THE SYDNEY S. SPIVACK PROGRAM IN APPLIED SOCIAL RESEARCH AND SOCIAL POLICY

Community Action Research Initiative (CARI)

Application Deadline is FEBRUARY 1

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION: To encourage sociologists to undertake community action projects that bring social science knowledge, methods, and expertise to bear in addressing community-identified issues and concerns. Grant applications are encouraged from sociologists seeking to work with community organizations, local public interest groups, or community action projects. Funding will run for the duration of the project, whatever the time span might be.

ELIGIBILITY: Applications are encouraged from sociologists in academic settings, research institutions, private and non-profit organizations, and government. Advanced graduate students are eligible to apply, but funding cannot be used to support dissertation research. While ASA membership is not a criterion for applying or being selected for this grant, if and when a grant award is made, the recipient must be a current ASA member. ASA membership involves acceptance of and adherence to the ASA Code of Ethics, which is critical to the implementation of the grant project. Grantees must also provide documentation of pertinent IRB approval for the funded project.

PROJECT IDEAS: Sociologists are expected to work in relevant community organizations. The proposed work can include activities such as needs assessments, empirical research relevant to community activities or action planning, the design and/or implementation of evaluation studies, or analytic review of the social science literature related to a policy issue or problem. Innovative placements and plans are encouraged. CARI grantees may also be called upon by ASA to participate in press briefings, testimony, or other presentations related to the subject area of the fellowship. Standard research projects, however interesting, are not appropriate for this funding. The goal of this program is to link sociologists with community action groups and to use sociological research to advance the goals of those groups.

AWARDS: Grants are likely to range from $1,000-$3,000 to cover direct costs associated with the project; these funds cannot be used as a salary stipend (including course release). Approximately four to eight awards are made each year.

APPLICATION PROCESS: Application packets should include:

- Your full name, institution, complete address, home phone number, work phone number, email address, and web site (if one exists).
- A description of the intended project, including the sociological relevance to a policy issue, the goals of the project and a description of how the goals will be carried out.
