Job Description:

DIRECTOR, AFRICAN AMERICAN STUDIES PROGRAM

The University of Texas at El Paso (UTEP) seeks a dynamic scholar and leader for the position of Director of African American Studies. Founded more than twenty years ago, African American Studies at UTEP offers a rich mix of programming linking students, faculty, staff and members of the community in the El Paso border region and beyond. This context provides exciting opportunities to explore the intersections of African American and Latina/o experiences and draw on UTEP's important civil rights history.

The Director of African American Studies is a member of the UTEP College of Liberal Arts Chairs' Council and has responsibility for leadership of the academic program and research activities associated with African American Studies. The Director generally teaches one course each semester and could also participate in UTEP PhD programs related to their scholarly and research interests. With staff assistance, the Director serves as an advisor for the UTEP Black Student Union and a mentor for many students enrolled in programs throughout the University. The Director works with the UTEP Black Alumni Network (UBAN) and with community partners to build support for African American Studies and address relevant social issues at UTEP and in the El Paso community. The Director and staff, working in collaboration with UTEP students, affiliated faculty, campus organizations and other University and community officials, sponsor a variety of events and activities throughout the year, including Black History Month programs, and initiate new avenues of engagement and outreach.

Required Qualifications: Candidates should have a Ph.D. in African American Studies or a related academic disciplinary area, and possess a strong record of scholarship commensurate with an appointment as Professor or Associate Professor with Tenure in an appropriate UTEP academic department or program. Demonstrable experience in serving in an administrative role, engaging in community outreach, and initiating and expanding a new program is highly desirable.

About UTEP and El Paso: Located in one of the largest binational communities in the world, The University of Texas at El Paso is unique among research institutions. UTEP enrolls more than 23,000 students, close to 80% of whom are Latina/o and a majority of whom are the first in their families to attend a university. Ranked overall among the Top 10 universities in the nation by Washington Monthly and #1 for contributing to student social mobility, UTEP is dedicated to becoming the first national research university with a 21st century student demographic. The African American Studies program is housed in the College of Liberal Arts, which is the largest college at the University. In addition to playing a major role in the delivery of the University Core Curriculum to all UTEP students, the College of Liberal Arts serves approximately 7,000 students with majors in 13 departments and 10 programs, including Women's and Gender Studies, Religious Studies, Chicano Studies, Asian Studies and African American Studies.

Application procedures: To apply, applicants must submit a letter of interest, curriculum vita, a recent publication related to the field, and names of three references with their complete contact information. Review of applications will begin April 11, 2016, and continue until the position is filled. Application materials, in one PDF file, should be emailed to: Dr. Maryse Jayasuriya, Search Committee Chair, at mjayasuriya@utep.edu

Job Description:

CHAIR AT THE RANK OF PROFESSOR AND PROFESSOR
College of Global Public Health (CGPH)
NEW YORK UNIVERSITY

The College of Global Public Health (CGPH) at New York University is seeking applications for the positions of Chair at the Rank of Professor and Professor in the following departments:

- Department of Biostatistics
- Department of Epidemiology
- Department of Environmental Public Health Science
- Department of Global Health
- Department of Public Health Policy and Management (Professor position only)
- Department of Social and Behavioral Sciences

1. CHAIR AT THE RANK OF PROFESSOR POSITION - DESCRIPTION AND REQUIREMENTS:

CGPH seeks department chair candidates of exceptional leadership, innovation and vision to lead each department and build its academic and research enterprise here in NYC and throughout New York University's key Global Network University (GNU) campuses and study away sites (3 portal campuses and 11 global academic centers in Africa, South America, China, Australia, Europe and the Middle East).

Chairs will serve as key members of the management team and are responsible for assuring the quality and growth of programs in their academic spheres in collaboration with departmental faculty. The Chair will demonstrate a broad understanding in the key content areas of the department and will possess exemplary academic achievements, strategic leadership ability, strong interpersonal and communication skills, and an entrepreneurial spirit. The Chair will work with faculty and staff to develop department vision; nurture, recruit and develop high-performance faculty; maintain an atmosphere conducive to collaboration and transparency; and work other leaders of CGPH to realize the mission of the college.

Requirements: (1) doctoral degree or equivalent in one of the following areas: public health, social behavioral science, epidemiology, biostatistics, health policy, environmental health, or a related health or social science field; (2) active research program in one of the domains listed below, and 3) administrative experience in a university or other research setting.

2. PROFESSOR POSITION - DESCRIPTION AND REQUIREMENTS:

Candidates at the Professor level should have an active and strong and established record of scholarly achievement, high quality, peer-reviewed publications, and externally funded research. Candidates should also have demonstrated excellence in teaching in their area of expertise, and experience in mentorship and training of students at multiple levels. All appointments are for 9 months with both course release and the option of summer salary through externally funded research. Candidates are expected to engage in research and scholarship, teach and advise students, and take part in service-related activities.

Requirements: (1) doctoral degree or equivalent in one of the following areas: public health, social behavioral science, epidemiology, biostatistics, health policy, environmental health, or a related health or social science field; (2) active research program in one or more of the following domains listed below.

Domains of study related to these positions that are of interest to CGPH are as follows:

- Biostatistics: all areas of statistics including, but not limited to: multilevel modeling, structural equation modeling, geospatial analysis, network analysis, econometrics, sampling methods, longitudinal analysis, big data, causal inference or analysis of clinical trial data;
- Epidemiology: the application of wide ranging and cutting edge methods to substantive areas such as chronic and infectious disease, cancer, cardiovascular disease, and social epidemiology;
- Environmental Public Health Science: environmental epidemiology, gene-environment interactions, environmental toxicology, environmental and occupational health, global environmental health, health effects of climate change, and the built environment;
- Global Health: contemporary issues and opportunities including the development of high impact global health programs, health systems strengthening, equitable financing of global health programs, collaborative capacity-building, strategic assessment and evaluation of global health programs and behaviors, sustainable development goals, and health and human rights;
- Public Health Policy and Management: organizational behavior; strategy and strategic management; human resource management; politics and policy analysis; health economics, including cost-effectiveness; comparative health systems;

- Social and Behavioral Sciences: health promotion/disease prevention, aging and the life course, urban health, social and structural determinants of health, substance use and abuse, sexual and reproductive health, mental health and disparities among vulnerable or marginalized populations both domestically and globally.

CGPH offers academic degrees at the undergraduate, masters and doctoral levels. The undergraduate program includes 10 joint majors where students study public health with other relevant subjects. The CEPH-accredited Master of Public Health degree allows students to obtain an MPH in one of five concentrations. There is also a full-time, one-year Cross-Continental MPH program. Finally, students receive doctoral level training in one of three concentration areas. In addition to these programs of study, a fully online Advanced Certificate in Public Health has also recently been launched.

NYU has an extensive global network of teaching and research sites throughout the world, known collectively as the Global Network University (GNU). This unique arrangement allows CGPH faculty to establish training and degree programs as well as research efforts worldwide; offers faculty and students truly unique opportunities to engage in their research and study around the world; and informs public health practice both locally and globally through the exchange of knowledge.

The successful candidate will have a strong research agenda that contributes to one or more of the following broadly defined areas: 1) social psychology/microsociology; 2) health/mental health; and/or 3) gender, family, and sexuality. For more information on the department, go to <http://www.fau.edu/sociology/about.php>. The successful candidate will demonstrate the ability to become an excellent classroom professor. S/he will have the breadth of knowledge, background, and interests to develop a repertoire of diverse courses at the graduate (MA) and undergraduate (BA) level. Ability to contribute to teaching the required theory or methods courses in the BA program would be welcome but not required. Newly hired faculty will receive a startup package of funding to support research during their early years at FAU as well as a reduced teaching assignment during their first or second years. The successful candidate will demonstrate potential to seek external research funding, either individually or collaboratively. We will consider applications from those who are currently ABD but, in order to be appointed at the rank of assistant professor, all requirements for the PhD must be completed before employment begins in August 2016. The Department of Sociology is part of the Dorothy F. Schmidt College of Arts & Letters, a college that values interdisciplinary work and offers a range of certificates and degrees in areas such as Women, Gender & Sexuality Studies; Jewish Studies; Latin American Studies; and Peace Studies. We would welcome candidates who could contribute to undergraduate certificates as well as to the MA degree in Women, Gender & Sexuality Studies. Florida Atlantic University is a rapidly-growing multi-campus university that enrolls more than 30,000 students and is part of the State University System of Florida. It is the most ethnically and racially diverse public university in Florida. It has recently been designated as a Hispanic-serving institution. The institution is committed to a diverse faculty and welcomes applications from members of categories that are often under-represented in higher education. The Boca Raton campus is the main campus, located in an oceanfront city mid-way between West Palm Beach and Fort Lauderdale and about an hour's drive to Miami. All applications must be submitted online. Applicants must complete the Faculty, Administrative, Managerial & Professional Position Application through the Office of Human Resources. Go to <https://jobs.fau.edu> and apply for the currently posted position (#01003017). At least three letters of reference should be submitted directly to the department by email at sociology@fau.edu). Please be sure that your C.V. indicates from whom you will be requesting letters of reference. Additionally, a completed application requires the following submitted to the jobs.fau.edu website: a letter of application; a curriculum vita; copy of an official transcript which should be scanned into electronic format and uploaded. Note: degrees from outside the United States must be validated by an organization belonging to the National Association of Credential Evaluation Service (NACES), with an indication of the documents the evaluation was prepared from (official transcripts, diplomas, dissertation abstracts); be sure to submit this validation as part of the file containing a copy of your official transcript. Applicants should also submit a file that contains at least one example of research and a file that documents the extent and quality of teaching (e.g. a teaching portfolio) to the <https://jobs.fau.edu> site. Whether in the letter of application or in the teaching statement/portfolio, please discuss your teaching interests and the classes that you could teach or develop for our BA curriculum. We will begin reviewing applications immediately and will continue until the position is filled or closed. A background check will be required for the candidate selected for this position. Florida Atlantic University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action institution and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability status, protected veterans status or any other characteristic protected by law. Individuals with disabilities, requiring accommodation, please call 561-297-3057. 711. FAU is committed to the principles of engaged teaching, research and service, and reflects this commitment as a key Platform in its 2015-2025 Strategic Plan. All persons aspiring to achieve excellence in the practice of these principles are encouraged to apply.
