Professional Development Certificate

2013 ASA Annual Meeting, New York, NY

ASA Student Forum is pleased to offer a Professional Development Certificate (PDC) for its members, based on attendance (proof by signature of the session organizer/leader/presider) at SEVEN (7) sessions, meetings, or workshops. Students must attend SEVEN (7) total sessions. In an effort to be more flexible with those participating, students can choose to attend SEVEN (7), SIX (6), OR FIVE (5) from the list provided here. If you attend FIVE (5) or SIX (6) from the list you MUST include a session you are presenting in at ASA and/or a session you are presenting in at a meeting held in conjunction to ASA. An ASA pre-conference workshop is also an eligible session.

The Student Forum Advisory Board (SFAB) worked closely with the ASA Executive Office to provide a list of sessions that fall under the theme of professional development for sociology students. While the list is obviously not exhaustive of ALL of the possibilities in the Annual Meeting program, great effort was made to be representative both content-wise and time slot-wise. After obtaining all SEVEN (7) signatures, please drop off the completed form at the ASA Information Desk or mail it after the Annual Meeting to: Beth Floyd, ASA Student Affairs Program Assistant, 1430 K Street NW #600, Washington, DC 20005. Or scan and email the form to bfloyd@asanet.org.

Once verified by SFAB, please note that a PDF of the Student Forum Professional Development Certificate will be sent to you by email.

August 9, 7:00 - 9:00 PM - Hilton New York Midtown, Third Floor - Grand Ballroom, Third Floor

Opening Plenary Session. Inequality and Contemporary Social Protest with Cecilia L. Ridgeway, Stanford University; Barbara Ehrenreich; Theda Skocpol, Harvard University; Douglas McAdams, Stanford University

In recent years, growing inequality in the U. S. has come head-to-head with the worst financial crisis since the Great Depression. Not surprisingly, the resulting social tensions have sparked popular social protests from the left as well as the right. In this session, prominent political observers of these events discuss the social forces behind them. A long time observer of inequality in America and an acute analyst of the power of collective action, Barbara Ehrenreich is the author of such well known books Bait and Switch and Nickel and Dimed. Theda Skocpol is a distinguished political sociologist and scholar of social change and the author, most recently, of The Tea Party and the Remaking of Republican Conservatism. Adding his expertise to the discussion is political sociologist, Douglas McAdam, author of such works as Freedom Summer, Dynamics of Contention, and Putting Movements in Their Place: Explaining Opposition to Energy Projects in the U.S., 2000-2005.

August 10, 12:30 - 2:10 PM - Hilton New York Midtown, Third Floor Promenade, Third Floor

Plenary Session: Micro Processes as Mechanisms of Inequality with Cecilia L. Ridgeway, Stanford University; Lawrence D. Bobo, Harvard University; Shelley J. Correll, Stanford University; Annette Lareau, University of Pennsylvania; Jane D. McLeod, Indiana University

Processes at multiple levels of analysis typically work together to support or undermine durable patterns of inequality between individuals and between social groups. Our task is to locate the key junctures among these multilevel processes that provide the levers by which different sorts of inequalities among people and groups are systematically made or unmade in the contemporary context. As part of this effort, this session focuses our attention on the less familiar micro level of the individual in social context. The first set of speakers address micro-level mechanisms that play significant roles in creating, maintaining, and/or changing racial, gender, and class based inequality. A final speaker looks across the micro-mechanisms that operate in these different types of inequalities to offer a more general analysis of the nature and significance of micro processes in the multilevel production, reproduction, and change of contemporary patterns of inequality.

August 11, 4:30 - 6:10 PM - Hilton New York Midtown, Third Floor - Grand Ballroom, Third Floor

Awards Ceremony & Presidential Address

The Presidential Plenary features the formal address of ASA President Cecilia L. Ridgeway. The ASA Awards Ceremony, conferring the 2013 major ASA awards will open this session. All registrants are invited to attend this plenary session and the Honorary Reception afterwards to honor President Cecilia L. Ridgeway and the award recipients.

August 12, 12:30 - 2:10 PM - Hilton New York Midtown, Trianon Ballroom, Third Floor

Plenary Session. How is Inequality in the United States Changes with Cecilia L. Ridgeway, Stanford University; David B. Grusky, Stanford University; Paula England, New York University; Tomas R. Jimenez, Stanford University; Robert Mare, UCLA

The last few decades have witnessed increasing income inequality in the U.S. and substantial changes in the nature and patterns of gender, race, and class inequalities. What are the main features of these changes and what is driving them? What are the implications of such changes for the future? Major scholars in their fields address these questions separately for economic and class inequality, gender inequality, and racial inequality. The final distinguished speaker in the session asks whether a new narrative of change and stability should be developed. Are there common patterns or themes in the changes across these different types of contemporary inequality? If so, what is the best way to understand these patterns of change?

ASA Bookstore

While visiting the ASA Annual Meeting, be sure to stop by the ASA Bookstore located in the Exhibit Hall in the New York Hilton Midtown. Check out new items this year, including the 2013 Guide to Graduate Departments, Publishing Options, and merchandise including ASA umbrellas, "Keep Calm and Do Sociology" t-shirts and buttons, and sociology swag bracelets. Don't miss out on old favorites, such as the ASA Style Guide, the Sociologist's Book of Cartoons, ASA travel mugs, EnviroSax® reusable bags, PhD and SOC decals, logo pins, messenger bags, career materials, and much more. Visit the "Research Corner" for the latest in sociological research from the ASA. Be sure to stop by daily for our deeply discounted specials on select items.

Not to be missed is a special item we are offering in collaboration with a number of friends of the late Carla B. Howery (former ASA Deputy Executive Officer), who recently published Carla's Cancer Chronicles, a collection of personal observations and musings Carla sent to family and friends during eight years of living with cancer. 50% of sales will be donated to the Teaching Enhancement Fund in Carla's memory.

The HUB

The HUB will be back in New York City! The HUB is offering laptops for general internet usage and will also offer seating and outlets for folks to use their own devices during a schedule break. Not to be missed are the technology modules that will be conducted in the HUB by ASA's webmaster Michelle Dupray. Check out the 2013 Annual Meeting mobile app for topics and schedule for all modules. The HUB will be open standard exhibit hall hours and modules should be under 20 minutes, and may be repeated.

We're excited to be offering a mobile event guide to attendees featuring general information, a program guide, and much more! Best of all, it's accessible from all devices with an internet browser: smartphones, tablets, laptops, and even desktops.

Things you can do and information you will find on our EventMobi App:

- Communicate with other meeting attendees through the app
