFAB) worked closely with the ASA Executive Office to provide a list of sessions that fall under the theme of professional development for sociology students. While the list is obviously not exhaustive of ALL of the possibilities in the Annual Meeting program, great effort was made to be representative both content-wise and time slot-wise. After obtaining all SIX (6) signatures, please drop off the completed form at the ASA Information Desk or mail it after the Annual Meeting to: Beth Floyd, ASA Student Affairs Program Assistant, 1430 K Street NW #600, Washington, DC 20005. Or scan and email the form to bfloyd@asanet.org.

Once verified by SFAB, please note that a PDF of the Student Forum Professional Development Certificate will be sent to you by email.

Opening Plenary Session. Abortion in America: A Discussion with the Only Doctor Providing Abortions in Mississippi and Three Sociologists

Willie Parker M.D., OB-GYN; S. Philip Morgan, University of North Carolina; Zaliya Luna, University of California-Santa Barbara; and Sarah K. Cowan, New York University

Abortion was enshrined as a legal right with the Supreme Court's 1973 decision. Yet legislatures pass and courts permit some restrictions, large geographical areas have no abortion providers, and political conflict rages. After a brief introduction to relevant trends by demographer Phil Morgan, the featured speaker will be Dr. Willie Parker, the only doctor providing abortions in Mississippi. He will discuss the struggles entailed in doing this work, and what he has learned about the lives of the women that seek abortions. Following his talk, two sociologists will provide brief accounts of their relevant research. Zakiya Luna will discuss the reproductive justice movement, which engages in cross-movement organizing to achieve a world where people have access to abortion as well as support for having children and parenting with dignity. Sarah K. Cowan will highlight how abortions are discussed—or kept secret—in social networks, and how this can affect political opinion. Audience members will then join in a discussion with Dr. Parker and the panelists.

August 22, 12:30 - 2:10 PM

Plenary Session. The Politics of Same-Sex Marriage: Public Opinion and the Courts

Gregory B. Lewis, Georgia State University; Brian Powell, Indiana University; Verta Taylor, University of California-Santa Barbara; and Michael C. Dorf, Cornell University

For better or worse, same-sex marriage has dominated discussions of gay rights in recent years. Public opinion has shifted in a direction favorable to marriage equality, significant social movement resources have focused on preventing or attaining the right of same-sex couples to marry, and an avalanche of court decisions have come down. Panelists will consider public opinion shifts, which social groups favor and oppose same-sex marriage, how social movements have organized and networked for and against same-sex marriage, and the import of recent court decisions.

August 22, 8:00 - 9:30 PM

Plenary Session. Modern Romance: Dating, Mating, and Marriage

Aziz Ansari, Actor and Comedian; Christian rudder, OK Cupid; Helen Fisher, State University of New Jersey- Rutgers; and Eli Finkle, Northwestern University

When American sociologists initially studied modern romance about a century ago, they discovered that most people were fiercely parochial. Americans generally dated and mated within their hometowns, and in big cities they often married someone who lived within a few blocks. This session explores the transformation of modern romance over the past century, paying particular attention to recent changes related to the Internet, globalization, the rising status of women, the acceptance of non-conventional sexual relationships, and the search for a soul mate. The panelists, who come from inside and outside the academy, will assess how singles manage the expanded options available to them today, and examine emerging attitudes about and experiences in committed relationships and marriages.

August 23, 4:30- 6:10 PM

Awards Ceremony and Presidential Address

ASA President Paula England, New York University

The Presidential Plenary featuring the formal address of ASA President Paula England will be held on Sunday, August 23, at 4:30p.m. The Awards Ceremony, conferring the 2015 major awards, will open this session. All registrants are invited to attend this plenary session and the Honorary Reception afterwards to honor President Paula England and the award recipients.

August 24, 12:30 - 2:10 PM

Plenary Session. The Rise of Nonmarital Births

Larry Wu, New York University; Andrew Cherlin, Johns Hopkins University; and Marcia Carlson, University of Wisconsin-Madison

An increasing proportion of American women and men have their first child, and sometimes subsequent children, outside of marriage. The upward trend began more than a half century ago, and is more pronounced among those with who are less privileged. For example, there is almost no such trend among white college graduates. Nonmarital births are typically to couples in relationships or cohabiting unions that break up within a few years, leading to substantial complexity and instability in family patterns. Panelists will consider the trends, social forces encouraging nonmarital births, and their consequences for adults and children.

August 24, 8:00- 9:30 PM

Plenary Session. Internet Dating

Elizabeth Bruch, University of Michigan; Jennifer Lundquist, University of Massachusetts-Amherst; and Michael Rosenfeld, Stanford University

Using internet dating sites to find partners is now completely mainstream. Panelists will consider the sociology of how this system works. Two panelists will use their access to data from internet dating sites revealing what groups are on the site and who contacts and responds to whom. One panelist will show how race affects who is contacted or responded to among those seeking same-sex or other-sex partners. Another panelist will use new methods to uncover what people are looking for in partners, and how market constraints shape people's search and contact strategies. Another panelist will report on a survey ascertaining which groups are more likely to have used the internet to find partners, and will put internet dating into a broader historical perspective focusing on macrosocial trends affecting mate choice and family formation.
