Interrogating Inequality: Linking Micro and Macro

No set of questions is more fundamental to sociology than those about inequality—what is it, why is it, how does it come about, and what can we do to change it? The theme for the 2013 meetings represents a promising new effort to address these core questions of our discipline. We will focus on coming to grips with how inequality, in all its multi-dimensional complexity, is produced in contemporary societies. To do so, we will focus in particular on linking micro and macro processes and perspectives on inequality.

The first part of this task is to collectively interrogate the diverse range of inequality processes that characterize contemporary societies. These include the familiar processes of socioeconomic inequality but also the cross-cutting inequalities based on significant group identities, such as gender, race, ethnicity, or sexuality. They include culturally and interpersonally based forms of inequality such as social status in addition to material forms of inequality based on positions of power and resources.

We need to ask, what are the mechanisms by which each of these types of inequality is produced? Are the mechanisms that produce one type inequality similar or different than those that create other types of inequality? Are the mechanisms that initially create a form of inequality different from those that sustain it? And, most importantly, how do these different types of inequality and ways of making inequality interpenetrate and affect one another to shape the social organization of society and life chances within it? Social status, for instance, is a form of social inequality based on shared cultural beliefs but that interpenetrates material systems of inequality and plays an important role in group identity based inequalities like gender and race. Through what processes does this work? How can we intervene in those processes? How do these processes interact to create the intersectionality that people experience in their everyday lives?

The search for mechanisms by which different types of inequality are “made” leads to my second and major goal for the program—to alert us to the need to look across micro and macro levels of analysis to find answers to essential questions about the mechanisms that create, that reproduce, or that potentially could change multiple forms of inequality. Processes at multiple levels of analysis typically work together to support or undermine durable patterns of inequality between individuals and between social groups. Institutional and organizational processes, for instance, shape, but also are shaped by key interpersonal encounters within them. These in turn jointly shape and are shaped by individual selves and choices. Our task at these meetings is to locate the key junctures among these multilevel processes that provide the levers by which different sorts of inequalities among people and groups are systematically made or unmade in the contemporary context. This is the essential first step towards changing those inequalities.

Annual Meeting Schedule

The official days of the 2013 ASA Annual Meeting are Saturday to Tuesday, August 10-13, 2013. Program sessions are scheduled on all four days of the meeting at the Hilton New York Midtown and Sheraton New York Hotel & Towers. There are also pre-meeting activities scheduled on Friday, August 9, and the meeting will officially begin with the Opening Plenary Session and Welcoming Reception that evening.

Most daytime program sessions are 1 hour and 40 minutes in length, followed by a 20-minute break. Exceptions are clearly noted in the detailed program schedule. The turnover schedule is as follows:

8:30 am-10:10 am
10:30 am-12:10 pm
12:30 pm-2:10 pm
2:30 pm-4:10 pm
4:30 pm-6:10 pm

The 6:30 pm evening time slot is normally allocated for Section receptions, member-sponsored activities, and meetings of other groups. All sessions end by 4:10 pm on the fourth day.

Please refer to the Program Schedule for a daily listing of all sessions, meetings, and social events. Session presiders and committee chairs are requested to see that sessions and meetings end on time to avoid conflicts with subsequent activities scheduled into the same room and to allow participants time to transit between facilities.

Ethical Conduct during the Annual Meeting:

It is unethical in any professional setting, including the Annual Meeting of the American Sociological Association, for sociologists to use the inequalities of power which characterize many professional relationships to obtain personal, sexual, economic or professional advantages.

Sexual, sexual identity, or racial/ethnic harassment is also unethical behavior under the American Sociological Association Code of Ethics.

Attendees are encouraged to immediately report instances of harassment during the Annual Meeting to the ASA Executive Officer at Hillsman@asanet.org or through the ASA Annual Meeting Office.

To read the American Sociological Association Code of Ethics in its entirety, visit www.ASanet.org and follow the link to "Ethics."

Program Highlights

Greetings from the ASA President

Dear Colleagues:

The 2013 ASA Annual Meeting promises to be an exciting occasion. The 2013 ASA annual meeting will explore a wide range of empirical, theoretical and normative issues connected to interrogating inequality: linking micro and macro. Sociologists want more than just to chart patterns of social inequality. How inequality is made and, therefore, could be potentially unmade? What are the mechanisms? Our 2013 theme focuses on ways to open up the traditional study of inequality in order to find better answers to these central questions.

The Opening Plenary will focus on "Inequality and Contemporary Protest." The idea is to begin our collective conversation with analyses of dramatic examples of the social tensions surrounding current inequality such as the Occupy and Tea Party movements. The second plenary, on August 10, "Micro Processes as Mechanisms of Inequality," is designed to highlight the importance of incorporating processes at the individual and interpersonal levels into our understandings of how to obdurate patterns of inequality are actually made. The panelists will look for key levers of inequality in regard to racial, gender, and class inequality and offer a general analysis of the nature and significance of micro processes in the production of inequality. The final plenary on August 12, "How Is Inequality in the United States Changing?" will take on the task of understanding exactly how broad patterns of inequality based on class, gender, and race are changing right now and discerning what is driving the changes. In what way are these changes related to one another? This session goes to the heart of our concerns to understand what contemporary inequality is now and what the implications are for the future of our society.

In addition to the plenary sessions, there will be 66 thematic panels organized around general topics linked to the agenda of interrogating inequality. These sessions are an opportunity to interrogate the nature of contemporary inequality itself in order to take into account its full, multi-dimensional complexity; find the mechanisms by which inequality is made, looking at the mutual and interconnected effects of cultural and structural processes rather than focus on one or the other; and looking across levels of analysis from the micro to the macro to discover ways that inequality processes interpenetrate one another to create and sustain patterns of social inequality.

The program also includes 6 presidential panels on the changing beliefs about inequality; cultural meanings of gender and inequality; immigration and the changing racial terrain; structural and cultural dimensions of interrogating inequality; and what economics, psychology, political science and sociology have to say about rising inequality in the United States.

This year's program also features an exciting roster of local arrangements representing the work of members from the New York metropolitan-area regional spotlight committee. The local arrangements subcommittee component, chaired by Phillip Kasinitz (City University of New York Graduate Center), have developed a timely, stimulating, and vibrant roster of regional spotlight sessions, tours and articles featured in ASA Footnotes for the Annual Meeting. All of this is taking place in New York City, one of the most populous agglomerations in the world.

I hope we can use this program to have a broad-ranging conversation about the nature of and mechanisms behind contemporary inequality. Whether you are attending to see your friends, renew your networks or see the city, welcome!

Registration Services

Continuing our commitment to a more environmentally sustainable meeting, we no longer print and mail confirmations to those who registered online. Please save the e-mailed confirmation as your record. Those who registered via fax and mail should have received a printed confirmation by mail. Attendees who sent materials after the deadline will find their paperwork held for registration processing at the ASA Situations counter in Americas Hall II of the Hilton New York Midtown.

Preregistration Pickup. Attendees who preregistered may pick up badges, program materials, and special tickets at the Preregistration counters in Americas Hall II of the Hilton New York Midtown. See registration service hours below.

On-Site Registration. Those who missed the July 10 preregistration deadline should go to the On-Site

Registration counter in Americas Hall II of the Hilton New York Midtown to register for the meeting.

Registration Services Hours:

Friday, August 9	1:30-7:00 pm
Saturday, August 10	8:00 am-5:30 pm

Name Badges. Your name badge is required for admission to all convention functions including entry to the ASA Exhibits, Employment Service, and Child Care Service areas. Attendance at events which require fee payment (e.g., Courses, Chair Conference, Director of Graduate Studies Conference, TEF/Just Desserts, MFP Benefit, Tours) is restricted to meeting registrants.

A general registrant may sign up for one guest pass ($50 onsite) to provide a courtesy badge for a spouse, partner, family member, or other guest. This guest pass provides only a name badge; the Final Program materials are not supplied. Information printed on a guest badge is restricted to the name of the guest; affiliations will not be printed. Individuals attending the meeting in a professional capacity are expected to register in one of the full registration categories listed above.

Refunds/Cancellations. All registration-related fees are non-refundable as of July 10, 2013. Unfortunately, under no circumstances can ASA issue refunds for no-shows. Program participant registration fees are non-refundable; cancellations will not be accepted nor refunds issued.

Tickets for Events and Services

Registrants already signed up for courses, tours, employment, child care services, and/or special events should have received tickets with their meeting packets. Those who did not make advance reservations may check at the ASA On-Site registration counters in the Americas Hall II of the Hilton New York Midtown for ticket availability.

Event tickets are non-refundable and cancellations cannot be accepted. You may, however, sell your ticket to someone else if you are unable to attend.

Membership Desk

Information on ASA membership and subscriptions will be provided at the Membership tables in the Americas Hall II of the Hilton New York Midtown. The Membership desk will be staffed by ASA Executive Office personnel and will be open during the same hours as ASA Registration. Attendees may learn about current membership benefits and join the Association, sign up for Section memberships, and subscribe to ASA journals. Display copies of current journals will be available for reference.

Section Information

Looking for information about the ASA Sections and sections-in-formation, or copies of 2013 section newsletters? Check the Section Display Tables near the ASA Membership desk in the Americas Hall II of the Hilton New York Midtown.

Every Section was invited to designate representatives to staff the display table during each meeting day and provide information on special section activities. Staff from the ASA Executive Office will be nearby at the Membership Desk to answer questions about joining any and all sections.

Staying Connected during the Annual Meeting!

With the 2013 meeting, we are using advances in technology to improve your meeting experience, increase the efficiency and effectiveness of information sharing, and facilitate networking in both physical and virtual spaces.

Annual Meeting Mobile App

The ASA Annual Meeting app includes:

- Full pocket program & Convention Bulletin
- Information on getting around New York City and the meeting sites
- Information on ASA service hours and locations
- Access to the live webcasts (and real-time transcriptions) of Plenary Sessions
- Interactive exhibit hall floorplan
- Real-time convention alerts via the Convention Bulletin

WiFi Access at the Meeting

Beyond the Annual Meeting app and streaming video with captions from the plenaries, there will be free basic bandwidth Wi-Fi available in all ASA meeting rooms, both at the Hilton New York Midtown and the Sheraton New York Hotel & Towers. (For those of you considering incorporating videos in your presentations, keep in mind that basic bandwidth is sufficient to allow web browsing and email, but won't support rapid transfer of large amounts of data such as Skype and FaceTime.)

The "Hub" and Social Media

Be sure to visit "The Hub," ASA's social media booth during the Annual Meeting. But what's The Hub? It is where the mini-training modules will be located—a ASA social networking space in the ASA Exhibit Hall. It will include the ASA bookstore, cyber café, and dedicated tech-training stations.

While technological innovations may be nothing new for some members, for those not born with a mobile device in our hands, they may be a bit daunting, ASA staff will conduct informal, 20-minute technology training modules offered to those who stop by The Hub. These mini-training opportunities will cover an array of popular topics, such as using social networking tools (e.g., Twitter and Facebook), seeing how educators and non-profits are using Google maps, and making your personal website 508 compliant in order to increase its accessibility.

ASA Bookstore

The ASA Bookstore features works published by the Association. Located in the Americas Hall I of the Hilton New York Midtown, the Bookstore will be staffed by ASA Executive Office personnel and open throughout the four days of the Annual Meeting during the same hours as ASA Exhibits (see page 44).

All attendees are welcome to browse through this area filled with recent journal issues, teaching resources and syllabi sets, career publications, sociological practice materials, directories, and reference volumes. The online ASA Bookstore will be available at a kiosk located in the Bookstore to complete online orders for those who'd rather not purchase and carry materials home. Items purchased through the online ASA Bookstore will be shipped after the Annual Meeting.

Exhibits

The ASA Exhibits are located in the Americas Hall I of the Hilton New York Midtown. Exhibits will be open to meeting registrants on all four days of the meeting.

ASA Exhibit Hours:

Saturday, August 10	2:00 -6:00 pm
Sunday, August 11	9:00 am-4:00 pm
Monday, August 12	9:00 am-5:00 pm
Tuesday, August 13	9:00 am-1:00 pm

The location of the Exhibits offers excellent accessibility to meeting attendees, due to its close proximity to poster sessions, the Hub and the ASA Bookstore. Always one of the most popular activities at the Annual Meeting, Exhibits offer variety, convenience, and an opportunity to discover current trends in sociological publishing, information processing, and services.

Meeting attendees are encouraged to schedule several visits to the Exhibit area so that ample time can be given to exploring the many offerings. Browse through the latest sociological publications, explore current computer software, chat with representatives of statistical resources and informational literature, and meet the editor of your next publication!

See the Directory of Exhibitors in this Program for the names and booth numbers of all exhibitors. Don't forget to look through the Program for special ads too.

All persons wishing access to ASA Exhibits must be paid registrants for the Annual Meeting; badges are required for entrance into this area.

Employment Service

The annual ASA Employment Service assists sociologists and prospective employers by providing convenient opportunities for employers and job seekers to meet in a neutral, monitored environment for initial short interviews during the Annual Meeting.

Employers and preregistered job seekers are able to enter their information in an online module and use an interactive scheduling calendar to set up interview appointments during the Annual Meeting.

All service users were urged to preregister by July 10 in order to take full advantage of the pre-convention communication opportunities that the online Employment Service (ES) offers. Interviewers and candidates were also encouraged to bring their own laptops (equipped with wireless capability) and tablets with them so that they can more easily maintain communications during the Annual Meeting. The on-site Employment Service areas will provide a few computer terminals for use by registered ES users.

Location and Hours. The Employment Service will be open in Americas Hall II of the Hilton New York Midtown during the hours listed below.

Friday, August 9, 1:30 – 6:30 pm
Saturday, August 10, 8:00 am – 5:30 pm
Sunday, August 11, 8:00 am – 5:30 pm
Monday, August 12, 8:00 am – 5:30 pm
Tuesday, August 13, 8:00am – 1:00 pm

Preregistrants should first pick up their ASA badges in the Americas Hall I of the Hilton New York Midtown before proceeding to the Employment Service areas.

Employers. Employers (organizations) enter the online ES to pay the registration fee and post job listings. All individuals conducting interviews on-site must be registered for the Annual Meeting and subsequently designated as interviewers by their employers in order to use the online service to search candidate information and set up interview appointments.

Candidates. Those who are looking for positions should have preregistered for the Annual Meeting and for the Employment Service before the July 10 preregistration deadline. Those who preregistered may log into the online ES module and fill out the Candidate Information Form, upload a full resume, view jobs posted by Employers, mark their ES calendars to show their availability for interviews, and respond to interview invitations.

Interview Scheduling. All initial interview appointments are to be scheduled through the online Employment Service. Interviewers and candidates are encouraged to bring their own laptops (equipped with wireless cards) with them so that they can more easily maintain communications about interview appointments during the Annual Meeting. The Interview Room provides one table per employer where designated interviewers may meet with candidates at the agreed-upon appointment times. On-site staff will assist with reminders of the 20-minute appointment intervals so that appointment schedules stay on-time throughout the day.

On-Site Registration. Individuals who did not preregister and now want to use the Employment Service, whether as Candidate or Interviewer, must first register for the Annual Meeting. Please see "Registration Services" for on-site registration rates. Fees for candidates to use the Employment Service, which may be paid during your meeting registration process at the On-Site Registration desks, are $50 for ASA members, $85 for non-members. There is no additional service fee for Interviewers. Employers may go directly online to pay the registration fee ($295), post their job listings, and designate the on-site interviewers.

When fully registered, your next step is to visit the Employment Service help desks in Americas Hall II of the Hilton New York Midtown, where you will be given a brief orientation to the service procedures and issued a pass permitting your entrance to the Interview Room. No one will be admitted without a pass; "browsing" by non-registered attendees is not permitted.

After the Meeting. The online Employment Service site will remain open after the Annual Meeting is over to permit registered candidates and interviewers to reference information posted there. Users may download files of job listings or candidate resumes for future reference, if they wish. The online 2013 Employment Service will close to registered users at the end of September 2013.

Child Care

ASA is continuing the tradition of providing an innovative program of activities for children of Annual Meeting registrants. Arrangements have again been made with KiddieCorp to offer a full childcare program during daytime session hours for preregistered children between the ages of 6 months to 12 years.

KiddieCorp is dedicated to providing quality childcare services across the nation for meeting attendees. Staffing is based on a 1:2 ratio for children 6 months to 1 year, 1:3 ratios for children 1-2 years of age and a 1:5 ratio for children 3-12 years of age. The program includes a customized hourly schedule of creative and educational activities, age-appropriate toys and games, popular arts and crafts projects, and child-pleasing movies and cartoon videos.

The Child Care Service is located in the Bryant/Morgan on the Second Floor of the Hilton New York Midtown.

This service is available to preregistrants only. The non-refundable preregistration deposit of $50 per child will be applied to the daily usage fees on-site. Daily use fees per preregistered child are $50 per full day, $30 per half day. For children using the service for shorter periods, the half-day fee will apply to encourage stable populations. Fees include on-site activities and snacks; lunch is not included but meal arrangements can be made through the hotel.

Service hours are 8:00 am – 6:30 pm on Saturday-Monday, August 10-12, and 8:00 am – 4:30 pm on Tuesday, August 13. Parents/guardians using these services must be registrants for the Annual Meeting.

There is no guarantee that non-preregistered families can be accommodated on-site. Child care providers reserve the right to refuse admittance to non-preregistrants. IF there are any openings, fees for children who were not preregistered will be $75 per day per child. No half-day rates are available for non-preregistered children; no exceptions.

Access for All: Accessibility Resources and Services

The ASA offers several services and oversight arrangements to facilitate attendance at the Annual Meeting. The ASA Office will coordinate resources during the meeting week for registrants with physical disabilities who are attending the Annual Meeting. Special services, which were arranged in advance, may be verified with ASA staff to ensure that you receive the assistance you need. Should you encounter any problems during the meeting or need any additional information while at the Annual Meeting, please contact Meeting Services staff in the on-site ASA Office and/or visit the Meeting Information Desk in Americas Hall II of the Hilton New York Midtown.

Comfort Zone. Attendees coping with illness, meeting fatigue, or stress may use the small room set aside by ASA as a "safe haven" to escape briefly from the noise and bustle of meeting activities. The designated Comfort Zone is located in Conrad Hilton Suite on the fourth floor of the Hilton New York Midtown and in Carnegie West on the Third Floor of the Sheraton New York Hotel & Towers.

Lactation/Nursing Facilities. Families with lactation/nursing needs should stop by the ASA Office in the Gibson Room on the Second Level of the Hilton New York Midtown for access to the private facilities.

Unisex/Gender Non-Specified Restrooms. The ASA has designated restroom facilities on the Second Floor (near the Rhineland Gallery) of the Hilton New York Midtown and the Third Floor (near New York Ballroom West) of the Sheraton New York Hotel & Towers as "uni-sex/gender-neutral." Other restroom facilities designated "women" and "men" are also available on these levels.

Plenary Sessions. All ASA Plenary Sessions will be available as live simulcasts. In addition, the webcast will allow users to access real-time transcription of the plenary session delivered through their mobile device via the Annual Meeting app.

Arrangements for sign language interpreters, in-person real-time captioners may be provided for meeting registrants who have requested these services in advance of the meeting.

Sessions. ASA has made arrangements for sign language interpreters, sighted guides, and other communication avenues for meeting registrants who provided information in advance of the meeting.

Other Services. Registrants who did not make advance arrangements for services or equipment are requested to contact staff at the ASA Office in the Gibson Room on the Second Floor of the Hilton New York Midtown. Every reasonable effort will be made to assist registrants on-site. However, if you have a physical disability and need special services, equipment, or accommodations, and did not notify ASA in advance of your arrival at the meeting site, ASA may not be able to provide appropriate services due to the limited availability of some equipment and services.

For more than twenty years, ASA has provided special services and oversight arrangements to facilitate attendance at the Annual Meeting. For an overview, please read the article on "Committee and Executive Office Collaborate to Make Annual Meeting Accessible," published in the April 2007 issue of ASA's newsletter Footnotes.

Press Office

Press and media representatives are invited to check in at the on-site ASA Press Office for program information and interview assistance. The Press Office is located in the Clinton Room on the Second Floor of the Hilton New York Midtown. Office hours are 5:00-7:00 pm on August 9, 8:00 am-5:00 pm on August 10-12, and 8:00 am-1:00 pm on August 13.

Meeting attendees are also encouraged to drop by the on-site Press Office and provide information on their availability to discuss their work with the media while in New York City.

ASA Office

To support ASA activities at the meeting site, there will be an ASA Office staffed with Executive Office personnel at the Hilton New York Midtown in the Gibson Room on the Second Floor, this on-site office will be open at 1:30-7:00 pm on August 9, and 8:00 am-6:00 pm on August 10-13.

Hotel Information

Airport & Transportation

LaGuardia (LGA) and John F. Kennedy International (JFK): New York City's Major Airports

LaGuardia (LGA) remains a popular choice for a wide variety of travelers, providing easy access to New York City and the metropolitan area. John F. Kennedy (JFK) has been in operation for more than 60 years and now handles more international traffic than any airport in the nation.

Shuttle Vans, Buses and Public Transportation Services

LGA: New York City buses provide service between LaGuardia and Manhattan and Queens with connections to New York City subways for destinations beyond. For service between LaGuardia and Manhattan, the M60 bus goes to 106th and Broadway via 125th Street in Manhattan and Astoria Blvd. in Queens. Key connections include the N and Q subway trains at Hoyt Avenue/31st Street; the 4, 5, and 6 subway trains at Lexington Avenue; and the Metro-North Railroad at Park Avenue.

New York Airporter offers shared ride service. Departs roughly every 30 minutes - Port Authority Bus Terminal, Grand Central Station and Penn Station. Fare is $13. Purchase tickets online at www.NYCAirporter.com. For more information, call (718) 777-5111.

Taxi service is also available at LaGuardia in front of all terminals. Ground transportation information counters, located on the lower baggage claim level of all terminals, provide information and reservations for buses, shared-ride vans, and private cars or limousines. You can call 1 (800)-AIR-RIDE for information on authorized transportation services. As always, disregard offers of transportation from solicitors in the terminal. Be sure your transportation is safe and legitimate at ground transportation information counters, bus stops, and taxi dispatchers. Also, ignore non-uniformed persons offering to assist with baggage and seek out uniformed porters or airline employees for baggage assistance.

JFK: JFK has many transportation options – from AirTrain, public subways and buses to taxis and limousines. AirTrain JFK provides easy access to both the Long Island Rail Road and MTA's New York City subway and bus system, with connections at both the Jamaica and Howard Beach station stops. JFK is also ideally located for regional highway travel. AirTrain JFK is the easiest way to travel to, from, and around Kennedy International Airport. AirTrain provides a low-cost way to travel by mass transit to major destinations in New York and New Jersey. Best of all, you never have to worry about traffic and can lower your carbon footprint.

Reservations for shared-ride van and private car services can be made at the Port Authority Welcome Center located on the Arrivals level of each terminal. If the center is closed, there is a convenient self-service kiosk nearby where you can contact authorized shared-ride or private car services. Public transportation information for the disabled traveler is available at the following numbers: MTA: 718 596-8585 TTY/TDD 718 596-8273

Unisex Restrooms

All public restrooms can accommodate people with disabilities. If you need assistance, you and the person assisting can use one of unisex/family restrooms located throughout the terminal and concourses at JFK and LGA airports. Customer Service can help you to find a unisex/family restroom.

Wheelchairs

Your airline can provide you with wheelchair or electric cart service if you need assistance to or from your flight. Service should be requested from the airline in advance or at the ticket counter when you check in.

Ground Transportation - Wheelchair Transportation

The Americans with Disabilities Act requires all ground transportation companies to provide wheelchair-accessible vehicles. Disabled travelers traveling to and from JFK and LGA can choose from among several companies that provide wheelchair transportation services. Individuals needing this service should make arrangements with a service provider in advance.

Pet-Relief Area

All passenger terminals at JFK and LGA airports provide these areas to conform with the federal Air Carrier Access Act, which mandates such areas for service animals who travel with air passengers. Signs featuring the international symbol for pet relief designate the areas.

Download the JFK and LGA Accessibility Maps at www.panynj.gov/airports/pdf/accessibility-services.pdf.

ASA Business Meeting

The ASA Business Meeting is an opportunity for members of the Association to discuss important issues facing the discipline and profession. Members are encouraged to attend this meeting convened by the ASA President Cecilia L. Ridgeway.

Summary reports on the Association and its key activities this year will be given by President Cecilia L. Ridgeway, Secretary Catherine White Berheide, and Executive Officer Sally T. Hillsman. The meeting concludes with the traditional transfer of the gavel, marking the transition of duties from President Cecilia L. Ridgeway to incoming President Annette Lareau.

This open forum is an opportunity for members to share their insights, reactions, and suggestions. Please consult the flyer in your convention tote bag for details on the Business Meeting agenda.

As noted in the May/June issue of Footnotes and the posting of meeting information on the ASA website, members seeking to present formal resolutions should be prepared to provide background materials on the issue to be discussed. Members who missed the July 10 submission deadline may bring their resolutions and supporting background documentation to the ASA Office in the Gibson Room on the Second Floor of the Hilton New York Midtown by 3:00 pm on Monday, August 12.

All meeting attendees are invited to join ASA officers, Council members, and staff for continental breakfast and discussion at the ASA Business Meeting on Tuesday, August 13, 7:00-8:15am, in Mercury Ballroom on the Third Floor of the Hilton New York Midtown.

INEQUALITY

Linking Micro and Macro

108th ASA Annual Meeting • August 10-13 • New York, NY
Hilton New York & Sheraton New York

Major Plenary Sessions

The Annual Meeting theme of "Interrogating Inequality: Linking Micro and Macro" is being addressed from the Opening Plenary Session on August 9 to the final Plenary on August 12. Access live webcasts (and real-time transcriptions) of the Plenary Sessions using the app.

Inequality and Contemporary Social Protest

Session 4, Friday August 9, 7:00-9:00pm

Hilton New York Midtown, Grand Ballroom, Third Floor

Session Organizers: Cecilia L. Ridgeway and Douglas McAdam, Stanford University

Presenter: Cecilia L. Ridgeway, Stanford University

Panelists: Barbara Ehrenreich, Author

Theda Skocpol, Harvard University

Douglas McAdam, Stanford University

In recent years, growing inequality in the U.S. has come head-to-head with the worst financial crisis since the Great Depression. Not surprisingly, the resulting social tensions have sparked popular social protests from the left as well as the right. In this session, prominent political observers of these events discuss the social forces behind them. A long time observer of inequality in America and an acute analyst of the power of collective action, Barbara Ehrenreich is the author of such well known books Bait and Switch and Nickel and Dimed. Theda Skocpol is a distinguished political sociologist and scholar of social change and the author, most recently, of The Tea Party and the Remaking of Republican Conservatism. Adding his expertise to the discussion is political sociologist, Douglas McAdam, author of such works as Freedom Summer, Dynamics of Contention, and Putting Movements in Their Place: Explaining Opposition to Energy Projects in the U.S., 2000-2005.

Micro Processes as Mechanisms of Inequality

Session 72, Saturday, August 10, 12:30-2:10pm

Session Organizer and Presenter: Cecilia L. Ridgeway, Stanford University

Panelists: Lawrence D. Bobo, Harvard University

Shelley J. Correll, Stanford University

Annette Lareau, University of Pennsylvania

Jane D. McLeod, Indiana University

Processes at multiple levels of analysis typically work together to support or undermine durable patterns of inequality between individuals and between social groups. Our task is to locate the key junctures among these multilevel processes that provide the levers by which different sorts of inequalities among people and groups are systematically made or unmade in contemporary context. As part of this effort, this session focuses our attention on the less familiar micro level of the individual in social context. The first set of speakers address micro-level mechanisms that play significant roles in creating, maintaining, and/or changing racial, gender, and class based inequality. A final speaker looks across the micro-mechanisms that operate in these different types of inequalities to offer a more general analysis of the nature and significance of micro processes in the multilevel production, reproduction, and change of contemporary patterns of inequality.

How is Inequality in the United States Changing?

Session 360, Monday, August 12, 12:30-2:10pm

Hilton New York Midtown, Grand Ballroom, Third Floor

Session Organizers: Cecilia L. Ridgeway and David B. Grusky,

Panelists: David B. Grusky, Stanford University

Paula England, New York University

Tomas R. Jimenez, Stanford University

Robert Mare, University of California-Los Angeles

The last few decades have witnessed increasing income inequality in the U.S. and substantial changes in the nature and patterns of gender, race, and class inequalities. What are the main features of these changes and what is driving them? What are the implications of such changes for the future? Major scholars in their fields address these questions separately for economic and class inequality, gender inequality, and racial inequality. The final distinguished speaker in the session asks whether a new narrative of change and stability should be developed. Are there common patterns or themes in the changes across these different types of contemporary inequality? If so, what is the best way to understand these patterns of change?

Address by Cecilia L. Ridgeway and ASA Awards Ceremony

The Presidential Plenary featuring the formal address of ASA President Cecilia L. Ridgeway will be held on Sunday, August 11, at 4:30 pm. The ASA Awards Ceremony, conferring the 2013 major ASA awards, will open this session. All registrants are invited to attend this plenary session and the Honorary Reception afterwards to honor President Cecilia L. Ridgeway and the award recipients.

Presidential Panels

Changing Beliefs about Inequality, Opportunity and Mobility

Session 324, Monday, August 12, 10:30am-12:10pm

Hilton New York Midtown, Rendezvous Trianon, Third Floor
 Session Organizer and Presider: Sandra S. Smith, University of California-Berkeley

Panelists: Matthew O. Hunt, Northeastern University
Leslie McCall, Northwestern University
Alford A. Young, University of Michigan

Since the early 1970s, economic inequality has grown dramatically. Not only is the income gap between the richest and the poorest the greatest it has been since the Long Gilded Age, for vast segments of the working- and middle-class, economic insecurity is also now the norm. The Great Recession has brought these dramatic changes into sharp relief and, some contend, has inspired The Tea Party and Occupy Movements. Given these changes, do Americans continue to believe in the American Dream? For whom is the dream still alive? Has the dream itself been altered to reflect new realities? In this session, scholars will consider how growing economic inequality has affected American's beliefs about inequality, opportunity, and mobility.

Cultural Meanings of Gender and Inequality

Session 73, Saturday, August 10, 2:30-4:10pm

 Session Organizer and Presider: Shelley J. Correll, Stanford University

Panelists: Catherine Albiston, University of California-Berkeley
Laurie Rudman, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers
Mary Blair-Loy, University of California-San Diego
Barbara Jane Risman, University of Illinois-Chicago

What is the relationship between cultural beliefs about gender, work, family and the durability of gender inequality? How do cultural beliefs interact with socioeconomic processes to foster the creation, maintenance and change of gender inequality? How can cultural beliefs themselves be changed to promote equality? In this session, gender scholars will share their ideas about the cultural foundations of gender inequality, how those foundations endure, and how they can be eroded to foster a more gender equitable society.

Grappling with Inequality: What Economics, Psychology, Political Science, and Sociology have to Say about Rising Inequality in the United States

Session 172, Sunday, August 11, 10:30am-12:10pm

 Session Organizer and Presider: Devah Pager, Princeton University
 Panelists: Susan T. Fiske, Princeton University

Lawrence Katz, Harvard University
Larry Bartels, Vanderbilt University
Erik Olin Wright, University of Wisconsin-Madison

This panel aims to interrogate what social science can teach us about rising inequality in the United States. The panel will feature the perspectives of prominent representatives from each of the social sciences whose work has shaped the debate on these important questions. Why have those at the top of the distribution secured such an unequal share of economic growth? What role do politics play in shaping patterns of inequality? Do the poor or working class have any voice in contemporary debates about inequality? In what ways do the microdynamics of class play out in interactions, attributions, and affinities? In dialogue with one another, the representatives of these four disciplines will grapple with these questions and shed light on the diverse but intersecting perspectives of their fields.

Immigration and the Changing Racial Terrain

Session 468, Tuesday, August 13, 10:30am-12:10pm

Session Organizer: Douglas S. Massey, Princeton University

Presenter: Katharine Donato, Vanderbilt University

Panelists: Jennifer Lee, University of California-Irvine

Edward E. Telles, Princeton University

Susan T. Fiske, Princeton University

Douglas S. Massey, Princeton University

All the speakers have written on immigration and race and will draw on their knowledge to discuss how immigration has affected racial formation in the United States. Jennifer Lee is co-author of The Diversity Paradox: Immigration and the Color Line in 21st Century America. Edward Telles is co-editor of Just Neighbors: Research on African American and Latino Relations in the United States and numerous publications on skin color stratification among Latinos. Susan Fiske is coauthor of "Immigrants in the Stereotype Content Model" in the International Journal of Intercultural Relations, which examines the position of immigrants in American social cognition. Douglas Massey is the author of several articles on the racialization of Latinos in the United States, including recent works published in Race and Social Problems. Katharine Donato, who is Chair of Sociology at Vanderbilt and Co-Editor of the American Sociological Review and a well-known immigration researcher, will preside.

Interrogating Inequality: Structural and Cultural Dimensions

Session 361, Monday, August 12, 2:30-4:10pm

Hilton New York, Rendezvous Trianon, Third Floor

Panelists: Ann Swidler, University of California-Berkeley

Mario Luis Small, University of Chicago

Min Zhou, University of California-Los Angeles

Paul J. DiMaggio, Princeton University

In this session four prominent scholars draw upon insights from their own research to examine how material, structural factors and cultural factors work together and sometimes against one another in the making and unmaking of inequality in the contemporary US. Among the many questions they consider are these: How can we integrate cultural process with our structural analyses without collapsing back into group stereotypes and other such well known pitfalls? Must change in "durable inequalities" (that have both structural and cultural elements) like race, gender, or class come first in material circumstances? What do we need to look at to understand what is changing about the significant dimensions of inequality in contemporary US, what is not changing, and why? Rather than engaging in abstract, purely theoretical debates about such "structure vs. culture" arguments, this session focuses on substantive considerations of these issues in the context of research on contemporary patterns of social relations and inequality.

Organizational Dynamics and Inequality

Session 209, Sunday, August 11, 12:30-2:10pm

Session Organizer and Presenter: Emilio J. Castilla, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Panelists: Trond Petersen, University of California-Berkeley

Jennifer L. Glass, University of Texas-Austin

Donald Tomaskovic-Devey, University of Massachusetts

At the core of current stratification studies lies the fundamental premise that organizations and organizational practices play a key role in shaping social inequality. Organizations mediate the matching of individuals to labor market positions and are the sites of evaluation and reward structures used to distribute power, wealth and prestige among individuals and groups. The purpose of this presidential panel is to bring together a group of researchers who share a concern for advancing our knowledge about the organizational micro processes and mechanisms that may account for how organizations affect economic and social inequality in society. By discussing innovative research that sheds new light on these issues across organizational settings and using a variety of research approaches, this panel is aimed at enriching future research within the broad topic of organizational dynamics and stratification.

Thematic Sessions

Regional Spotlight: New York City

New York is the most populous city in the United States and the center of the New York Metropolitan Area, one of the most populous urban agglomerations in the world. The city is referred to as New York City or the City of New York to distinguish it from the State of New York. A global power city, New York exerts a significant impact on commerce, finance, media, art, fashion, research, technology, education, and entertainment. The home of the United Nations Headquarters, New York is an important center for international diplomacy and has been described as the cultural capital of the world. Located on one of the world's largest natural harbors, New York City consists of five boroughs—The Bronx, Brooklyn, Manhattan, Queens, and Staten Island.

Many districts and landmarks in New York City have become well-known to its approximately 50 million annual visitors. Times Square is the brightly illuminated hub of the Broadway theatre district. The city hosts many world renowned bridges, skyscrapers, and parks. New York City's financial district, anchored by Wall Street in Lower Manhattan, has been called the world's leading financial center and is home to the New York Stock Exchange. Manhattan's real estate market is among the most expensive in the world. Providing 24/7 service, the New York City Subway is one of the most extensive rapid transit systems worldwide.

This year's program features an exciting roster of local arrangements representing the work of members from the New York metropolitan area. The local arrangements committee, chaired by Philip Kasinitz (City University of New York), has developed a timely, stimulating, and vibrant roster of regional spotlight sessions, tours, and articles for Footnotes.

Spotlight Tours

One of the best way to see the New York City area through sociological lenses is to take advantage of one or more of this year's local tours. The schedule of tours is provided below, with descriptions and capacity limits. Reservations were mandatory. Those who are already enrolled in tours should have received their tickets in their badge envelopes.

Tours that have already sold out are shown below. If you wish to buy tickets for one of the remaining tours or check on the status of a tour, please stop by ASA On-Site Registration in Americas Hall II of the Hilton New York Midtown.

Every effort has been made to ensure the tours are accessible to those with disabilities. Participants on "walking tours" who might require assistance may opt to use a motorized scooter provided by the ASA. If assistance is needed, contact the on-site ASA Office in the Americas Hall II of the Hilton New York Midtown at least 24 hours in advance of the scheduled tour departure.

Fees are noted with the descriptions below and include all entrance fees. All fees go toward tour handling, entrance fees, handouts (if any), and group transportation costs. Tour fees are non-refundable.

The type of transportation involved is noted with each tour description. Attendees who opt to use an alternate mode of transportation, e.g., taking a cab instead of using the subway, will be completely responsible for the cost of transportation.

Attendees are advised to arrive promptly in the departure areas; there are no refunds for missing the group departures coordinated by the tour leaders.

Keep in mind that the arrival times back are estimates only and may vary somewhat due to traffic conditions.

Regional Spotlight Tour 1. Jackson Heights Immigrant Enclaves

Saturday, August 10, 2:00-5:00pm

Departure Area: Hilton New York Midtown, Americas Hall II

Fee: $20

Tour Organizer: Sujatha Teresa Fernandes, City University of New York-Queens College

Jackson Heights, Queens is one of NYC's quintessential neighborhoods and a gateway to growing South Asian, East Asian and Latino immigrant communities. This tour is an interactive, "feets-on" introduction through the back streets and working streets of Jackson Heights. It is organized together with community based organizations and rooted in the unique immigration and social justice struggles of the neighborhood.

Learn about some of the most important struggles in the city including immigrant rights, workers' rights, housing rights, language access and gender equality.

We will visit community organizations, hear about the struggle for language access at Elmhurst Hospital, walk down Roosevelt Avenue, talk to local business owners and reflect on life as an immigrant New Yorker.

Regional Spotlight Tour 2. Ethnic Diversity and Public Space: The Case of Astoria, Queens

Saturday, August 10, 2:00-5:00pm

Departure Area: Hilton New York Midtown, Americas Hall II

Tour Organizer: Sofya Aptekar, Max Planck Institute for the Study of Religious and Ethnic Diversity

A short subway ride from the Annual Meeting, the neighborhood of Astoria Queens, is by most measures the most diverse neighborhood in New York's most diverse borough. Astoria is home to dozens of immigrant groups, a new influx of affluent residents, and a longstanding African American community. Long considered New York's quintessential Greek neighborhood, complete with bustling street cafés, Astoria is also now New York's "Little Egypt." It contains movie studios, light industry, some of America's largest public housing complexes, and restaurants that attract visitors from all over the city. Astoria presents many temporal layers of urban change and development, which the tour explores through visits to public spaces and conversations with local residents, old and new. Visiting sociologists will enjoy the opportunity to observe cross-cultural interactions and witness shifting class landscapes.

We will travel to Astoria on the subway. Please wear comfortable walking shoes and bring money for light refreshments – Astoria has few trees and it can get hot! Depending on the weather, we will visit the gorgeous Astoria waterfront, with views of Manhattan, Roosevelt Island, and several bridges.

Regional Spotlight Tour 3. Greenwich Village

Saturday, August 10, 2:00-5:00pm

Departure Area: Hilton New York Midtown, Americas Hall II

Tour Organizer: Brian James McCabe, Georgetown University

Greenwich Village is one of New York City's most exciting neighborhoods. Once the home to the city's wealthiest citizens, the Village became known as the center of bohemian life by the early twentieth century. True to those bohemians, this tour visits the homes of some of New York's most important writers, including Hart Crane and Edna St. Vincent Millay. We will wander past the Stonewall Inn, the site of the famous Stonewall Riots and the birthplace of the modern gay rights movement. Together, we will think about the neighborhood that inspired Jane Jacobs, a critic of federal urban renewal plans, to write The Death and Life of Great American Cities.

We'll discover some of New York's best-kept side streets and back alleys, including Patchin Place and Washington Mews. And as we talk about the construction of Seventh Avenue through the tangled streets of the Village, the tour will consider how major urban planning decisions shaped the social fabric of the neighborhood. Sounds like a lot of walking, eh?

Don't worry! Keep your eyes peeled for some of the city's best options for a post-walk drink - from the historic Minetta Tavern to the exclusive cocktail bar, Little Branch; the aptly-named NYU hang-out, Off the Wagon, or the Stonewall Inn itself.

The tour departs from the Hilton New York Midtown and will begin at Christopher Park on 7th Avenue and 4th Street and ends in one of the city's most contested public spaces: Washington Square. Once a burial ground north of the city, Washington Square is now the epicenter of New York University and a great place to watch New Yorkers in action on a summer afternoon.

Regional Spotlight Tour 4. The Lower East Side, Past and Present

Saturday, August 10, 2:00-5:00pm

Departure Area: Hilton New York Midtown, Americas Hall II

Tour Organizer: Richard E. Ocejo, City University of New York-John Jay College

In its long and storied existence the Lower East Side of Manhattan has undergone numerous transformations. The neighborhood has been a country retreat for the wealthy, a theatre district for the genteel, a destination for immigrants of all backgrounds, a beacon of working-class culture, a skid row for the destitute, an alternative space for avant-garde artists, and, today, a place for luxury housing and upscale nightlife among the city's young, hip, and wealthy residents and visitors. Focusing on existing artifacts from the Lower East Side's diverse cultures, this tour covers some of this history in New York City's most historic neighborhood. The tour's highlights will include stops at: the Daily Forward building, the Grand Street Houses, Essex Market, The Hotel on Rivington, Orchard Street, the Bowery Mission, and the Avalon Bowery and Chrystie complexes.

Regional Spotlight Tour 5. High Line, Hudson Yards and Chelsea's Art Galleries: New York's New Far West Side

Sunday, August 11, 12:00-3:00pm

Departure Area: Hilton New York Midtown, Americas Hall II

Tour Organizer: David Halle, University of California-Los Angeles
New York has always been a city characterized by the new and innovative. This tour covers the Far West Side of Manhattan, the latest frontier for no less than three kinds of urban and cultural developments. The first is Chelsea becoming the largest Contemporary Art commercial art gallery district in the world. The second involved turning the High Line, a disused above-ground rail line, into the city's most visited park. The third is a series of mega projects—including a plan for the Hudson Yards (which contains the largest unbuilt site in Manhattan) to become the country's biggest and densest real-estate development (12m square feet), and another plan to renovate Penn Station—the busiest train station in the country—to be renamed Moynihan Station. These three developments—Chelsea's dominant art gallery district, iconic preservation projects such as the High Line, and mega projects, each raise critical issues about how to foster urban growth while limiting growth's negative consequences especially so as avoid mistakes of the past. Each also, when carefully examined, explodes some key myths.

Regional Spotlight Tour 6. City Life, Underground: The New York City Subway System

Sunday, August 11, 12:00-3:00pm

Departure Area: Hilton New York Midtown, Americas Hall II

With 468 stations, 842 miles of track, and 24 routes, the New York City subway is the largest public transportation system in the world, and among the oldest. It is also one of the city's true public spaces, where strangers from diverse social backgrounds—from the homeless to Wall Street executives—regularly confront each other. Once a symbol of the modern city's greatness, the subway became a symbol of its postwar decrepitude, and today signifies its rebirth.

By riding the train, this tour will cover some of the system's most famous stations (Penn Station and Grand Central Station), its busiest lines (7, A/C/E), and its special features (artwork and musical performances), while discussing the subway's role in urban development and as a quintessential feature of city life.

Regional Spotlight Tour 7. The Green Heart of the City: Central Park

Sunday, August 11, 12:00-3:00pm

Departure Area: Hilton New York Midtown, Americas Hall II

Tour Organizer: William Kornblum, City University of New York-Graduate Center

Only a few steps from the heart of the City, Central Park is one of America's great urban public spaces, and a model for parks thought North America. In this tour we will look at the social and spatial ideas behind Frederick Law Olmstead and Calvert Vaux's original design, as well as how the park has changed with the city over the years. A great opportunity to see a unique and beloved public space, as well as to get some sunshine in the midst of the meetings!

Regional Spotlight Tour 8. Fashion District

Monday, August 12, 9:00am-12:00pm

Departure Area: Hilton New York Midtown, Americas Hall II

Tour Organizer: Elizabeth A. Wissinger, City University of New York-Borough of Manhattan Community College

Come and enjoy a tour of the Fashion District "tailor-made" for sociologists. Learn all about what makes the Fashion District the fashion capital of the world from a licensed tour guide who has studied and practiced in the business since 1965, and expert sociologists of fashion, Elizabeth Wissinger, (Co-editor of Fashioning Models: Image, Text, and Industry, sociologist and teacher of fashion studies at the Graduate Center of CUNY) and Thuy Linh Tu (NYU Professor and author of The Beautiful Generation: Asian Americans and the Cultural Economy of Fashion).

Regional Spotlight Tour 9. Peacebuilding at the United Nations (co-sponsored with the Section on Peace, War and Social Conflict)

Monday, August 12, 8:30am-12:00pm

Departure Area: Hilton New York Midtown, Americas Hall II

Tour Organizer: Lynne M. Woehrlé, Mount Mary College

This tour will take participants by public transit to the United Nations. Once there and through security we will have a briefing with experts on "Peacebuilding and post-violence conflict transformation." Because of renovations, the tour is still unconfirmed but our group is on the list to be considered for a UN tour of those parts open during construction. We will return to the hotel after the briefing. Please make sure to pack lightly so as to reduce the time in security. You may not bring in any liquid or food. Your bag has to be smaller than 14" by 13" or you will be asked to check it at the security tent.

For a full list of excluded items visit: <http://www.un.org/wcm/content/site/visitors/home/plan/security>

Research Support Forum

Now entering its 21st year, the annual ASA Research Support Forum features discussion of science policy issues, research funding information and guidance, and updates on data resources throughout the Annual Meeting. The forum is designed to provide invaluable help, access, and consideration of important substantive and policy issues for new researchers and more experienced scholars. From the opening professional workshop on Saturday to the closing academic workshop on Tuesday, attendees can count on plentiful access to funding experts and data sources.

The cornerstone of this year's forum is a special session focusing on future opportunities for social science research in the current political climate on Capitol Hill, followed by the informal poster exhibits on data resources and research funding opportunities.

Highlights of all the sessions included in this year's Forum are given below in chronological order. For complete information on all these sessions, please refer to the full session listings in the body of the Program Schedule.

Data for Social Science Research: Availability, Accessibility, and Research Possibilities Policy and Research Workshop 295, Monday, August 12, 8:30-10:10am

Hilton New York Midtown, Concourse D, Concourse Level

Session Organizer: Patricia E. White, National Science Foundation

Disadvantaged Students, the College Pipeline, and Supportive Funding Opportunities Policy and Research Workshop 406, Monday, August 12, 4:30-6:10pm

Informational Poster Session 248, Sunday, August 11, 1:00-4:00pm

Hilton New York Midtown, Rhinelander Gallery, Second Floor
Session Organizer: Nicole M. Van Vooren, American Sociological Association

This poster/exhibit session provides a unique occasion to meet representatives of major research funding institutions and principal investigators, researchers, and managers of large-scale datasets that are publicly available for use. Each display by a funding institution provides a visual overview of research funding and the application process, materials for distribution, and time for direct individual discussion. Data resource representatives are available to talk about the featured datasets, their analytic potential, and issues relating to access and use, including state-of-the-art Internet services to access datasets. This is an opportunity for meeting attendees to learn about these datasets and their potential for research and teaching. All meeting participants, including students, are encouraged to attend.

Participating institutions and their poster numbers are shown in the full session listing in the body of the Program Schedule. For additional information, please refer to the poster abstracts at the end of the daily schedule.

Special Sessions

The category of "Special Sessions" encompasses many of the suggestions submitted by ASA members for invited panels. These sessions may be on topics that further investigate the meeting theme, contribute to the review of the discipline, or focus attention on other timely and important issues. More than 10 sessions were constituted, including a set of sessions co-sponsored with sister sociological associations/organizations.

A summary of Special Session topics, organizers, and locations is compiled below (alphabetically by session title/topic); please refer to the body of the Program Schedule for complete details.

Regular Sessions

Regular Sessions are comprised of research papers submitted in response to the 2013 Call for Papers. The 2013 Program Committee appointed organizers for 127 general Regular Session topics and announced that topics were open to submissions from ASA members. Paper submissions were due in mid-January 2013.

Regular Session organizers received anywhere from 0 to 300 submissions for review. A total of 186 formal paper sessions were organized from over 4400 papers submitted to Regular Session topics. Please refer to the Program Schedule for details on each Regular Session.

Be sure to check the ASA website this fall for information on making your paper submission for next year's Annual Meeting. The paper submission deadline will be January 8, 2014.

Open Refereed Roundtables

The 2013 Program Committee invited, Shirley A. Hill (University of Kansas) to review submissions and organize roundtables using a "mini-session" format: a general topic identified for each table, two to five paper presentations, and a table presider to coordinate presentations and discussion.

Three large roundtable sessions comprised of 25-30 tables each were created for this year's program. Please note that all roundtables presentations listed on a session are held simultaneously at tables located inside one large meeting room; neither audio-visual equipment nor recording devices may be used.

Open Refereed Roundtable Session I

Session 86, Saturday, August 10, 2:30-4:10pm

Hilton New York Midtown, Mercury Ballroom, Third Floor

Open Refereed Roundtable Session II

Session 181, Sunday, August 11, 10:30am-12:10pm

Open Refereed Roundtable Session III

Session 333, Monday, August 12, 10:30am-12:10pm
Hilton New York Midtown, Trianon Ballroom, Third Floor

Informal Discussion Roundtables

This popular program component is designed to bring together small groups of people interested in discussing specific topics. Informal roundtables offer opportunities for those who share conceptual, methodological, professional, or policy concerns to meet one another and to initiate and expand networks. These discussion tables also are particularly valuable for those who are developing new ideas or formulating issues in new ways and who would like to explore these ideas or issues with colleagues who have similar interests.

An Informal Discussion Roundtable Session is comprised of 15-20 tables, with a different discussion topic assigned to each table. Discussion proceeds simultaneously at all tables listed on each session. At each table the discussion leader will introduce the topic and facilitate discussion among all the participants at the table. No formal papers are to be presented, and neither audio-visual equipment nor recording devices may be used.

Ellen Granberg (Clemson University) was invited to review the discussion topics and organize sessions. One informal roundtable session was created from the 14 proposals submitted in January by ASA members. Time and location of the discussion roundtables are noted below; please see the full session listing in the body of the Program Schedule for complete details.

Informal Roundtable Discussion Session

Session 219, Sunday, August 11, 12:30-2:10pm

Poster Sessions

This program component features a series of display presentations that allow face-to-face conversation between authors and viewers. By facilitating informal discussions between presenters and "browsers," Poster Sessions provide a more direct forum for information exchange than do formal paper presentations.

This year attendees are welcome to browse through the Research Poster area throughout the Annual Meeting. This year the poster sessions are conveniently located in the Hilton New York Midtown, Rhinelander Gallery on the Second Floor, which permits more exposure for poster displays. Authors will be present to answer questions about the research displayed on their posters only during the formally designated Research Poster session times.

Informational poster presentations provide information on resources, materials, and opportunities. The annual Research Support Forum includes a major poster session also located in the Hilton New York Midtown, Rhinelander Gallery on the Second Floor to highlight research funding opportunities and data resources. As part of the Graduate Education focus, a resource poster area will be open for browsing in the Hilton New York Midtown, Second Floor Promenade and there is one designated time when attendees can expect to meet representatives from participating graduate departments of sociology. Both informational poster areas will be accessible throughout the Annual Meeting.

The varied roster of display presentations includes something of interest for every meeting attendee. Be sure to include some time in your schedule to visit this year's poster displays.

Courses

This educational component provides opportunities for attendees to get in-depth training in special subject areas. Intensive four- to six-hour courses are held pre-convention and led by expert faculty who have prepared a comprehensive curriculum to engage participants on all levels. Registrants will receive certificates documenting their participation and completion of these courses.

Attendance at the course is limited to 50 registrants. Prepaid registration is required; fees are $70. Reservations for the course were accepted in order of receipt in the ASA Executive Office.

Attendees who preregistered should have received their tickets with their name badges when they picked up their program packets as ASA Preregistration. Course fees were non-refundable after July 10.

Introduction to Social Network Analysis

Course 1, Friday, August 9, 10:00am-5:30pm

Hilton New York Midtown, Nassau East, Second Floor

Session Organizer and Leader: Olga V. Mayorova, Higher School of Economics

This is a hands on course based around the use of UCINET and NetDraw. It is designed for graduate students and faculty who have never taken a network course before. The goal is to help participants understand the application of network analysis to sociological studies. The course will provide working knowledge of the network concepts and ideas on how to gather network data. Participants will receive hands on experience of analyzing and visualizing real social network data and learn how to calculate and interpret a variety of descriptive network measures.

Qualitative Comparative Analysis (QCA) and Fuzzy Sets

Course 2, Friday, August 9, 10:00am-5:30pm

Hilton New York Midtown, Nassau West, Second Floor

Session Organizer and Leader: Charles C. Ragin, University of California-Irvine

The analytic challenge of case-oriented research is not simply that the number of cases is small, but that researchers gain useful in-depth knowledge of cases that is difficult to represent using conventional forms (e.g., representations that emphasize the “net effects” of “independent variables”). The researcher is left wondering how to represent knowledge of cases in a way that is meaningful and compact, but which also does not deny case complexity. Set-theoretic methods such as Qualitative Comparative Analysis (QCA), the central focus of this workshop, offer a solution. QCA is fundamentally a case-oriented method that can be applied to small-to-moderate size *N*s. It is most useful when researchers have knowledge of each case included in an investigation, there is a relatively small number of such cases (e.g., 10-50), and the investigator seeks to compare cases as configurations. With these methods it is possible to construct representations of cross-case patterns that allow for substantial heterogeneity and diversity. This workshop offers an introduction to the approach and to the use of the software package fsQCA (a free download from www.fsqca.com). Both the crisp (i.e., Boolean) and fuzzy-set versions of the method will be presented.

Fuzzy set analysis is gaining popularity in the social sciences today because of the close connections it enables among verbal theory, substantive knowledge (especially in the assessment of degree of set membership), and the analysis of empirical evidence. Fuzzy sets are especially useful in case-oriented research, where the investigator has a degree of familiarity with the cases included in the investigation and seeks to understand cases configurationally—as specific combinations of aspects or elements. Using fuzzy-set methods, case outcomes can be examined in ways that allow for causal complexity, where different combinations of causally relevant conditions combine to generate the outcome in question. Also, with set-theoretic methods it is possible to evaluate arguments that causal conditions are necessary or sufficient. Analyses of this type are outside the scope of conventional analytic methods.

Specific topics addressed in the course include: the differences between set-theoretic and correlational methods; conventional crisp sets versus fuzzy sets; the calibration of fuzzy sets; how calibration differs from conventional forms of measurement; analyzing fuzzy set relations; the correspondence between concepts and fuzzy set membership scores; the correspondence between theoretical statements and the analysis of fuzzy set relations; using fuzzy sets to study cases as configurations; and using fuzzy sets to unravel causal complexity, with a special focus on equifinality.

Connecting Micro and Macro in Ethnography

Course 3, Friday August 9, 1:30-5:30pm

Hilton New York Midtown, Murray Hill East, Second Floor

Session Organizer and Leader: Jane L. Collins, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Connecting the “micro” to the “macro,” or the local to the global, requires scholars to place observable events in the context of broader and less visible processes. It sometimes also requires us to move from the study of “spaces of place” to what Manuel Castells has called “spaces of flows.” To do this well requires careful case selection and case definition as we seek to clarify how the situations we study will illuminate broader processes and trends. In this course, we will begin with a focus on case selection and research design issues, discussing the difference between generalizable and transferable results. We will then explore a series of methodological strategies for linking “micro” and “macro,” including: (1) nested sampling; (2) ethnographic process-tracing; (3) juxtaposing timelines; (4) mapping commodity chains; (5) mapping other global “flows,” including migrants, discourses, and concepts. We will discuss the merits and special difficulties of the multi-sited research design that many of these strategies imply. The course is appropriate for scholars at all levels involved in planning ethnographic research and will address the concerns of those conducting international/global research as well as those engaged in studies in a single national context.

Workshops

One of the strengths of the educational component of the Annual Meeting is the breadth and variety of workshops offered. These sessions provide opportunities for attendees to update their knowledge and skills in a variety of professional areas. For 2013, workshop topics focus on careers and professional growth, academic department strategies, research skills and major datasets, teaching challenges, funding opportunities and grant writing skills, and enhanced teaching of courses, publishing advice, and more.

All workshops emphasize interaction between leaders and audience, and attendees are encouraged to bring questions or problems for discussion. Every workshop is open to all meeting registrants.

An overview of workshop topics is listed below. Please see the full session listings in the body of the Program Schedule for details.

Hone a skill, push your career to the next level, strengthen your repertoire of teaching strategies, and increase your knowledge: It's all part of the learning curve at the Annual Meeting!

Looking for a way to find colleagues with similar research interests? Section activities offer one convenient avenue for connecting with like-minded scholars. These specialized sessions range in format from formal paper presentations to panels and discussion roundtables. Section-sponsored sessions are open to all meeting registrants.

Sections promote ongoing communication among their members by publishing newsletters, supporting cooperative research ventures, recognizing outstanding work by professionals and students in their specialties, and sponsoring program activities at each Annual Meeting. ASA members with interests in specialized areas of sociological inquiry may join any Section of the Association. Stop by the ASA Membership table in Americas Hall II of the Hilton New York Midtown to browse through recent section newsletters and pick up section membership information. Of course, if you join a section before September 30, your membership will help support that section's program allocation for next year's Annual Meeting.

The number of sessions allocated to each Section is based on the size of the Section membership. For the 52 sections there are a total of 221 sessions/meetings scheduled. Section activities are summarized on the next page for quick reference.

Meeting days are Saturday, August 10; Sunday, August 11; Monday, August 12; and Tuesday, August 13.
Check the daily schedule for reception locations.

Section Council Meetings

The total formal allocation of space for each section is comprised of two parts: (a) one "business" slot for holding a one-hour Council meeting followed by a 40-minute Business meeting; and (b) the earned program session allocation. ASA Council does permit Sections to use their Council meeting time (one hour) for other purposes. However, a Section that chooses to use this option forfeits the services of the ASA Office in the arrangement of an alternate Council meeting time and location. The Council meetings listed below are the extent of the information available at press time. Check at the ASA Meeting Information Desk in Americas Hall II of the Hilton New York Midtown for any updates provided by section chairs during the course of the convention.

- Aging and the Life Course — Sunday, August 11, 7:00-8:15am — Hilton New York Midtown, Hilton Boardroom, Fourth Floor

20th Annual ASA Chair Conference

Interrogating Inequality in Sociology Departments: Identifying Disparities, Ensuring Fair Operating Procedures, Creating a Culture of Inclusion

As sociologists, we are used to studying and teaching about inequality in social arrangements. We easily ask questions about the conditions of inequality in society, the causes of inequality, and the impact of inequality. However, only rarely do we have the time and space to thoughtfully consider the application of this core sociological concept to our own professional milieu.

This year the ASA Department Chairs Conference will take up the challenge offered by the Annual Meeting theme, “Interrogating Inequality,” and use it to think about our own departments. Cecilia Ridgeway, 2013 ASA President, will be the opening keynote speaker, offering her thoughts on how inequality impacts departments of sociology and possible approaches to overcoming disparities, ensuring fair procedures, and building a culture of inclusion.

In addition to plenary presentations, the conference will also include three sessions of concurrent roundtables. Each roundtable will address the general theme as applied to a practical concern, including: strains between full time and contingent faculty, promotion and tenure policies and procedures; minority and first-generation student issues, raising the profile of small departments vis a vis large and better resourced departments, and establishing links between the major and employment. We will also be thinking about linking the micro and macro by examining how national trends in higher education are impacting sociology departments, including discussions of online and hybrid courses and MOOCs and their impact on sociology departments. Topics regarding basic department management will also be covered, including issues such as budgeting and assessment.

Roundtable topics are strategically scheduled to allow Chairs from the full range of academic institutions—from PhD-granting to BA-liberal arts—to find topics in each session that respond to their context.

Year after year, ASA Chairs Conference evaluations indicate that this pre-Annual Meeting event offers a unique opportunity for sociology department leaders to talk with their counterparts in similar departments facing similar challenges, and a valued source of strategic insight and professional renewal.

The entire conference will take place on Friday August 9th, 8:00am-5:00pm. The conference will be held in the Gramercy West Room on the Second Floor of the Hilton New York Midtown.

Preregistration and fee payments are required. Chair Conference attendees must preregister for the Annual Meeting in order to register for this conference. Fees for the Chair Conference are $140 for Chairs of Department Affiliates and $170 for chairs from non-Affiliate departments. The Chair Conference fee includes all Chair Conference materials, continental breakfast and lunch.

Directors of Graduate Study

Teaching Writing in Sociology Graduate Programs: Training the Next Generation

Writing is a crucial skill sociologists must learn. Yet graduate departments have often assumed that students will develop these skills on their own --by taking substantive courses and through the experience of submitting journal manuscripts. Today, a number of developments have made it more important than ever for sociology graduate students to learn to write well.

Upon completing their studies, graduate students enter a job market that often looks very different from the market their faculty advisors encountered when searching for their first job. Students applying for academic jobs may be passed over if they do not already have peer-reviewed publications on their vita. More and more students also pursue careers outside of academe, and need to develop a different set of skills. Finally, in order to make use of digital forms of communication, students require strong writing skills.

This year's Director of Graduate Studies Conference will focus on the role that graduate programs (at both the MA and PhD level) play, and should play in teaching writing, and how they can accommodate the shifting terrain of scholarly communication. With presentations by ASA journal editors, book publishers, and non-academic writers, it will explore the full range of sociological writing, including writing for public sociology in the digital age.

The conference will also include representatives of sociology graduate programs. Conference participants will discuss the writing curriculum in their own departments and brainstorm with DGSs from similar departments regarding steps that could be taken in the short, medium, and long term to make it more wide-ranging and effective.

Directors of Graduate Study (DGS) are important leaders in shaping department policies and opportunities for effective graduate programs. To assist sociologists in the DGS role, the ASA Academic and Professional Affairs Program has planned a series of events on Friday afternoon, August 9.

Fees are $50 for chairs from Department Affiliate departments, and $70 for Chairs from non-affiliate departments. DGS attendees had to preregister for the Annual Meeting in order to register for this conference. The DGS registration fee includes an afternoon beverage break and DGS meeting materials. Only departments that are renewed for the 2012-2013 Academic year are eligible for the Affiliate price. The DGS events begin at 1:30pm in Gramercy East on the Second Floor of the Hilton New York Midtown.

Undergraduate Advisers & Students

Visit the Graduate Programs Poster Area

This dedicated display area features exhibits on graduate training from 40 graduate programs. Participating institutions will display information and provide handouts describing their programs, special emphases, financial aid and admissions criteria, and opportunities to work with faculty researchers and instructors. Information and displays will be available in the exhibit hall located on the Second Floor Promenade of the Hilton New York Midtown throughout the Annual Meeting.

Department representatives will be available to answer questions at 2:30-4:10 pm on Saturday, August 10. This is an excellent opportunity for undergraduate advisors, undergraduate students, and MA-level students to see displays on graduate programs and meet directly with representatives.

Graduate departments that responded to the invitations issued by the ASA Academic and Affairs Program are listed in the program schedule under Informational Poster Session # 85.

Student Forum

The ASA welcomes undergraduate and graduate students at the Annual Meeting. All students who join ASA as student members automatically become members of the Student Forum. Special arrangements for students include discounted registration fees, workshops oriented to issues of interest to students, student paper and roundtable sessions, a reception for students, and admission to the book give-away at the end of the meeting.

Student Forum. The Student Forum is pleased to offer a Professional Development Certificate for its members, based on attendance at a number of particular sessions, events, or workshops. Please visit the ASA Meeting Information desk in Americas Hall II of the Hilton New York Midtown for more details, including the necessary forms and instructions. In addition, the business meeting of the Student Forum will be held on Monday, August 12, at 10:30am–12:10 pm in Concourse C on the Concourse Level of the Hilton New York Midtown.

Orient Yourself to the Meeting. Plan to attend the Welcoming Reception on Thursday night and the Orientation for First Time Attendees on Friday morning to kick off your Annual Meeting experience. Browse thoroughly through the exhibits, posters, and the ASA Bookstore. Don't be shy about asking staff at the ASA Meeting Information Desk for assistance in finding various activities.

Student Reception. All students registered to attend the Annual Meeting are invited to an open student reception on Saturday, August 10, at 6:30-7:30 pm in Mercury Ballroom on the Third Floor of the Hilton New York Midtown.

Graduate Programs in Sociology Displays. At 2:30-4:10 pm on Saturday, August 10, representatives from graduate departments will be available in the Graduate Programs in Sociology Resource area on the Second Floor Promenade of the Hilton New York Midtown to talk with students and undergraduate advisers. See the listing for Session 85 to find out which schools are participating. The resource area will be available for browsing throughout the meeting.

Data Resources and Funding Sessions. Be sure to attend poster session 248 and familiarize yourself with the various funding opportunities and data resources which can advance your work in sociology.

Student Book Give-Away. All students registered to attend the Annual Meeting will receive a ticket to the special book give-away sponsored by ASA exhibitors on Tuesday, August 13, after the exhibit hall has closed.

Student Sessions. The Program Committee allocates up to five session slots each year for student sessions. This year, two paper sessions, two workshop and one roundtable session were organized under Student Forum auspices. For details on these student sessions, locate the listings for sessions 49, 118, 143, 259, and 373, in the Program Schedule.

Whether you are planning to attend graduate school, or are further along and look to employment in sociological practice or the academy, please take a look at the career, professional, and teaching workshops.

Don't let the huge program overwhelm you. Start by looking at the Student Forum sessions noted above and then check the Session Topic Index to identify other sessions in your particular areas of interest.

Film/Video Screenings

NEW – Featured Film Screenings Followed by Discussions with the Film Makers!

Sixteen films have been selected for inclusion in the 2013 film/video screening series, organized by Jaime Hecht, ASA Academic and Professional Affairs Program. For the first time, three of the filmmakers have been invited to lead discussions after the screening of their film regarding the films application as a pedagogical tool to teaching sociology. The films and videos were selected based on their relevance to sociology as well as their potential as a teaching resource for sociology courses. All selected films are closed captioned and no longer than 80 minutes.

Films and Videos to be shown in the daily screening schedule include:

Cracking The Codes. A look into the causes and consequences of systematic racial inequality. Features stories and commentary from activists, scholars, and social justice leaders. Website includes interactive learning modules to apply the film in the classroom. 75 minutes. Copyright 2012. Director Shakti Butler. World Trust Educational Services. www.crackingthecodes.org

Key Concepts: Race, Class, Gender, Inequality

Latinos Beyond Reel. Latinos are the fastest-growing segment of the U.S. population, and among the most diverse -- accounting for one-sixth of all Americans and tracing their origins to more than 20 countries. They are also a rising force in American politics. Yet across the American media landscape the reality and richness of the Latino experience is virtually nowhere to be found. This documentary explores the absence of positive media attention on the Latino community. 61 minutes. Copyright 2012. Directors Miguel Picker and Chyng Sun. Media Education Foundation.

Key Concepts: Media and Society, Latino/a Culture, Race and Ethnicity

Marx Reloaded. A cultural documentary that examines the relevance of German socialist and philosopher Karl Marx's ideas for understanding the global economic and financial crisis of 2008—09. The crisis triggered the deepest global recession in 70 years and prompted the US government to spend more than 1 trillion dollars in order to rescue its banking system from collapse. Today the full implications of the crisis in Europe and around the world still remain unclear. Nevertheless, should we accept the crisis as an unfortunate side-effect of the free market? Or is there another explanation as to why it happened and its likely effects on our society, our economy and our whole way of life? 52 minutes. Copyright 2011. Director Jason Barker. Key Concepts: Marxist Sociology, Theory, Economic Sociology

Mother: Caring For 7 Billion. This documentary breaks a 40-year taboo by bringing to light an issue that silently fuels our most pressing environmental, humanitarian, and social crises- population growth. In 2011 the world population reached 7 billion, a seven-fold increase since the first billion occurred 200 years ago. Since the 1960s the world population has nearly doubled, adding more than 3 billion people. At the same time, talking about population has become politically incorrect because of the sensitivity of the issues surrounding the topic-religion, economics, family planning and gender inequality. 60 minutes. Key Concepts: Demography, Social Problems

Mr. Cao Goes to Washington. Follows the unexpected journey of Rep. Joseph Cao- the first Vietnamese American elected to the US Congress, the only non-white House Republican of the 111th Congress, and the only Republican to vote for the President Obama's health care bill. A former seminarian and an idealistic attorney from a small but well-respected Vietnamese-American neighborhood in New Orleans, Anh "Joseph" Cao enters the political arena hoping to affect greater good. Having never won an election, Cao scores a stunning upset by unseating a nine-term incumbent. 72 minutes. Copyright 2012. Director S. Leo Chang. Walking Iris Media. www.mrcaofilm.com

Key Concepts: Political Sociology, Demography, Race and Ethnicity, Asia and Asian America

Multiracial Identity. Multiracial people are the fastest growing demographic in America, yet there is no official political recognition for mixed-race people. Multiracial Identity explores the social, political, and religious impact of the multiracial movement. 56 minutes. Copyright 2013. Director Brian Chinhema. Bullfrog Films. www.multiracialidentity.com

Key Concepts: Race and Ethnicity, Culture, Identity

Paraiso For Sale. What price would you pay for paradise? And who would you be willing to take it from? The pristine archipelago of Bocas del Toro, Panama attracts retirees and developers from the U.S. with its crystal-clear waters and its island culture. The filmmaker returns to her homeland to document the effects the fast-growing migration is having on the local community. 73 minutes. Copyright 2011. Director Anayansi Prado. Semper Fi: Always Faithful. As a drill instructor he lived and breathed the "Corps" and was responsible for indoctrinating thousands of new recruits with its motto Semper Fidelis or "Always Faithful." When Jerry's nine-year old daughter Janey died of a rare type of leukemia, his world collapsed. As a grief-stricken father, he struggled for years to make sense of what happened. His search for answers led to the shocking discovery of a Marine Corps cover-up of one of the largest water contamination incidents in U.S. history. Semper Fi: Always Faithful follows Jerry's mission to expose the Marine Corps and force them to live up to their motto to the thousands of soldiers and their families exposed to toxic chemicals. His fight reveals a grave injustice at North Carolina's Camp Lejeune and a looming environmental crisis at military sites across the country. 76 minutes. Copyright 2011. Directors Rachel Libert and Tony Hardmon. Bullfrog Films. www.semperfithemovie.com

Key Concepts: Medical Sociology, Public Health, Military Sociology

Sext Up Kids. From thongs and padded bras for 9-year-old girls to "sexting," 24-7 internet porn, and unfiltered social media, kids today are bombarded with commercial sexual appeals like never before. Sext Up Kids explores what this radical transformation of the culture means for young people, parents, and our very notions of childhood. 42 minutes. Copyright 2012. Director Maureen Palmer. Media Education Foundation.

Key Concepts: Sexuality, Gender, Children and Youth, Media and Society

Shift Change. Tells the little known stories of employee owned businesses that compete successfully in today's economy while providing secure, dignified jobs in democratic workplaces. With the long decline in U.S. manufacturing and today's economic crisis, millions have been thrown out of work, and many are losing their homes. The usual economic solutions are not working, so some citizens and public officials are ready to think outside of the box, to reinvent our failing economy in order to restore long term community stability and a more egalitarian way of life. 70 minutes. Copyright 2012. Directors Mark Dworkin and Melissa Young. Bullfrog Films. www.shiftchange.org

Key Concepts: Organizational Culture, Marxist Sociology

Soul Food Junkies. Explores the upsides and downsides of soul food, a quintessential American cuisine. Reveals the historical and social significance of soul food to black cultural identity and its effect on African American health. Soul food is also used as the lens to investigate the dark side of the food industry and the growing food justice movement that has been born in its wake. 64 minutes. Copyright 2012. Director Byron Hurt. Media Education Foundation.

Key Concepts: Sociology of Food, Culture, Race and Ethnicity, Consumers and Consumption

Speciesism: The Movie. Most of the animals used for food in the United States are raised in giant factories hidden deep in remote areas of the countryside. Speciesism: The Movie set out to investigate how animals are being treated behind the closed doors of farms and slaughter plants. In 1975, a young writer published a book arguing that no justifications exist for considering humans more important than members of other species. It slowly began to gain attention. Today, a quickly growing number of prominent individuals and political activists are adopting its conclusions. And, as a result, they rank these animal factories among the greatest evils the world has ever known. 80 minutes. Copyright 2013. Director Mark Devries. Key Concepts: Animals and Society, Consumerism and Consumption, Sociology of Food

The Boy Game. Tackles bullying among boys by exploring the culture of toughness and the silence boys live by. The Boy Game is a 16 minute video and interactive website that targets bullying at its core - the culture of toughness and silence boys live by. Targets need to be protected, absolutely, but rather than vilify bullies, The Boy Game looks to unpack the complex dynamics that lead some boys to bully and the majority to stand watching in silent conflict. 16 minutes. Key Concepts: Gender, Masculinity, Children and Youth, Culture

The Bro Code. An engrossing look at the forces in male culture that condition boys and men to dehumanize and disrespect women. Breaking down a range of contemporary media forms targeted explicitly at young men, The Bro Code teases out the main maxims of “bro culture” and “the bro code,” and examines how this seemingly ironic mentality reinforces misogyny and gender violence in the real world. Whether looking at movies and music videos that glamorize womanizing, pornography that trades in the brutalization of women, comedians who make fun of sexual assault, or the recent groundswell in men’s magazines and cable TV shows that revel in reactionary myths of American manhood, the message uncovered in virtually every corner of our “entertainment” culture is clear: that it’s not only normal -- but cool -- for boys and men to control and humiliate women. 58 minutes. Copyright 2011. Director Thomas Keith. Media Education Foundation.

Key Concepts: Gender, Masculinity, Media and Society, Sexuality

The Domino Effect. Set in Brooklyn, New York, The Domino Effect explores the process of real estate development in New York City. During the last decade the North Brooklyn communities of Williamsburg and Greenpoint have experienced the negative impacts of excessive luxury development and gentrification, more than any other neighborhood in NYC. Told through the voices of longtime residents, the film conveys the personal impact of real estate development in their community while shedding light on issues encountered by residents of cities across the country. 50 minutes. Key Concepts: Urban Planning, Urban and Community Sociology, Demography, Inequality, Stratification

The House I live In. Tracking the history of the War on Drugs leads to conclusions of its fundamental problems and political motivations. This penetrating look inside America’s criminal justice system reveals the profound human rights implications of US Drug Policy. 51 minutes. Copyright 2012. Director Eugene Jarecki. Charlotte Street Films.

Key Concepts: Crime, Law and Deviance, Race, Class, Social Problems

Special Events

Welcoming Reception

All meeting registrants are invited to the Welcoming Reception on Friday, August 9, 9:00–10:30 pm, in the Promenade, on the Third Floor of the Hilton New York Midtown to celebrate the opening of the 108th Annual Meeting. This social hour kicks off at the conclusion of the Opening Plenary and provides opportunities to renew past acquaintances, chat with old friends, and find a newcomer to befriend. New members and first-time meeting attendees are particularly encouraged to come and have fun!

Orientation for First-Time Attendees

If this is the first time you have attended an ASA Annual Meeting, please plan to attend an orientation session at 10:30 am – 12:10 pm on Saturday, August 10, prior to the mid-day Plenary on the first full day of program sessions. This special orientation hour provides the opportunity to meet Association officers and staff and begin networking with professional colleagues. Advice from ASA Officers and experienced attendees will help you chart a course through the myriad activities and substantive attractions.

ASA Secretary Catherine White Berheide and Executive Officer Sally T. Hillsman host this orientation in the Mercury Ballroom on the Third Floor of the Hilton New York Midtown. Pointers on navigating the Annual Meeting will be shared in informal roundtable discussion. First-time attendees who pre-registered should look for a reminder ticket in their badge envelopes as soon as they pick up their program packets and come prepared to ask “What makes it work?”

Student Reception

ASA welcomes the attendance of undergraduate and graduate students at the Annual Meeting. All students registered to attend the Annual Meeting are invited to the Student Reception on Saturday, August 10, at 6:30-7:30 pm, in the Mercury Ballroom on the Third Floor of the Hilton New York Midtown.

Reception for International Scholars

All meeting participants interested in international scholarly collaborations, or in meeting colleagues from other countries and learning about sociology globally, are invited to attend a reception in honor of our international colleagues on Monday, August 12 at 6:30-7:30 pm in Petit Trianon on the Third Floor of the Hilton New York Midtown.

Departmental Alumni Night (DAN)

The Departmental Alumni Night (DAN), now in its 40th year, is a social event held after the first full day of sessions, where attendees can connect with friends and colleagues to reminisce about graduate school days, create new coalitions, and catch up on the latest news.

This traditional gathering will begin at 9:30 pm on Saturday, August 10, in the Promenade on the Third Floor of the Hilton New York Midtown. All meeting attendees are invited to attend this event.

Each graduate department of sociology in the United States and Canada was given the opportunity to sponsor a table to attract alumni and friends. Participating schools are listed below. Tables will also be provided for sociologists in business and industry as well as for international scholars and guests.

Participating departments are:

Brown University
 Cornell University
 Northeastern University
 Syracuse University
 Texas Woman's University & University of North Texas
 University of California-San Diego
 University of California-Santa Cruz
 University of Hawaii-Manoa
 University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign University of Kentucky
 University of Minnesota
 State University of New Jersey–Rutgers

Community College Faculty Breakfast

Colleagues teaching in community colleges are invited to a special bagel breakfast at 7:00 am on Sunday, August 11, in Petit Trianon on the Third Floor of the Hilton New York Midtown. Join colleagues in a series of ice breaker activities and a conversation. Mark your calendar for this early bird event where you can meet other colleagues teaching at community colleges.

In Remembrance

At the beginning of the Presidential Plenary (Sunday, August 11, 4:30-6:30 pm), there will be a Moment of Remembrance to honor those members of the profession, and those close to them, who died during the past year. Names submitted to Footnotes since last year's Annual Meeting are listed below. If you know of others who should be on this list but whose names do not appear below, please contact ASA Meeting Services staff in the Gibson Room on the Second Floor of the Hilton New York Midtown by 5:00 pm on Friday, August 9.

10:00 am Courses

1. Course. Introduction to Social Network Analysis (10:00am-5:30pm)

Hilton New York Midtown, Nassau East, Second Floor

This is a hands on course based around the use of UCINET and NetDraw. It is designed for graduate students and faculty who have never taken a network course before. The goal is to help participants understand the application of network analysis to sociological studies. The course will provide working knowledge of the network concepts and ideas on how to gather network data. Participants will receive hands on experience of analyzing and visualizing real social network data and learn how to calculate and interpret a variety of descriptive network measures.

2. Course. Qualitative Comparative Analysis (QCA) and Fuzzy Sets (10:00am-5:30pm)

Hilton New York Midtown, Nassau West, Second Floor

The analytic challenge of case-oriented research is not simply that the number of cases is small, but that researchers gain useful in-depth knowledge of cases that is difficult to represent using conventional forms (e.g., representations that emphasize the “net effects” of “independent variables”). The researcher is left wondering how to represent knowledge of cases in a way that is meaningful and compact, but which also does not deny case complexity. Set-theoretic methods such as Qualitative Comparative Analysis (QCA), the central focus of this workshop, offer a solution. QCA is fundamentally a case-oriented method that can be applied to small-to-moderate size Ns. It is most useful when researchers have knowledge of each case included in an investigation, there is a relatively small number of such cases (e.g., 10-50), and the investigator seeks to compare cases as configurations. With these methods it is possible to construct representations of cross-case patterns that allow for substantial heterogeneity and diversity. This workshop offers an introduction to the approach and to the use of the software package fsQCA (a free download from www.fsqca.com). Both the crisp (i.e., Boolean) and fuzzy-set versions of the method will be presented. Fuzzy set analysis is gaining popularity in the social sciences today because of the close connections it enables among verbal theory, substantive knowledge (especially in the assessment of degree of set membership), and the analysis of empirical evidence. Fuzzy sets are especially useful in case-oriented research, where the investigator has a degree of familiarity with the cases included in the investigation and seeks to understand cases configurationally—as specific combinations of aspects or elements. Using fuzzy-set methods, case outcomes can be examined in ways that allow for causal complexity, where different combinations of causally relevant conditions combine to generate the outcome in question. Also, with set-theoretic methods it is possible to evaluate arguments that causal conditions are necessary or sufficient. Analyses of this type are outside the scope of conventional analytic methods. Specific topics addressed in the course include: the differences between set-theoretic and correlational methods; conventional crisp sets versus fuzzy sets; the calibration of fuzzy sets; how calibration differs from conventional forms of measurement; analyzing fuzzy set relations; the correspondence between concepts and fuzzy set membership scores; the correspondence between theoretical statements and the analysis of fuzzy set relations; using fuzzy sets to study cases as configurations; and using fuzzy sets to unravel causal complexity, with a special focus on equifinality.

3. Course. Connecting Micro and Macro in Ethnography (1:30-5:30pm)

Hilton New York Midtown, Murray Hill East, Second Floor

Connecting the “micro” to the “macro,” or the local to the global, requires scholars to place observable events in the context of broader and less visible processes. It sometimes also requires us to move from the study of “spaces of place” to what Manuel Castells has called “spaces of flows.” To do this well requires careful case selection and case definition as we seek to clarify how the situations we study will illuminate broader processes and trends. In this course, we will begin with a focus on case selection and research design issues, discussing the difference between generalizable and transferable results. We will then explore a series of methodological strategies for linking “micro” and “macro,” including: (1) nested sampling; (2) ethnographic process-tracing; (3) juxtaposing timelines; (4) mapping commodity chains; (5) mapping other global “flows,” including migrants, discourses, and concepts. We will discuss the merits and special difficulties of the multi-sited research design that many of these strategies imply. The course is appropriate for scholars at all levels involved in planning ethnographic research and will address the concerns of those conducting international/global research as well as those engaged in studies in a single national context.

4. Opening Plenary Session. Inequality and Contemporary Social Protest

Hilton New York Midtown, Grand Ballroom, Third Floor

Session Organizers: Cecilia L. Ridgeway and

President: Cecilia L. Ridgeway, Stanford University

Panel: Barbara Ehrenreich, Author

In recent years, growing inequality in the U.S. has come head-to-head with the worst financial crisis since the Great Depression. Not surprisingly, the resulting social tensions have sparked popular social protests from the left as well as the right. In this session, prominent political observers of these events discuss the social forces behind them. A long time observer of inequality in America and an acute analyst of the power of collective action, Barbara Ehrenreich is the author of such well known books Bait and Switch and Nickel and Dimed. Theda Skocpol is a distinguished political sociologist and scholar of social change and the author, most recently, of The Tea Party and the Remaking of Republican Conservatism. Adding his expertise to the discussion is political sociologist, Douglas McAdam, author of such works as Freedom Summer, Dynamics of Contention, and Putting Movements in Their Place: Explaining Opposition to Energy Projects in the U.S., 2000-2005.

5. Thematic Session. An Injury to One is An Injury to All: Linking Micro and Macro (co-sponsored with Rural Sociological Society)

Session Organizers: Michael D. Schulman, North Carolina State University and Linda Lobao, The Ohio State University

Presider: Michael D. Schulman, North Carolina State University

Is Risk for One a Risk for All? Gender, Context and Scale in Disaster Response and Climate Change Response and Resilience. Ann R. Tickamyer, Pennsylvania State University; Siti Kusujarti, Warren Wilson College

Counter-urbanization and Commuting: Structural and Social Integration in the Urban-rural Interface. David L. Brown, Cornell University; Tony Champion, Newcastle University

Trading Places? Decreasing (Increasing) Murder Rates in Urban (Rural) America, 1975-2000. Space, Incarceration, and Inequality. John Major Eason, Arizona State University

The Carbon Bubble: Climate Change and the Emerging Energy Rift. Brett Clark, University of Utah

This session integrates the themes of the RSS (An Injury to One is An Injury to All: Resistance and Resiliency in An Age of Retrenchment) and the ASA (Interrogating Inequality: Linking Micro and Macro) 2013 Meetings. Presenters will address the structural processes of inequality and the consequences of these processes at different spatial scales such as societies, regions, communities, and individuals—as well as diversity across social groups. The response of social groups to structural inequalities at different scale will also be considered. This includes the roots of social movements in rural and urban communities and the factors in their success and failure. What forms resistance and resiliency promote solidarity and action across class, race, gender, and spatial divisions? By approaching the present historical era of economic downturn and neoliberal governance in terms of an “injury to one is an injury to all” sociologists can advance both scholarly and public sociology agenda directed at creating decent work, decent communities, and decent health for all.

6. Thematic Session. Discrimination Mechanisms and Workplace Transformation

Hilton New York Midtown, Sutton South, Second Floor

Session Organizer: Matt L. Huffman, University of California-Irvine

Presider: Stephen Benard, Indiana University

Panel: Roberto M. Fernandez, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Julie A. Kmec, Washington State University

Elizabeth Hirsh, University of British Columbia

Heather A. Haveman, University of California-Berkeley

George Wilson, University of Miami

Vincent J. Roscigno, The Ohio State University

The papers in this session will unite around the theme of workplace transformation and how it relates to the dynamics of workplace inequality. For example, papers will engage diverse topics including, but not limited to, the link between employers' human resource policies and sex/race discrimination charges, and how changing promotion structures and mobility dynamics influence sex/race differences in labor market outcomes.

7. Thematic Session. Income Inequality: Global, Regional, and National

Hilton New York Midtown, Sutton North, Second Floor

Session Organizer and Presider: Glenn Firebaugh, Pennsylvania State University

Nine Theses about Global Income Inequality. Glenn Firebaugh, Pennsylvania State University

Income Polarization in Affluent Countries. Markus Gangl, J.W.Goethe University Frankfurt am Main

Regional Income Inequality. Jason Beckfield, Harvard University

Discussant: Roberto Patricio Korzeniewicz, University of Maryland-College Park

The massive income inequality seen in the world today is the result of historically rapid and highly uneven economic growth over the past 250 years, as richer regions and countries generally grew faster than poorer regions and countries. In recent decades this pattern has reversed, with the fastest economic growth occurring in large poor countries in Asia. At the same time, income inequality has been rising within many countries (including China and India, where two-fifths of the world's people live). This panel will describe the broad patterns of income convergence and divergence in today's world, and speculate on what lies ahead at the global, regional, and national levels. In addition, panelists will address how regional economic and political integration/disintegration affects income inequality across and within countries in the region, focusing on the European Union – and its possible diminution – as an exemplar.

8. Thematic Session. Politics, the Labor Movement and Inequality in the Contemporary U.S.

Sheraton New York Hotel & Towers, New York East, Third Floor

Session Organizer: Jake Rosenfeld, University of Washington

Presider: Barry Eidlin, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Panel: Paul Frymer, Princeton University

Dorian T. Warren, Columbia University

Jake Rosenfeld, University of Washington

Discussant: Jeff Smith, New School for Social Research

As the labor activist Richard Yeselson recently recounted, "There has never been an advanced capitalist country with as weakened and small a union movement as today's United States." This was not always the case: for decades organized labor in the U.S. helped structure not only economic but also political rewards and opportunities. The dramatic decline of the American labor movement has transformed our politics, by reshaping the electorate and redefining the legislative priorities of our elected officials. This transformation has contributed to both economic and political inequality. This session will explore the intersection of politics, inequality, and a declining labor movement, by focusing on three questions: First, how have our politics been transformed by the decades-long erosion of organized labor? Second, how will labor's decline affect inequality in the future? And finally, is there an institutional alternative to fill organized labor's role in the polity?

9. Thematic Session. Social Networks and Inequality

Session Organizer and Presider: James Moody, Duke University

Panel: Ronald S. Burt, University of Chicago

John Levi Martin, University of Chicago

Brian Uzzi, Northwestern University

Discussant: Ryan A. Light, University of Oregon

Social networks differ from random networks in that social network structures have far greater variance. The variability in network features capture a direct structural feature of inequality that has consequences for actors in the network. Here we explore network inequality, how it develops and why it matters.

10. Special Session. The Political Economy of Gender Inequality in the Middle East

Hilton New York Midtown, Sutton Center, Second Floor

Session Organizer and Presider: Charles Kurzman, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill

Panel: Paul Amar, University of California-Santa Barbara

Yildiz Atasoy, Simon Fraser University

Rania Salem, St. Anthony's College

Nazanin Shahrokni, University of California-Berkeley

Discussant: Frances S. Hasso, Duke University

Gender inequality in the Middle East has been a subject of fascination to Europeans since the 17th century, often focusing on Islamic institutions and beliefs. This panel, by contrast, examines the interaction between gender inequality and political-economic institutions, including neoliberal labor regimes, marriage markets, and the transformation of public space.

11. Regional Spotlight Session. New York City, a New Mayor, and Declining Crime Rates: How to Keep it Going?

Hilton New York Midtown, Concourse G, Concourse Level

Session Organizer and Presider: Michael Jacobson, Vera Institute of Justice

Panel: Franklin Zimring, University of California-Berkeley

Vinny Shiraldi, New York City Probation Commissioner

James Austin, JFA Institute

This panel features a mix of local criminal justice policymakers and criminologists exploring factors, in and outside criminal justice, that may explain New York City's historic crime declines over the last two decades. While the causes of the City's crime decline have been debated among academics and politicians as to who and what should get 'credit,' rigorous analytic attention is less often brought to bear on the "New York City Miracle." In addition to examining social scientific research on recent crime declines, panelists will offer policy advice for New York's next mayor about how to maintain and continue crime reductions and improvements in public safety.

12. Policy and Research Workshop. Geometric Data Analysis: Multiple Correspondence Analysis

Session Organizer and Leader: Brigitte Le Roux, University of Paris-Descartes

Co-Leaders: Johs Hjellbrekke, Universitetet i Bergen

Frédéric Lebaron, Université de Picardie

Pierre Penet, Northwestern University

The objective of the workshop is to introduce Geometric Data Analysis (GDA). In the social sciences, Multiple Correspondence Analysis (MCA) is a statistical technique that first and foremost has become known through the work of the late Pierre Bourdieu (1930-2002), in particular "Distinction" (Bourdieu 1984), "Homo Academicus" (Bourdieu 1988) and "The State Nobility" (Bourdieu 1996). In this approach of Multivariate Statistics, data sets are represented as clouds of points and the interpretation is based on these clouds. As a counterpart to Principal Component Analysis (PCA), a method for the analysis of numerical variables, MCA is a method for the analysis of categorical variables. As such, it is a powerful method in the analysis of questionnaires. Starting with a two-way table, e.g. an Individuals X Questions table, MCA represents data sets as two clouds of points in a multidimensional Euclidean space. By combining MCA with inferential techniques and variance analysis, we arrive at an integrated framework of interpretation that also is known under the name of Geometric Data Analysis (GDA). In this workshop we will address the following issues: • GDA methods will be reviewed with a short historical overview and we will briefly outline its uses in the social sciences. We will introduce MCA as one of the three main paradigms of GDA. Then we will present our leading example and review some methodological issues. • Thereafter, the basic principles of MCA will be presented, starting with the definition of the distance between individuals followed by a discussion of the properties of the clouds of individuals and categories. Then, principal axes, contributions and the different steps in the analysis of a data set will be reviewed. Finally, we will present the extensive analysis of a full-scale study with emphasis on how to construct social spaces. The analyses are conducted using SPAD software.

38. Thematic Session. An Injury to One is An Injury to All: Interrogating Inequalities (co-sponsored with Rural Sociological Society)

Session Organizers: Michael D. Schulman, North Carolina State University and Linda Lobao, The Ohio State University

Presenter: Michael D. Schulman, North Carolina State University

Vulnerability to Negative Health Impacts from the BP Deepwater Horizon Disaster: An Examination of the Influences of Time, Community Attachment, and Natural Resource Employment. Tim Slack, Michael R. Cope, Troy Christopher Blanchard, and Matthew R. Lee, Louisiana State University

Natural Disasters and the Spatial Distribution of Waste. Laura A. McKinney, Tulane University

Right Eating Gone Wrong: Exploring Structural Inequality and Food System Engagement. Jeff S. Sharp, and Rebecca Lorraine Som Castellano, The Ohio State University

This sessions integrates the themes of the RSS (An Injury to One is An Injury to All: Resistance and Resiliency in An Age of Retrenchment) and the ASA (Interrogating Inequality: Linking Micro and Macro) 2013 Meetings. Presenters will address the structural processes of inequality and the consequences of these processes at different spatial scales such as societies, regions, communities, and individuals—as well as diversity across social groups. The response of social groups to structural inequalities at different scale will also be considered. This includes the roots of social movements in rural and urban communities and the factors in their success and failure. What forms resistance and resiliency promote solidarity and action across class, race, gender, and spatial divisions? By approaching the present historical era of economic downturn and neoliberal governance in terms of an “injury to one is an injury to all” sociologists can advance both scholarly and public sociology agenda directed at creating decent work, decent communities, and decent health for all.

39. Thematic Session. Diversity and America's Changing Racial/Ethnic Order: Micro- and Macro-level Processes

Session Organizer and Presider: Jennifer Lee, University of California-Irvine

Intersections of Race and Class in the Twenty-first Century Racial Order. Jennifer L. Hochschild, Harvard University; Vesia Weaver, Yale University

Undocumented Status: The Newest Form of Racialization. Mary C. Waters, Harvard University; Philip Kasinitz, City University of New York-Graduate Center

How the Racial Order Shapes Perceptions of Racial Identification. Aliya Saperstein, Stanford University; Andrew Penner, University of California-Irvine

Generation as Perspective: Comparing the Psychological Experience of First- and Second-Generation Immigrants. Kay Deaux, City University of New York-Graduate Center

The United States is more racially and ethnically diverse than at any point in our history, due, in large part to the post-1965 wave of immigrants from Latin America and Asia. America's newcomers are also diverse along a number of other dimensions, including class, phenotype, and citizenship status. This panel will examine how the racial/ethnic order has changed, through what mechanisms, and the consequences of these changes for both immigrants and native-born Americans. Linking macro- and micro-level approaches, the panelists will draw on a variety of disciplinary and methodological approaches to tackle the complex question of how diversity is changing America's racial/ethnic order.

40. Thematic Session. Neighborhoods, Crime and the Production of Inequality

Session Organizer: Ross L. Matsueda, University of Washington

Presider: Lauren Krivo, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers

Panel: John Hagan, Northwestern University

Christopher R. Browning, The Ohio State University

Charis E. Kubrin, University of California-Irvine

John R. Hipp, University of California-Irvine

Ross L. Matsueda, University of Washington

This session will examine the relationship between inequality and neighborhood rates of crime. John Hagan will discuss inequality and neighborhood crime in the streets of Baghdad, Iraq. Christopher Browning will present initial findings from an innovative study of neighborhood crime using information gleaned from cell phones. Charis Kubrin and John Hipp will present results from a spatial analysis of fringe banking and neighborhood crime rates across three cities. Finally, Ross Matsueda will discuss a multi-level model of social inequality and crime rates.

41. Thematic Session. Studying Social Dynamics in the Digital Age*Hilton New York Midtown, Rendezvous Trianon, Third FloorSession Organizer and Presider: Matthew J. Salganik, Princeton UniversityPanel: Duncan J. Watts, Microsoft Research*Lada Adamic*, University of Michigan-Ann Arbor*Damon M. Centola*, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

In the last decade we have witnessed the birth and rapid growth of Wikipedia, Google, Facebook, iPhones, Wi-Fi, YouTube, Twitter, and numerous other marvels of the digital age. In addition to changing the way we live, these tools---and the technological revolution they are a part of---have fundamentally changed the way that we can learn about the social world. We can now collect data about human behavior on a scale never before possible and with tremendous granularity and precision. The ability to collect and process "big data" enables researchers to address core questions in the social sciences in new ways and opens up new areas of inquiry. This panel will highlight research using these new sources of data to understand social dynamics.

42. Thematic Session. The Changing Employment Contract/Changing Labor Market*Hilton New York Midtown, Sutton South, Second FloorSession Organizer and Presider: Vicki Smith, University of California-DavisAlternative Frames for Thinking about Work and the Employment Relationship. John Budd, University of MinnesotaThe Rise of Job Uncertainty and the New Worlds of Work and Care. Kathleen Gerson, New York UniversityEmployment Contracts in Transition? A Cross-national Perspective. Heidi Gottfried, Wayne State UniversityLoyalty as Anachronism: Why Go the Extra Mile? Paul M. Hirsch, Northwestern UniversityDiscussant: Arne L. Kalleberg, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill

This session brings together five experts who are known for their innovative research on ways in which changing employment contracts are changing work, careers, and personal life, and creating new forms of inequality. The participants have made significant contributions to our understanding of employment precariousness (the rise of contingent and temporary work, the bifurcation of jobs into "good" and "bad," boundaryless careers, the erosion of job security for many, the shift of risk from employers to workers), transformation in careers, shifts in gender and household relations, and the meaning of work in an era of insecurity. This panel explores new ways of thinking about these features of work and employment, focusing on their social, philosophical, gendered, and experiential dimensions.

Mears*, Boston University*Vera L. Zolberg*, New School for Social Research

Is New York still a center of cultural innovation, or is it just an expensive entrepreneurial venue for global billionaires and celebrities to buy art and dine out? Join us for a sociological tour of the city's cultural ferment and its present state of exaltation and anxiety.

45. Departmental Management and Leadership Workshop. Finding the Balance - A Panel Discussion about Curriculum Design in Departments with Soc and CrimHilton New York Midtown, Concourse C, Concourse LevelSession Organizer and Leader: Dennis W. MacDonald, Saint Anselm CollegePanel: Steven E. Barkan, University of Maine*Prabha Unnithan*, Colorado State University*Margaret Weigers Vitullo*, American Sociological Association

The panelists will summarize some of the issues characterizing the Sociology-Criminology/CJ relationship. The main purpose of the workshop is to provide an opportunity for participants to identify and discuss curricular and related issues and explore ways of addressing them.

46. Policy and Research Workshop. NSF Funding Opportunities Merit Review Criteria and Proposal Preparation for Professional Sociologists and Graduate Students

Session Organizer and Leader: Patricia E. White, National Science Foundation

Co-Leaders: Jennifer Earl, University of Arizona

Michele Lamont, Harvard University

Murray Webster, University of North Carolina-Charlotte

This workshop targets graduate students, faculty, and researchers who are new at proposal writing and submission. Representatives from the National Science Foundation (NSF), its research review committees, and grantees will discuss the proposal development process, elements of a competitive proposal, proposal submission and review, and funding opportunities for sociological research. The format will be interactive, allowing for audience questions and participation. The session is interactive; audience participation is encouraged. Attend the Research Opportunities and Data Resources poster session for one-on-one discussions with NSF Program Officers.

47. Teaching Workshop. What If Students Asked the Questions? Student-Facilitated Policy Discussion in the University Classroom

Hilton New York Midtown, Concourse E, Concourse Level

Session Organizer and Leader: Suzanne R. Goodney Lea, Interactivity Foundation

Co-Leader: Taiyi Sun, Boston University

This workshop helps faculty re-imagine their classrooms by introducing a pedagogy developed by the Interactivity Foundation (www.interactivityfoundation.org). Instead of relying on teacher-driven discussion questions, faculty are encouraged to turn their classroom on its head by teaching students to ask more questions and to thereby facilitate more of their own learning. As faculty take more of an observational/coaching role, they gain a renewed sense of the perspectives and knowledge that their students bring to the classroom. IF is a non-partisan, non-advocacy foundation that engage students and citizens in democratic, small-group discussions that explore contrasting approaches to social problems. The IF process correlates empirically with less conflict in the classroom when talking about sensitive topics like diversity, and also to better outcomes with regard to student satisfaction, learning, and interaction. We employ a hands-on, "learning by doing" approach to explore (1) how facilitation transforms the classroom-- whether it is the instructor or the students who are doing the facilitating, (2) how to coach students to facilitate their own small-group exploratory learning, (3) how to integrate course content into a classroom that emphasizes student-facilitated learning, (4) how to create measurable objectives and assess student achievement in this style of classroom, and (5) how to manage the most common problems that emerge as students begin to facilitate their own learning. We aspire to give participants a good, working sense of how this model works, why it works, and how they can implement it in their classrooms. Resources and follow-up consultation are provided by the Interactivity Foundation.

72. Plenary Session. Micro Processes as Mechanisms of Inequality*Hilton New York Midtown, Grand Ballroom, Third FloorSession Organizer and Presider: Cecilia L. Ridgeway, Stanford UniversityPanel: Lawrence D. Bobo, Harvard University*Shelley J. Correll*, Stanford University*Annette Lareau*, University of Pennsylvania*Jane D. McLeod*, Indiana University

Processes at multiple levels of analysis typically work together to support or undermine durable patterns of inequality between individuals and between social groups. Our task is to locate the key junctures among these multilevel processes that provide the levers by which different sorts of inequalities among people and groups are systematically made or unmade in the contemporary context. As part of this effort, this session focuses our attention on the less familiar micro level of the individual in social context. The first set of speakers address micro-level mechanisms that play significant roles in creating, maintaining, and/or changing racial, gender, and class based inequality. A final speaker looks across the micro-mechanisms that operate in these different types of inequalities to offer a more general analysis of the nature and significance of micro processes in the multilevel production, reproduction, and change of contemporary patterns of inequality.

73. Presidential Panel. Cultural Meanings of Gender and InequalityHilton New York Midtown, Rendezvous Trianon, Third FloorSession Organizer and Presider: Shelley J. Correll, Stanford UniversityPanel: Catherine Albiston, University of California-Berkeley*Laurie Rudman*, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers*Mary Blair-Loy*, University of California-San Diego*Barbara Jane Risman*, University of Illinois-Chicago

What is the relationship between cultural beliefs about gender, work, family and the durability of gender inequality? How do cultural beliefs interact with socioeconomic processes to foster the creation, maintenance and change of gender inequality? How can cultural beliefs themselves be changed to promote equality? In this session, gender scholars will share their ideas about the cultural foundations of gender inequality, how those foundations endure, and how they can be eroded to foster a more gender equitable society.

74. Thematic Session. Criminal Justice*Processing: Turning Points in Inequality*Hilton New York Midtown, Sutton South, Second FloorSession Organizer: Alexes Harris, University of WashingtonPresider: Aaron Kupchik, University of DelawareMinor Crimes, Epic Records, and Inequalities in Employment and Health. Christopher Uggen, University of MinnesotaThe Social Life of Criminalized Young Adults. Alice Goffman, University of Wisconsin-MadisonThe Moral Career of the Snitch. Jooyoung Kim Lee, University of TorontoA Perverse Relationship: Criminal Justice's Felons, Clients and Subjects in an Era of Mass Conviction. Alexes Harris, University of WashingtonDiscussant: Aaron Kupchik, University of Delaware

This session will spotlight recent work on the role of criminal justice processing on the production of inequality and as a turning point within the life course. In response to the massive rise in conviction and incarceration rates over the last thirty-eight years, many sociologists and criminologists have labeled the criminal justice system as a social stratifying institution. Much of the current research, for example, on "collateral consequences" highlights the ways societal stigma has impacted individuals' ability to reintegrate into society (e.g., employers' attitudes and landlord's discrimination). In contrast, this panel investigates the ways the criminal justice system itself specifically generates inequality by, for example, placing offenders in a liminal legal status, assessing unfeasible monetary sanctions, keeping probationers under constant surveillance and control, and even forcing "suspect" victims to compromise their safety and undermine their social relationships within their neighborhoods. Panelists will highlight their research investigating formal and informal policies, laws, and practices of the criminal justice system that legally, socially and emotionally transform citizens for the remainder of their lives.

75. Thematic Session. International Organization of Stratification: How INGOs Matter for Multilevel Inequality

Sheraton New York Hotel & Towers, New York West, Third Floor

Session Organizer and Presider: Jason Beckfield, Harvard University

Panel: Ann Swidler, University of California-Berkeley
Thomas Hannan, University of California-Los Angeles
Susan Cotts Watkins, University of California-Los Angeles
Evan Schofer, University of California-Irvine
Jocelyn S. Viterna, Harvard University
Jackie Smith, University of Pittsburgh

International Non-Governmental Organizations (INGOs) are increasingly prevalent in societies around the world, and play a key role in structuring world society. INGOs create and carry various elements of "world culture," and involvement in such organizations is associated with a range of changes in multiple policy domains, from human rights to the political incorporation of subordinated groups to environmental policy. While research has focused on the largely progressive political effects of INGOs, especially in the areas of human rights liberalization, less work has been devoted to connecting such changes to social inequality. This thematic session considers the consequences of INGOs for social inequality, at the global, regional, national, and community levels of analysis. One aim of the session is to illuminate the myriad mechanisms through which INGOs ameliorate and exacerbate social inequality.

76. Thematic Session. Interrogating Inequalities within Sociology (co-sponsored with the Committee on the Status of Women in Sociology)

Session Organizer and Presider: Alexandra Kalev, Tel Aviv University

Panel: Eduardo Bonilla-Silva, Duke University
Joey Sprague, University of Kansas
Rodney D. Coates, Miami University
Roberta M. Spalter-Roth, American Sociological Association

Discussant: Erin Leahey, University of Arizona

For sociology as a discipline to play a role in interrogating and remedying inequality it needs the widest possible range of constituencies, paradigms, and methods. The session will showcase critical analysis of inequality about sociology and its effects on our paradigms, concepts, methods, and findings.

77. Thematic Session. Legal Rights and Inequality

Session Organizer and Presider: Robin Stryker, University of Arizona

Panel: Lauren B. Edelman, University of California-Berkeley
Michael McCann, University of Washington
Heinz Klug, University of Wisconsin-Madison
Varun Gauri, World Bank
Robin Stryker, University of Arizona

There has been lively debate about whether and under what conditions, law and particularly codified legal rights and attendant rights discourses, can promote greater economic and social equality. There is substantial scholarship suggesting how legal rights create, extend, reinforce or at best leave intact class, race, gender and other inequalities and principles of exclusion. But there also is substantial scholarship specifying how, and under what conditions, provision of new legal rights to disadvantaged or marginalized populations can mitigate or undermine such inequalities and exclusions, contributing to progressive social change. Typically questions of the relationship between legal rights and durable inequalities are addressed separately, by scholars of civil and political rights (CPR) on the one hand, and scholars of economic, social and cultural right (ESCR) on the other. This panel brings together scholars focusing on CPR with scholars focusing on ESCR, and scholars focusing on the US with scholars focusing on the global arena. Panelists are all senior scholars, but are drawn from diverse disciplines, including sociology, law, economics and political science, and from within and outside the academy. They will draw on extant research, including their own, to reflect on debates about the relationship between legal rights and inequality, elucidating key issues and staking out different positions in these debates. Each panelist will speak for about 10 minutes, after which we will open the floor for questions and broader discussion among the panelists and members of the audience.

78. Special Session. Contemporary Transformations in the Forms and Content of Religion (co-sponsored with the Association for the Sociology of Religion)

Session Organizer: Fred Kniss, Eastern Mennonite University

Presider: Kelly Haesung Chong, University of Kansas

What's Old and Social about Spirituality and Why It Matters for Sociology. Courtney J. Bender, Columbia University

80. Regional Spotlight Session. Sandy, Climate Change, and the Future of New York City

Session Organizer and Presider: Eric Klinenberg, New York University

Panel: Sherri Fink, Journalist

Klaus Jacob, Columbia University

Eric Klinenberg, New York University

Harvey L. Molotch, New York University

In recent years, sociologists have begun to explore the human consequences of climate change, particularly disasters. This panel explores the reasons why New York City's social and physical infrastructures were so vulnerable to Superstorm Sandy and examines whether and how they can be strengthened. The discussion will focus on but also transcend New York City, since today all cities must adapt for a future of more extreme weather events.

81. Professional Development Workshop. Advice on Seeking Promotion to Full Professor

Hilton New York Midtown, Concourse C, Concourse Level

Session Organizer and Leader: Julia McQuillan, University of Nebraska-Lincoln

Panel: Dana M. Britton, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers

Arthur L. Greil, Alfred University

Samuel Rosenberg, Ramapo College

Barbara Feldman, New Jersey City University

Judith A. Howard, University of Washington

The Paths to Promotion Workshop will provide concrete suggestions to prepare for a successful promotion to full professor experience. Panelists have all either done research on the promotion to full process or have been chairs or deans of Sociology departments. They will help participants to make career decisions and prepare materials for promotion to full professor – clarifying an often murky process. Workshop panelists come from a variety of institution types. After brief general suggestions that will be helpful for faculty at any type of institution, participants will have time for small group discussion with a panelist who is at similar institution to their own. Participants are welcome to bring their CV to get feedback about what they can do to increase their chances of promotion to full.

82. Policy and Research Workshop. Interdisciplinary Research in the Social & Behavioral Science: Project Conceptualization to Research Outcomes

Co-Leaders: R. Saylor Breckenridge, Wake Forest University

Katherine Meyer, The Ohio State University

Joane Nagel, University of Kansas

Jan E. Stets, University of California-Riverside

In Fall 2012 The National Science Foundation (NSF) initiated a call for interdisciplinary research in the social and behavioral sciences. The aim of the competition is to promote the conduct of interdisciplinary research by teams of investigators in the social and behavioral sciences. Supported research will integrate theoretical approaches and methodologies from multiple disciplinary fields and yield generalizable insights and information that will advance basic knowledge and capabilities across multiple disciplinary fields. Workshop participants will share their experience in developing, reviewing and securing funding for projects that involve multiple disciplines as well as research findings reflective of the interdisciplinary approach. The session is interactive; audience participation is encouraged.

83. Policy and Research Workshop. Using Census Microdata for Quantitative Research

Session Organizer and Leader: Katie Genadek, University of Minnesota

This workshop will cover the Integrated Public Use Microdata Series (IPUMS), the world's largest collection of publicly available individual level census data. These data include US Decennial Census data, American Community Survey data and Census data from more than 70 countries. We will explain how the datasets were created and integrated, demonstrate how they can be obtained free of charge through the web-based extraction system, and give examples of using the data in sociological research. For more information on the IPUMS, go to www.ipums.org.

84. Teaching Workshop. The Sociology of Effective Lecturing

Session Organizer and Leader: Diane Pike, Augsburg College

Co-Leader: Daniel F. Chambliss, Hamilton College

Admitting to being a poor lecturer might be akin to acknowledging that one is a bad driver or terrible at sex—no one wants to go there. If an instructor can't lecture effectively, there's a core problem no matter how many small group exercises, videos, or pair-shares he and she includes. In other words, faculty need to talk in learning settings and they need to do it as successfully as possible. Whether a formal lecture or a didactic section of a longer class session, lecturing is a skill none of us should take for granted. Please join us for a high engagement session on strengthening this core practice.

109. Thematic Session. Childhood Poverty Hilton New York Midtown, Sutton North, Second Floor

Session Organizer and Presider: Colleen M. Heflin, University of Missouri-Columbia

Panel: John Iceland, Pennsylvania State University
Daniel T. Lichter, Cornell University

Sandra K. Danziger, University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

Currently one in five children in the United States is living in poverty, creating cognitive dissonance with notions of equality of opportunity. This session will explore the role of child poverty in the process of social stratification, evaluate several explanations for high child poverty, and identify possible public policy solutions that could be implemented to reduce child poverty.

110. Thematic Session. Credit and Inequality: Lessons from Comparative and Historical Research

Session Organizer and Presider: Sarah Quinn, University of Washington

Panel: Fred Block, University of California-Davis

Alya Guseva, Boston University

Marion Fourcade, University of California-Berkeley

Kieran Healy, Duke University

Monica Prasad, Northwestern University

Akos Rona-Tas, University of California-San Diego

Discussant: Bruce G. Carruthers, Northwestern University

This session will consider the relationship between credit and inequality from the perspective of comparative and historical research. Through an examination of emergent credit card markets, comparative welfare states, and more, panelists will explore how inequality shapes credit markets and is shaped by credit markets in turn.

111. Thematic Session. Inequality in China Sheraton New York Hotel & Towers, New York East, Third Floor

Session Organizer and Presider: Lingxin Hao, Johns Hopkins University

Hindered Progress: Education and the Perils of Poverty among China's Rural Youth. Emily Carroll Hannum, University of Pennsylvania; Jennifer H. Adams, Stanford University

The Structure of High Income Inequality in China. Yu Xie, University of Michigan-Ann Arbor; Xiang Zhou, University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

Discussant: Deborah S. Davis, Yale University

The emerging patterns of rising inequality and its institutional sources during the rapid market and social transformation in China are important topics of sociology. The focus will be placed on inequality in educational opportunity, socioeconomic attainment, and intergenerational mobility as shaped by the persistent, caste-like stratification institution (household registration, or hukou) and newly developed economic institutions during the reform era. This panel will bring together established, active leaders in the field to provide the research community with the conceptual and empirical vigor in their on-going research projects and future research agenda.

112. Thematic Session. Space, Opportunity and Life Chances

Session Organizer: David L. Brown, Cornell University

Presider: Catherine White Berheide, Skidmore College

Panel: Linda Lobao, The Ohio State University

John R. Logan, Brown University

Wendy Wolford, Cornell University

Discussant: David L. Brown, Cornell University

There has been a significant increase of interest among sociologists in understanding the mechanisms by which spatial structures limit or facilitate opportunities and social well-being. Increased interest in space and social well-being results from advances in social theory originating in sociology and in other disciplines such as geography and regional economics as well as the development of more powerful analytical techniques such as GIS, spatial statistics and multi-level modeling. While social scientists generally agree that one's place or residence or/and work affects one's opportunities and life chances, significant questions remain regarding the causal mechanisms that transmit place attributes to unequal outcomes. Are spatial differences simply reflections of the attributes of people living in various types of places; do spatial structures themselves constrain and facilitate opportunity; or/and do individual or household-level resources derive more or less return depending on where one lives and works? The papers to be presented in this thematic session examine these questions at various spatial levels in the US and internationally.

Author: Myra Marx Ferree, University of Wisconsin-Madison

116. Policy and Research Workshop. A Primer on the Wisconsin Longitudinal Study: Over 50 Years of Social Data and Newly Available Genetic Data

Session Organizer and Leader: Pamela Herd, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Co-Leader: Carol Lynn Roan, University of Wisconsin-Madison

The Wisconsin Longitudinal Study is an important data source for researchers interested in examining aging in the context of the life course. The study is a sample of one in three Wisconsin high school graduates, and a selected sibling, from the class of 1957. WLS is unique among major social scientific resources for the length with which it has followed a large population-based cohort sample and that it includes siblings. Recently available DNA data can be merged with fifty years of social data. The addition of genetic data allows new analyses linking genotypic, biomedical, psychosocial, and life course outcomes in novel ways. The data cover nearly every aspect of the participants' lives from early life socioeconomic background, schooling, family and work to health, social participation, civic engagement, well-being, and cognition. The study also has a wealth of unique data including examples such as administrative IQ scores from high school, information collected from high school yearbooks that include measures of attractiveness, proxy measures for obesity, and complete lists of student activities for all respondents. Examples of administrative data include Medicare records, Social Security records, and resource data on primary and secondary schools attended by participants. This session will introduce the study to researchers who are not familiar with the data by providing an overview of the study as well as practical information on the structure of the data.

117. Teaching Workshop. Making Students Count: Innovations in Undergraduate Research, Publication, and Teaching

Hilton New York Midtown, New York Suite, Fourth Floor

Session Organizers: Mikaila Mariel Lemonik Arthur, Rhode Island College and Jeneve R. Brooks, Troy University

Leader: Mikaila Mariel Lemonik Arthur, Rhode Island College

Co-Leader: Jeneve R. Brooks, Troy University

Panel: Katherine B. Novak, Butler University

Ginger E. Macheski, Valdosta State University

Jason Patch, Roger Williams University

Kristenne Marie Robison, Westminster College

Amy Elizabeth Traver, City University of New York-

Queensborough Community College

This workshop is designed for those who are interested in involving undergraduate students in more rigorous projects that can hone their skills in research, publication, and teaching. Participants will discuss different models for involving students in these projects and will consider the risks and benefits of doing so, with the goal of learning from one another's experiences and developing a set of best practices for mentoring promising undergraduates.

118. Student Forum Workshop. Coping with Stress at the Graduate Level

Session Organizers: Marcus L. Pruitt, University of Central Florida; Nate Breznau, Bremen International Graduate School of Social Sciences; and Crystal Bedley, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers

Panel: Crystal Marie Fleming, State University of New York-Stony Brook

Valerie Kim Bonner, Temple University

Melissa Z. Savlov, University of California-Riverside

Dara Elizabeth Naphan, University of Nevada-Reno

Michael Juan Chavez, California State Polytechnic University-Pomona

134. Thematic Session. Conceptualizing Inequality: Processes and Paradoxes

Session Organizer and President: Jane D. McLeod, Indiana University

Panel: Joya Misra, University of Massachusetts-Amherst
Timothy P. Moran, State University of New York-Stony Brook
Michael L. Schwalbe, North Carolina State University

Sociology offers many different conceptualizations of the processes that create and maintain inequality. This interactive session features panelists from different intellectual traditions who will discuss the challenges and opportunities of reaching across intellectual divides to understand how inequality is produced and reproduced across different structures, contexts, and situations. Three questions will guide the panelists' remarks: • How do you conceptualize inequality? • How do national and international inequalities in political and economic power produce consequences at more local levels? • What paradoxes of inequality do you see? Following brief presentations by the panelists, audience members will be invited to work in small groups to consider whether there are fundamental, generic processes that produce and reproduce inequality regardless of the type of inequality at issue (and, if so, what they are) or whether it all "just depends" (and, if so, on what). Small groups will have an opportunity to share their conversations with the larger group throughout the session. Panelists will close the session by reflecting on the groups' comments and the challenges and opportunities they suggest for fresh insight into the nature of inequality and the processes that support it.

135. Thematic Session. Does Having Children Make You Poor?

Session Organizer: Kathryn J. Edin, Harvard University
President: Kelly Musick, Cornell University

His Gain, Her Pain? The Motherhood Penalty and the Fatherhood Premium within Coresidential Couples. Alexandra A. Killewald, Harvard University; Javier Garcia-Mangano, University of Maryland-College Park

What does Early and Unplanned Fertility Cost Women and Men, and What Can We Do about It? Ronald Mincy, Columbia University

Will Kids Make Me Poor? Prospective Views on the Price of Parenthood among Disadvantaged Youth. Kathryn J. Edin, Holly Michelle Wood, Geniece Crawford, and Monica C. Bell, Harvard University

Employment and Income Changes Associated with Parenthood. Christine M. Percheski, Northwestern University

How do the fatherhood premium and the motherhood penalty sort out among co-residential couples? Is her pain his gain? And what demographic groups are the winners and losers once the household math is done (premium minus penalty). What about for America's most vulnerable mothers and fathers, who generally give birth outside of marriage and raise their children while living apart? What policy implications flow from what we know? And how do we implement them, given the political landscape today? How do teens growing up in disadvantaged circumstances, both boys and girls, perceive the price of parenthood before they have a child—what do they think the stakes of early fertility are? This session addresses each question with fresh data and new ideas.

136. Thematic Session. Inequality at the Bar
Sheraton New York Hotel & Towers, Empire East, Second Floor

Session Organizers: Susan S. Silbey, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Carroll Seron, University of California-Irvine
 Presider: Carroll Seron, University of California-Irvine
 Panel: John Skrentny, University of California-San Diego
Geoff K. Ward, University of California-Irvine
Amy Farrell, Northeastern University
Kitty C. Calavita, University of California-Irvine
Valerie Jenness, University of California-Irvine
Catherine Lee, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers
 Discussant: Osagie Obasogie, University of California-Hastings College of the Law and University of California-San Francisco
 The law, in its majestic equality, forbids the rich as well as the poor to sleep under bridges, to beg in the streets, and to steal bread." This provocative quotation by Anatole France remains prescient and frames the sociology of law. In this panel we examine multiple ways in legal practices resist or reproduce the forces of social inequality.

137. Thematic Session. Queering Marriage or Marrying Heteronormativity? Debating Same Sex Marriage

 Session Organizer and Presider: Verta A. Taylor, University of California-Santa Barbara Evolution, Revolution: American's Changing View Regarding Same-Sex Marriage. Brian Powell, Indiana University
 Odd Couples: Gay Marriage, Mainstream Consensus and Queer Resistance in Scandinavia. Jens Rydstrom, Lund University-Sweden
 Gay but not Queer: Academic Misrecognition of the Lesbian and Gay Marital Subject. Adam Isaiah Green, University of Toronto
 Marrying for the Kids: How Insider Perspectives have Changed Marriage Equality Tactics. Katrina E. Kimport, University of California-San Francisco
 Academic Research and Researchers in the Policy and Legal Debate on Same-Sex Marriage. Lee Badgett, University of Massachusetts-Amherst
 The Final Frontier? Same-Sex Marriage and the Future of the LGBT Movement. Mary Bernstein and Nancy A. Naples, University of Connecticut
 Attitudes toward gays and lesbians have changed so much over the past decade that more than half of Americans think that being gay is morally acceptable and that gay and lesbian couples should have the right to legally marry. Same-sex marriage, nevertheless, remains one of the most contentious issues in American society and is illegal in most states. The papers in this session will examine the debate over same-sex marriage among the general public, as well as among gay and lesbian activists who remain divided over the issue, concentrating on the U.S., Scandinavia, and Australia. The session will consider the impact of social movements, activists, and academic experts on shifts in public opinion, the law, and public policy pertaining to same-sex marriage.

138. Thematic Session. Racial Disparities in Health

 Session Organizer: David R. Williams, Harvard University
 Presider: Pamela Braboy Jackson, Indiana University
 Racial Discrimination and the Health of African Americans. Tene T. Lewis, Emory University
 Migration, SES and Health: Challenges and Opportunities. David T. Takeuchi, University of Washington
 Place and Not Race is the Driver of Racial Disparities in Health. Thomas A. LaVeist, Johns Hopkins University
 Discussant: Pamela Braboy Jackson, Indiana University
 Large racial inequalities exist in the onset, course and outcomes of illness. This session highlights recent scholarship on discrimination, migration and residential segregation to shed light on the micro and macro determinants of these inequalities. Racial discrimination is positively related to SES, adversely related to health and accounts for part of the residual effect of race after adjustment for SES. Psychologist Tené Lewis has identified specific physiological processes (such as coronary calcification and inflammation) that are triggered by the experience of discrimination. The session also considers how migration status combines in complex ways with SES upon arrival in the U.S. and socioeconomic mobility over time to affect the trajectories of immigrant health. Other recent research documents that place and not race is a driver of racial inequalities in health. In fact, in the rare instances where whites live in similar residential conditions as African Americans, racial inequalities in health are markedly diminished or nonexistent. The discussion will focus on the opportunities for sociologists to help build the science base to inform optimal interventions to dismantle racial inequalities in health.

139. Thematic Session. Social Media and Social Inequalities

141. Professional Development Workshop. Flourishing in a Liminal Zone: Career Advice for Adjuncts

Session Organizer and Leader: Andrea D. Miller, Webster University

Panel: Marisa Camille Allison, George Mason University
Rebecca Bach, Duke University

Suzanne B. Maurer, Delaware County Community College

According to a 2012 report published by The Chronicle of Higher Education, over two-thirds of college faculty hold adjunct, temporary or contingent, non-tenure track positions. Moreover, the American Association of University Professors reminds us that when graduate students are included in the numbers, the ratio of contingent to full-time faculty becomes even more marked. Sociology is no exception to these trends. This workshop provides attendees with the opportunity to find solution-oriented strategies to help navigate the ever-increasing numbers of contingent faculty on university campuses. Participants will speak about their own strategies as well as successful attempts to unionize contingent faculty. All of the participants are currently in contingent, non-tenured, or adjunct positions at a variety of universities. Attendees at this workshop can expect to share their own experiences while also learning strategies to navigate this ever-evolving landscape.

142. Policy and Research Workshop. Status of the Job Market for New PhDs

Session Organizer and Leader: Roberta M. Spalter-Roth, American Sociological Association

As with other professional associations we are concerned about the future of our discipline and profession. If there are no jobs for new PhDs the discipline will not renew itself and ultimately its perspectives, understandings and modes of analyses will fade or be usurped by other disciplines. The purpose of this workshop is to provide information about the status of the job market to faculty members, to directors of graduate studies, and to recent PhDs or to PhD candidates who are concerned about their futures. We'll present the findings from the 2012 survey of 2011-2012 jobs. We'll provide information about the prime time for hiring, the most advertised specialties, type of departments in which jobs are located, and other disciplines advertising for sociologists. Along with these issues, workshop participants can discuss job search strategies that improve competitiveness; views of applied, policy, and research positions; and what additional information would be useful to candidates.

172. Presidential Panel. Grappling with Inequality: What Economics, Psychology, Political Science, and Sociology have to Say about Rising Inequality in the United States

Panel: Susan T. Fiske, Princeton University

This panel aims to interrogate what social science can teach us about rising inequality in the United States. The panel will feature the perspectives of prominent representatives from each of the social sciences whose work has shaped the debate on these important questions. Why have those at the top of the distribution secured such an unequal share of economic growth? What role do politics play in shaping patterns of inequality? Do the poor or working class have any voice in contemporary debates about inequality? In what ways do the microdynamics of class play out in interactions, attributions, and affinities? In dialogue with one another, the representatives of these four disciplines will grapple with these questions and shed light on the diverse but intersecting perspectives of their fields.

173. Thematic Session. Overwork and Underwork: Inequalities and Availability of Work

Session Organizer: Kathleen Gerson, New York University

Presider: Philip N. Cohen, University of Maryland-College Park

Panel: Janet Gornick, City University of New York-Graduate Center

Jerry A. Jacobs, University of Pennsylvania

Joya Misra, University of Massachusetts-Amherst

Discussant: Philip N. Cohen, University of Maryland-College Park

The growing divide between overly-demanding jobs for some and a lack of job opportunities for others has created new forms of inequality as well as increasing conflicts between work and private life. These important social shifts have also generated a range of vibrant threads in an expanding web of research on work and family issues. In this session, we will focus on how changes in the availability, experience, and rewards of paid and unpaid work are shaping – and reshaping – inequality between men and women and conflicts between work and family life in the U.S. and cross-nationally. The panel will examine the economic, demographic, and cultural shifts that have changed the nature of jobs and the boundaries between home and work; and it will explore the policy implications for workers and their families.

174. Thematic Session. Revisiting the 2003 ASA Race Statement

Session Organizer: Nancy Lopez, University of New Mexico

Panel: David R. Williams, Harvard University

Michael Omi, University of California-Berkeley

Lynn Weber, University of South Carolina

Felice J. Levine, American Educational Research Association

Deborah K. King, Dartmouth College

Do we still need to collect and analyze data on “race” and ethnicity at the individual, institutional, national and global levels? On the ten-year anniversary of the 2003 ASA Statement on “The Importance of Collecting Data and Doing Social Scientific Research on Race” we reconvene a critical mass of the original members of ASA Taskforce to reflect on the impact and relevance of the statement for the interrogation of inequalities in our increasing diverse and complex local and global contexts.

175. Thematic Session. Scientific Knowledge and the Reproduction of Inequality

Session Organizer and Presider: Ann J. Morning, New York University

Panel: Sheila Jasanoff, Harvard University

Steven Epstein, Northwestern University

Dorothy Roberts, University of Pennsylvania

Joan H. Fujimura, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Despite idealized images of science, it is no stranger to inequality. Not only has scientific knowledge been wielded as a tool to introduce and legitimize social stratification, it is itself the fruit of grossly unequal societies. Science is intertwined with hierarchy in myriad domains, including gender, race and ethnicity, sexuality, and class. Accordingly, this panel brings together scholars with expertise in different disciplines and different forms of stratification in order to identify and reflect on some of the overarching ways in which scientific knowledge is linked to the reproduction of inequality.

176. Thematic Session. Status Processes

Session Organizer and Presider: Ezra W. Zuckerman, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Panel: Robb Willer, Stanford University

Freda B. Lynn, University of Iowa

Tak Wing Chan, University of Oxford

Status processes are of general interest to sociologists, as they are implicated in the production and reproduction of social stratification and its consequences for action and outcomes, in virtually every social domain. This session brings together scholars who work on status processes in four different subfields of sociology: social psychology (Willer), consumption (Chan), social networks (Lynn), and economic sociology (Zuckerman). Each presenter and the provider will provide an overview of what s/he thinks have been the major achievements in his/her area as relates to his/her subfield. This will be followed by a discussion that focuses on finding points of productive engagement across subfields. It should be a lively, productive session.

177. Special Session. Social Science Research Now and in the Future

Session Organizer and Presider: Brad Smith, American Sociological Association

Panel: Howard J. Silver, Consortium of Social Science Associations

Over the last thirty years social science research has been subject to a number of attacks from politicians. This session will examine those attacks and give an update to the current situation on Capitol Hill. The session will then investigate future opportunities for social science research.

178. Departmental Management and Leadership Workshop. Academic Program Prioritization and Program Review - How to Prepare and Defend Your Department

Hilton New York Midtown, Concourse E, Concourse Level

Session Organizer and Leader: Rebecca G. Adams, University of North Carolina-Greensboro

At most colleges and universities, the programs in academic departments are reviewed on a regular cycle, generally every five-to-seven years. This workshop will be useful to departments anticipating such a routine program review. This workshop will also be useful to faculty of departments in colleges or universities where it is likely that an institution-wide program prioritization process will be undertaken in response to the current fiscal crisis in order to identify programs to be discontinued, curtailed, combined with other programs, etc. The workshop leader has had experience as an external evaluator for routine departmental reviews, in overseeing the preparation of the undergraduate component of a program review in the sociology department at her own university, and in facilitating the development of the process for a university-wide program review in her previous position as Associate Provost for Planning and Assessment. Learning outcomes for this workshop include: Be familiar with available background resources for departmental reviews and academic program prioritization, describe the trajectories of both types of reviews, understand the forces provoking academic program prioritization, be aware of criteria and data commonly used for both types of reviews, know how to prepare your department for departmental review or university-wide program prioritization, and understand program review as an opportunity rather than as a threat or burden. Participants are encouraged to review the program review guidelines at their institutions before the workshop.

179. Policy and Research Workshop. Using Software in Qualitative Analysis

Session Organizer and Leader: Crystal Marie Fleming, State University of New York-Stony Brook

Panel: Thomas DeGloma, City University of New York-Hunter College

Tiffany D. Joseph, Harvard University

Raymond C. Maietta, ResearchTalk, Inc.

Chinyere Osuji, University of Pennsylvania

Jessica M. Vasquez, University of Oregon

This workshop will provide a critical forum featuring a wide range of perspectives on computer assisted qualitative data analysis. Our panel includes scholars who have utilized programs like Atlas.ti and NVivo for individual projects and/or research teams as well as those that are more circumspect about the usefulness of software for unpacking qualitative data. The goal is to provide audience members with a broader understanding of some of the practical and theoretical issues one must navigate in deciding whether (and how) to approach the use of software in the analysis of qualitative data. Panelists will provide their views and experiences with regard to the following questions: 1) What has been your relationship to CAQDA? Do you have experience teaching and training students and researchers to use software packages? If you use software, did you decide which package(s) to use for your work? To what extent have you incorporated software packages into your data analysis? Have you used programs individually or also within research teams? How have your experiences and your perspective changed over time? 2) What are the pro's and con's of CAQDA? How can researchers decide whether programs like Atlas.ti or NVivo are advisable for their projects? 3) In what concrete ways have you used these programs? Which features have been most useful to you? Which features do you consider superfluous? 4) What do your QDA work sessions look like? Do you move between multiple programs (if so, what other programs do you use)? Do you shift between coding by hand and coding with software? What best practices have you discovered? 5) What is the relationship between software and the conceptual process of coding and theory building? In what ways do programs facilitate or impede theorization?

209. Presidential Panel. Organizational Dynamics and Inequality

Session Organizer and Presider: Emilio J. Castilla, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Panel: Trond Petersen, University of California-Berkeley

Donald Tomaskovic-Devey, University of Massachusetts-Amherst

At the core of current stratification studies lies the fundamental premise that organizations and organizational practices play a key role in shaping social inequality. Organizations mediate the matching of individuals to labor market positions and are the sites of evaluation and reward structures used to distribute power, wealth and prestige among individuals and groups. The purpose of this presidential panel is to bring together a group of researchers who share a concern for advancing our knowledge about the organizational micro processes and mechanisms that may account for how organizations affect economic and social inequality in society. By discussing innovative research that sheds new light on these issues across organizational settings and using a variety of research approaches, this panel is aimed at enriching future research within the broad topic of organizational dynamics and stratification.

 210. Thematic Session. Gender Politics in Intimate Relationships

Session Organizer and Presider: Kristen Myers, Northern Illinois University

Panel: Raewyn Connell, University of Sydney
Kathleen Gerson, New York University
Irene Padavic, Florida State University

In this global recession, traditional definitions of manhood are being tested. Unemployment, debt, and heteronormative ideals collide forcing a renegotiation of masculinity in intimate relationships.

 211. Thematic Session. Men in New Family Formations

Session Organizer and Presider: Mignon R. Moore, University of California-Los Angeles

Low-income Heterosexual Fathers Raising Children. Kevin Michael Roy, University of Maryland-College Park
I'm Pregnant: Gay Men, Surrogacy and Embodied Fatherhood. Ellen Lewin, University of Iowa

Social and Legal Paradoxes in Transgender Families. Carla A. Pfeffer, Purdue University-North Central

Gay Fatherhood and Transracial Adoption. Abbie Goldberg, Clark University

As the 21 Century moves along, we are seeing increasingly new syntheses of family-building that are prompting greater awareness of modern and post-modern family forms. This panel will highlight emerging research on fathers and men in four diverse forms: low-income heterosexual fathers raising children, fatherhood through surrogacy, gay fatherhood through transracial adoption, and men in transgendered partner households. The work and perspectives shared in this session will stimulate thinking on how to best understand the changes in how we conceptualize "family" as an institution, and the roles and patterns of men in the process of "doing" family.

 212. Thematic Session. Stigma as Inequality

Session Organizer: Jo C. Phelan, Columbia University

Presider: Bruce G. Link, Columbia University

Panel: Mark Hatzenbueler, Columbia University

Danya Keene, University of Pennsylvania
Mark Padilla, University of Michigan-Ann Arbor
Helena Hansen, New York University
Jo C. Phelan, Columbia University
Jeffrey W. Lucas, University of Maryland-College Park

Discussant: Bruce G. Link, Columbia University

Stigma is most often studied at an intrapersonal or interpersonal level, rather than at a macro level or from a perspective that links macro and micro levels. Stigma has usually not been strongly connected conceptually or empirically to other bases of inequality studied by sociologists, such as gender, race, ethnicity or class. And it is not usually conceptualized as a form of inequality itself. This session will attempt to make inroads toward remedying each of these limitations in the study of stigma. Mark Hatzenbueler will present work linking structural discrimination against sexual minorities to personal health outcomes for LGB individuals. Danya Keene will address spatial stigma, in which stigma attaches to places and people in or from those places; spatial stigma is strongly shaped by race and class. Helena Hansen will present work delineating how differential stigmatization of crack and powder cocaine developed and the role played by the social status of the primary users of each form of the drug (black and lower income vs. white and higher income) in that development. Jo Phelan and Jeffrey Lucas will present work that attempts to empirically test whether the interpersonal processes involved in creating and maintaining stigma vs. status hierarchies can be distinguished from one another. Bruce Link will discuss the papers from the perspective of his developing concept of "stigma power," the power that is derived from the process of stigmatizing others

 213. Thematic Session. When Sociological Research Matters: Sandy Hook, Aurora, Virginia Tech and the Sociological Voice in Understanding and Preventing Mass Shootings

Retrieving Fundamental Sociological Insights in the Service of Social Change. Bernice A. Pescosolido, Indiana University

Discussant: Bernice A. Pescosolido, Indiana University

In what seems like an increasingly regular occurrence, mass shootings have lately captured the sustained attention of politicians, educators, health care providers, and the public. The complex web of factors that shapes such tragic events has been the subject of sociological investigation historically, providing some clear insights into roots and remedies. This session brings together three of sociology's experts with broad and deep research-based understanding of mass events like these and the policy response to each of the two broad issues – mental illness and gun ownership – that fuel the national and international debates about solutions.

214. Special Session. Public Sociology in Action. Honoring the Contributions of Ira Glass and This American Life

Session Organizers: Joshua Gamson, University of San Francisco;

Eric Klinenberg, New York University; Julie Snyder, and Lisa Pollack, This American Life

Presider: Diane Vaughan, Columbia University

Panel: Eric Klinenberg, New York University

David M. Newman, DePauw University

Sudhir A. Venkatesh, Columbia University

This award recognizes professionals who have been especially effective at using the media – either written, performed live, photographed, recorded, or filmed – to inform the public of social issues, giving them a broad awareness of the sociological approach and sociological findings. The 2013 award goes to Ira Glass and the staff of This American Life, one of public radio's most celebrated programs. This session considers the relationship between sociology and This American Life. It features a conversation between This American Life producers, the audience, and sociologists who have participated in the show or use it in teaching. The panel will focus on the role sociological perspectives and research take in the show's production, and the ways This American Life contributes to sociological expression and teaching.

215. Author Meets Critics Session. The Nature of Race: How Scientists Think and Teach about Human Differences (University of California Press, 2011) by Ann Morning

216. Professional Development Workshop. If You Don't Ask: Negotiating Your First Job Offer

Hilton New York Midtown, Concourse F, Concourse Level

Session Organizer and Leader: Cynthia M. Siemsen, California State University-Chico

Panel: Salvador Vidal-Ortiz, American University
John Nathaniel Parker, National Center for Ecological Analysis and Synthesis
Janice McCabe, Dartmouth College
Jennifer Dawne Carlson, University of Toronto

While graduate programs prepare the doctoral student for their role as professor, the new Ph.D. may feel less than prepared to maneuver the vicissitudes of the job market let alone to negotiate a contract conducive to a successful career. Panelists represent private and public universities, and range from new assistant professors to seasoned members of hiring committees. Each will share their knowledge of negotiating the job offer.

217. Policy and Research Workshop. Recent Advances in Social Network Analysis

Session Organizer and Leader: Jimi Adams, American University

Panel: Sinan Aral, New York University
David R. Schaefer, Arizona State University
Kevin Lewis, University of California-San Diego
Katherine Stovel, University of Washington

Social network analysis (SNA) has become an important contributor to how sociologists understand and explain social processes, such as those that produce and reproduce inequality. From exchange theory to the "strength of weak ties," SNA has become deeply embedded in the study of how people experience inequality across a range of social experiences. Thus, while SNA's import to sociological thinking is well established, several recent theoretical and methodological developments in SNA will define the contours of its future contributions to sociology specifically and the social sciences more generally. This session will entail a panel discussion of some of those recent advances, including (among others) the role in SNA of: theory, statistical models, "big data," and the intersection of online and offline interactions.

218. Teaching Workshop. Social Networking as a Teaching Tool

Session Organizer and Leader: Chad Gesser, Owensboro Community and Technical College

Co-Leaders: John Robert Girdwood, Michigan State University
Matthew T. Loveland, Le Moyne College

This workshop will explore how social media/networking tools can be used with students and in the classroom setting. There are increasing opportunities to engage with students in and outside of the classroom, and to bridge the online world with the physical. Several presenters will share their work with students, highlighting their use of Google Applications, Twitter, Facebook, and other tools to promote learning and broader understanding of Sociology. This workshop will move beyond introductory use of these tools. A primary goal of the workshop is for attendees to walk away with a general understanding on considerations of use and implementation of two or more of these tools with students and the classroom.

 249. Thematic Session. Higher Education and the American Dream

Session Organizer: Florencia Torche, New York University

Presider: Ruth N. Lopez Turley, Rice University

Managing to Make It? America's Poor and the Pursuit of the College Payoff. Sara Goldrick-Rab, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Sustainable Opportunity: Financing Higher Education while Costs Rise and Public Support Declines. Michael Hout, University of California-Berkeley

Completing College with More than a Credential: Inequalities in Learning on College Campuses. Josipa Roksa, University of Virginia

Pathways and Pitfalls in Postgraduate Educational Careers. Marta Tienda, Princeton University

Americans place great hopes in higher education. A college degree is expected to promote economic development and competitiveness, reduce inequality, and erase the advantages of birth in the competition for socioeconomic success. The promise of higher education has, however, been called into question by several recent developments, including persistent socioeconomic differences in access to and, increasingly, in the completion of college, growing college costs, and the increase in "non-standard" higher education trajectories. This panel examines different dimensions of the role that higher education plays in reducing inequality and inducing social mobility in current American society.

250. Thematic Session. Immigration and American Society from 1980 to 2040

Session Organizer and Presider: Charles Hirschman, University of Washington

The Demographic Dimensions of the Late 20th and Early 21st Century Immigration to the United State. Jeff Passel, Pew Hispanic Center

The Implications of the Looming Exit of the Baby-boomers on the Social Mobility and Integration of Immigrants and Minorities in American Society. Richard D. Alba, City University of New York-Graduate Center

The Selective Migration of Highly Skilled Asians: Its Impact on Asian Americans and the United States. Pyeong Gap Min, City University of New York-Queens College

Tensions that Make a Difference: Institutions, Interests, and the Immigrant Drive. Alejandro Portes, Princeton University

By 1980, there were clear signs that the "Post 1965 Wave of Immigration Era" was beginning to take hold with a little over 14 million foreign born persons counted in the 1980 Census—an almost 50 percent increase during the decade of the 1970s. But the percent foreign born was only about 6%, and in much of the United States including the Midwest and the South, immigrants were all but invisible. In spite of several legislative efforts to slow or stop immigration over the last three decades, to say nothing of the militarization of the southern border, growing xenophobia fueled by talk radio and some political leaders and numerous commissions and studies, immigration has continued apace over the last three decades. As of 2012, there are about 40 million foreign born, and perhaps an equal number of second generation immigrants—almost 1 in four Americans is an immigrant or the child of an immigrant. Immigrants are a visible presence in almost part of the country, and in many large cities the immigrant community (counting first and second generation) may soon constitute a majority of the population. How did this happen? And what lies ahead? This thematic session will feature several notable immigration researchers to reflect on impact of immigration on the changing character of the United States over the last three decades and to offer their informed judgment of what will happen during the next three decades.

251. Thematic Session. New Forms of Workplace Flexibility

Session Organizer: Arne L. Kalleberg, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill

Prsident: Jerry A. Jacobs, University of Pennsylvania

Is Paid Family Leave a Job Killer? Lessons from California Employers' Experiences. Eileen Appelbaum, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers

Flexibility for whom? Conflicting Employer and Worker/Union Visions. Dan Clawson and Naomi Gerstel, University of Massachusetts-Amherst

Improving Schedule Predictability in Hourly Retail Jobs: Effects on Worker Performance and Well-being. Susan Lambert, University of Chicago

Workplace Flexibility in the United States: A Status Report. Ellen Galinsky, Families and Work Institute

Workplace practices designed to enhance workers' (and sometimes employers') flexibility are becoming increasingly important, as dual earner families continue to increase and time pressures on families intensify. The four panelists in this session will discuss a variety of ways in which employers, unions and other policy makers are seeking to address concerns related to workplace flexibility.

252. Thematic Session. Social Exchange Processes: Inequality and Social Order

Session Organizer: Linda D. Molm, University of Arizona

Prsident: David R. Schaefer, Arizona State University

Panel: Karen S. Cook, Stanford University

Edward J. Lawler, Cornell University

Linda D. Molm, University of Arizona

Jonathan H. Turner, University of California-Riverside

Social exchange processes are inherently micro-macro, linking interpersonal interactions with larger macro structures and processes, with significant consequences for individuals, relationships, and communities. This session examines social exchange not only as a fundamental process in the production of inequality and conflict, but as an important vehicle for overcoming divisions and contributing to social order.

253. Special Session. Gender Politics in Heterosexual Sex

Session Organizer and Prsident: Paula England, New York University

Panel: Elizabeth A. Armstrong, University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

Mark D. Regnerus, University of Texas-Austin

Discussant: Paula England, New York University

In heterosexual sex, whose desire and pleasure counts, and who runs the show? How is sex affected by culture, economics, sex ratios, and power arrangements?

256. Regional Spotlight Session. Immigrant New York in the Twenty-First Century

Session Organizer and Prsident: Nancy Foner, City University of New York-Hunter College and Graduate Center

Panel: A. Peter Lobo, New York City Department of City Planning

John Mollenkopf, City University of New York-Graduate Center

Milton D. Vickerman, University of Virginia

Robert Courtney Smith, City University of New York-Baruch

College and Graduate Center

Philip Kasinitz, City University of New York-Graduate Center

After nearly fifty years of massive inflows, New York is a truly immigrant city. About one out of three New Yorkers is now foreign born. Adding the U.S. born second generation the figure is more than one out of two or about four and a half million people. This session provides an up-to-date look at how immigrants have been transforming New York --- and how immigrants themselves have been transformed by living in the city.

257. Departmental Management and Leadership Workshop. Standards for Promotion and Tenure in Light of New Forms of Scholarly Work

Session Organizer and Leader: James C. Witte, George Mason University

Panel: Leslie H. Hossfeld, University of North Carolina-Wilmington
Laura Robinson, Santa Clara University
Anabel Quan-Haase, University of Western Ontario
John Ryan, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University
Mary T. Chayko, College of Saint Elizabeth

The discussion will begin with a focus on three themes: 1. Faculty engagement with the public outside the traditional scholarly community, 2. New forms of scholarly communication and publication, 3. Work across disciplinary lines. These will be considered in the context of a tightening academic job market, particularly with regard to tenure-track and tenured positions.

258. Professional Development Workshop. Negotiating/Changing/Creating Work-Family Policies in Institutions of Higher Education

Session Organizer and Leader: Giovanna Follo, Wright State University-Lake Campus

This is an interactive workshop that is designed to share the experiences of participants negotiating work-family policies within their institutions. Participants will either share specific instances where they dealt with family policy and/or will share the policies that exist within their institutions. As these experiences and policies are shared, as a group, they will be analyzed and suggestions for possible changes or creation of policy will take place. Participants attending this workshop should bring current policies and conflicts that have occurred with these policies. It is the purpose of this workshop to share and brainstorm ideas to improve the work-family balance in institutions of higher education.

259. Student Forum Workshop. From Academia to Industry: Navigating a Sociology Degree beyond the University or Tenure-track and Alternative Sociological Career Paths

8:30 am Sessions

288. Thematic Session. Elites: A Micro Foundation of Global Inequality?

Session Organizer and Presider: Leslie C. Gates, State University of New York-Binghamton

Panel: Vivek Chibber, New York University

Nitsan Chorev, Brown University

Richard Lachmann, State University of New York-Albany

James Mahoney, Northwestern University

This panel redirects attention from within country inequality to the main component of global inequality: national differences in economic development. This redirection demands a concomitant shift in the primary micro-foundation of inequality from identities and their role in shaping interactions among individuals to elite relations. Taking as their starting point a world-historical perspective, some will discuss the relative value of studying elite relations within the handful of societies and international institutions that have historically defined the terms of world economic relations. Others will consider how and why elite relations (both among the economic elite and between economic and political elites) may present a strategic point of agency in how nations navigate their position within the potent constraints of world economic hierarchies.

289. Thematic Session. Ending an Epidemic in an Era of Rising Inequality? The AIDS Paradox in the United States

Session Organizer: Celeste M. Watkins-Hayes, Northwestern University

Presider: Judith D. Auerbach, Independent Science and Policy Consultant

Betwixt and Between: Navigating HIV Treatment Through Cycles of Incarceration. Megan Lee Comfort, RTI International

A Transdisciplinary Social Network, Venue, and Community Intervention to Healp Recently-infected African American Men Who Have Sex with Men (MSM). Samuel R. Friedman, National Development and Research Institute

The HIV Epidemic among African Americans in Washington DC.

Sanyu A. Mojola, University of Colorado-Boulder

Resources Gained, Resources Lost: Negotiating Economic Survival and Mobility while Living with HIV/AIDS. Celeste M. Watkins-Hayes, Northwestern University

For the first time since the discovery of the disease, researchers, clinicians, activists, and advocates see promising opportunities to end the AIDS pandemic due to recent innovations in prevention and treatment strategies. However, the most consequential medical advances must be coupled with structural shifts to ensure that the access and efficacy of these discoveries are not hampered by pervasive inequalities. This session will focus on the ways in which HIV/AIDS highlights structural, institutional, and interpersonal inequalities and will require a focused and thoughtful engagement with issues of economic, political, and social inequality in order to end the epidemic. Panelists will speak to the social determinants of HIV risk, prevention, and treatment as well as the sociological lessons that the epidemic reveals about the relationship between inequality and health. Special attention will be paid to the disparate and ongoing impact of the epidemic on particular populations (e.g. Blacks, gay men/Men who have sex with men, low-income groups) in the United States.

290. Thematic Session. Qualitative Approaches to Studying Inequality

Session Organizer: Kathryn J. Edin, Harvard University

Presider: Linda Marie Burton, Duke University

Panel: Sudhir A. Venkatesh, Columbia University

Andrew J. Cherlin, Johns Hopkins University

Sara S. McLanahan, Princeton University

Discussant: Linda Marie Burton, Duke University

This session explores the contributions that various applications of qualitative and mixed methods research have made to illuminating key features of inequality in American society over the last 20 years. The panel features scholars who have conducted ethnography focused on crime and youth violence in public housing, the texture of off-the-books work in jobless ghettos, the experience of downward mobility, and the lives of low wage "burger barn" workers. It also features the principal investigators of two large mixed method studies; a welfare reform study conducted in three cities a study of unwed births to mothers and fathers living in large U.S. cities. Two ethnographers, Venkatesh and Newman, will reflect on the contributions of ethnographic and in-depth interview approaches to our understanding of inequality, and of life at the bottom of the class distribution. Two quantitative sociologists, Cherlin and McLanahan, along with presider/discussant, Linda Burton, will share their views of the contributions of mixed method research to understanding broad policy shifts that have attempted to address inequality and social trends that are associated with inequality.

291. Thematic Session. The Limits of Resistance

Session Organizer: Susan S. Silbey, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Presider: Salo Vinocur Coslovsky, New York University

Panel: Patricia M. Ewick, Clark University

Marc W. Steinberg, Smith College

Ruthanne Huising, McGill University

John Lyneis, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Susan S. Silbey, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Discussant: John-Paul Ferguson, Stanford University

In his essay, "On Superordination and Subordination," Simmel wrote that absolute coercion, even with the most cruel tyrant, is always distinctly relative, that even in the most tyrannical situation the subordinate has some degrees of freedom. Short of physical violation and death, resistance only demands a price for its realization. The research presented on this panel draws from diverse settings (union organizing, scientific laboratories, chemical processing plants, and religious social movements) to explore the ways in which both the willingness and capacity to resist greater authority and power (i.e., attitudes and behaviors of resistance) are developed in different organizational settings and with varying moral and political commitments.

292. Author Meets Critics Session.

Academically Adrift: Limited Learning on College Campuses (University of Chicago Press, 2011) by Richard Arum and Josipa Roksa

Session Organizer: Catherine White Berheide, Skidmore College

Critics: Roberta Espinoza, Pitzer College

Kathleen McKinney, Illinois State University

Mitchell L. Stevens, Stanford University

Authors: Richard Arum, New York University and Josipa Roksa, University of Virginia

293. Regional Spotlight Session. Mega Projects and the Politics of Development in New York

Hilton New York Midtown, Gramercy West, Second Floor

Session Organizer and Presider: David Halle, University of California-Los Angeles

Panel: Rick Bell, American Institute of Architects

Vishaan Chakrabarti, Columbia University

Michael Sorkin, City University of New York-City College

David Halle, University of California-Los Angeles

A city like New York must be able to implement mega projects. This session looks at the many issues surrounding mega projects in New York. These include which new ones do we most need right now and how can we get them built, what are the obstacles that often make mega projects hard to pull off, which recently achieved mega projects are the best and how, if at all, should they be improved. We define a "mega project," as "a very big project in the context of where it is being planned or built, and with a significant public component (via e.g. financing, or authority such as zoning)."

294. Professional Development Workshop. Pro-Active Survival Strategies for Pre-Tenure Professors

Session Organizer and Leader: Carrie Lee Smith, Millersville University

Panel: Michael Ian Borer, University of Nevada-Las Vegas

Shaul Kelner, Vanderbilt University

Marla H. Kohlman, Kenyon College

In this workshop, panelists will discuss the tenure process and provide suggestions on how to pro-actively navigate the process. The panelists represent different types of institutions, including research institutions, teaching based institutions, and liberal arts colleges. In addition, the panelists will share their unique insights as department chairs, recently tenured faculty, and faculty with joint appointments. This is an interactive workshop. The panelists will share brief comments, and participants will then be invited to join in the discussion.

295. Policy and Research Workshop. Data for Social Science Research: Availability, Accessibility and Research Possibilities

Session Organizer and Leader: Patricia E. White, National Science Foundation

Co-Leaders: Janet Gornick, City University of New York-Graduate Center

Sheela Kennedy, University of Minnesota

Jim Saliba, University of Minnesota

Tom W. Smith, NORC-University of Chicago

The Sociology Program at the National Science Foundation (NSF) supports large-scale data infrastructure projects. These data resources are widely used by scholars across the social sciences and provide excellent tools for sociologists seeking high quality data to complete comparative research, assess trends in public attitudes, and examine educational outcomes in more precise geographical locations. They are also excellent resources for both undergraduate and graduate research classes. Representatives for the General Social Survey (GSS), Luxembourg

Income Study (LIS), International Integrated Public Micro-Data Series (IPUMS-International), and the School Attendance Boundary Information System (SABINS), will describe these data, accessibility and availability, and examples of major research findings..The session is interactive; audience participation is encouraged.

296. Teaching Workshop. Teaching Social Theory - New Approaches for Bringing Social Theory to Life

Session Organizer and Leader: Charles H. Powers, Santa Clara University

This workshop introduces one approach for helping students to (a) ground their inquiries in theory, (b) seek theoretically meaningful answers to big questions, and (c) appreciate the living character of theory in sociology.

297. Minority Fellowship Program (MFP) Research Session. Issues in Youth Experiences, Community, and Education

324. Presidential Panel. Changing Beliefs about Inequality, Opportunity and Mobility Hilton New York Midtown, Rendezvous Trianon, Third Floor

Panel: Matthew O. Hunt, Northeastern University
Alford A. Young, University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

Since the early 1970s, economic inequality has grown dramatically. Not only is the income gap between the richest and the poorest the greatest it has been since the Long Gilded Age, for vast segments of the working- and middle-class, economic insecurity is also now the norm. The Great Recession has brought these dramatic changes into sharp relief and, some contend, has inspired The Tea Party and Occupy Movements. Given these changes, do Americans continue to believe in the American Dream? For whom is the dream still alive? Has the dream itself been altered to reflect new realities? In this session, scholars will consider how growing economic inequality has affected American's beliefs about inequality, opportunity, and mobility.

325. Thematic Session. Addressing Health Care Inequality: The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act

Session Organizer: Jane D. McLeod, Indiana University
 Presider: Eric R. Wright, Indiana University at Purdue University-Indianapolis

Right Wing Conspiracy? Socialist Plot?: The Origins of the Affordable Care Act. Jill Quadagno, Florida State University
 Accountable Care Organizations and the Industrialization of U.S. Medical Care? Lawrence P. Casalino, Cornell University
 The Impact of the ACA on Physicians, Professional Specialization, and Reimbursement. Miriam J. Laugesen, Columbia University

Discussant: Eric R. Wright, Indiana University at Purdue University-Indianapolis

The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act is intended to make health care more affordable and to expand health care coverage to all Americans. This panel brings together health policy experts from sociology, health services research, and political science to provide an overview of the act and its major provisions in relation to these goals. What processes yielded the Act in its current form? How do its provisions address its stated goals? How effective are its provisions likely to be? What new forms of inequality will the Act yield? By interrogating the Act, this session addresses the more general challenges of developing social policies to mitigate inequality.

326. Thematic Session. From Crime to Punishment

Session Organizer: Christopher Uggen, University of Minnesota

Panel: Eric P. Baumer, Florida State University

Sara Wakefield, University of California

Peggy C. Giordano, Bowling Green State University

Robert J. Sampson, Harvard University

Sociological criminologists such as Edwin Sutherland viewed the process of making laws, breaking laws, and the societal reaction against lawbreaking as "three aspects of a somewhat unified sequence of interactions." Contemporary advances in these areas, however, have increasingly developed in separate literatures that are rarely in dialogue with one another. This session is designed to bridge the powerful new theories and research on punishment with classic and contemporary advances in the study of criminal behavior. Topics include what punishment scholars should know about crime (and vice versa), the viability of unified explanatory models encompassing both crime and punishment, and their broader implications for science and policy.

327. Thematic Session. Lost in Translation? The Role of Research in Policy and Practice

Panel: John H. Laub, University of Maryland-College Park

David Harris, Tufts University

Ruth Milkman, City University of New York-Graduate Center

Phyllis Moen, University of Minnesota

This session will consider how social science research is translated into practice and how this process may be improved. The panel will feature prominent individuals from diverse settings who have grappled with the question of how research can be more effectively deployed in the service of policy and practice; identifying why research so often falls short of what is needed to effect social change; and how social scientists can think more effectively about designing research so that it can have an impact.

328. Special Session. How to Do Empirical Intersectionality Research

Hilton New York Midtown, Gramercy East, Second Floor

Session Organizer and Presider: Melanie M. Hughes, University of Pittsburgh

Panel: Myra Marx Ferree, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Catherine E. Harnois, Wake Forest University

S. Laurel Weldon, Purdue University

Scholars are increasingly debating how to apply intersectionality to empirical cases. Some even argue that intersectionality is used so frequently precisely because it lacks empirical specificity. Others offer the criticism that intersectionality scholars employ methods that replicate the very approaches they critique. Given these concerns, what does it mean to do intersectionality research, and how does one do it well? Is it possible to "test" or to negate intersectionality as a social theory? This session will bring together leading intersectionality scholars to debate the answers to these questions.

329. ASA Rose Series Author Meets Critics Session. Social Movements in the World System: The Politics of Crisis and Transformation (Russell Sage Foundation, 2012) by Jackie Smith and Dawn Wiest

Hilton New York Midtown, Sutton Center, Second Floor

Session Organizer: Judith Gerson, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers

Presider: Paul D. McLean, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers

Critics: Jason Beckfield, Harvard University

Saskia Sassen, Columbia University

Immanuel Wallerstein, Yale University

Authors: Jackie Smith, University of Pittsburgh and Dawn Wiest, American College of Physicians

Global crises such as rising economic inequality, volatile financial markets, and devastating climate change illustrate the defects of a global economic order controlled largely by transnational corporations, wealthy states, and other elites. As the impacts of such crises have intensified, they have generated a new wave of protests extending from the countries of the Middle East and North Africa throughout Europe, North America, and elsewhere. This new surge of resistance builds upon a long history of transnational activism as it extends and develops new tactics for pro-democracy movements acting simultaneously around the world. In Social Movements in the World-System, Jackie Smith and Dawn Wiest build upon theories of social movements, global institutions, and the political economy of the world-system to uncover how institutions define the opportunities and constraints on social movements, which in turn introduce ideas and models of action that help transform social activism as well as the system itself. Smith and Wiest trace modern social movements to the founding of the United Nations, as well as struggles for decolonization and the rise of national independence movements, showing how these movements have shifted the context in which states and other global actors compete and interact. This book helps illuminate the contentious and complex interactions between social movements and global institutions and contributes to the search for paths toward a more equitable, sustainable, and democratic world.

330. Professional Development Workshop. Doing Public Sociology

Hilton New York Midtown, Concourse E, Concourse Level

Session Organizer: Arlene J. Stein, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers

Co-Leaders: Arlene J. Stein, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers
Jodi O'Brien, Seattle University

Jessie Daniels, City University of New York-Hunter College

We'll reflect upon opportunities available to sociologists to translate and communicate their research to broader publics, and provide some basic pointers to those who would like to do public sociology. Our focus will be on hybrid sociological magazine writing of the sort that Contexts publishes, as well as on new approaches to scholarly communication in the digital era.

331. Policy and Research Workshop. Fund for the Advancement of the Discipline (FAD) Workshop

Panel: Josh Pacewicz, Brown University

Mary Bernstein, University of Connecticut

Rebekah Burroway, State University of New York-Stony Brook

Patricia E. White, National Science Foundation

The American Sociological Association's Fund for the Advancement of the Discipline (FAD) provides small awards up to $7,000 for groundbreaking research initiatives and related activities such as conferences. FAD is made possible through a grant to ASA from the National Science Foundation that is matched and administered by the ASA. The NSF program officer (Patricia White) will talk about the Foundation's goals for the program and the FAD Principal Investigator (Roberta Spalter-Roth) will give an overview of the program and the grant winners. Four recent award recipients and the FAD PI will discuss the following issues: What are the chances of winning? What kinds of proposals get funded? What makes research "cutting edge" and significant for sociology as a field? How do you emphasize the scientific, social and educational impact of the proposal? How do you deal with suggestions and criticisms if you are going to revise and resubmit? The purpose of this workshop is to encourage applications, especially from scholars in the early stages of their careers and who are not necessarily in "top 10" departments. Panelists will speak from their experiences and workshop participants will be encouraged to discuss proposal ideas.

332. Teaching Workshop. Teaching Introductory Sociology for the First Time

Session Organizer and Leader: Nancy A. Greenwood, Indiana University Kokomo

Co-Leader: Jay R. Howard, Butler University

The goal of this workshop is to help new instructors who are teaching introductory sociology for the first time. We will provide resources from the literature on the scholarship of teaching and learning about the possible content and pedagogies for this class. We will look at introductory sociology and how it functions as a course in the undergraduate general education core, as a diversity course, and as an introduction to the major. We will also discuss course design, choosing course goals, textbook selection, syllabus construction, styles of teaching and learning, assessment of learning outcomes, as well as class management techniques. We will offer examples of exercises and assignments as well as checklists and a bibliography of useful resources. Participants should bring questions or issues they want to discuss to the workshop.

360. Plenary Session. How is Inequality in the United States Changing?

Hilton New York Midtown, Grand Ballroom, Third Floor

Session Organizers: Cecilia L. Ridgeway and David B. Grusky, Stanford University

Presider: Cecilia L. Ridgeway, Stanford University

Panel: David B. Grusky, Stanford University

The last few decades have witnessed increasing income inequality in the U.S. and substantial changes in the nature and patterns of gender, race, and class inequalities. What are the main features of these changes and what is driving them? What are the implications of such changes for the future? Major scholars in their fields address these questions separately for economic and class inequality, gender inequality, and racial inequality. The final distinguished speaker in the session asks whether a new narrative of change and stability should be developed. Are there common patterns or themes in the changes across these different types of contemporary inequality? If so, what is the best way to understand these patterns of change?

361. Presidential Panel. Interrogating Inequality: Structural and Cultural Dimensions

Session Organizer and Presider: Cecilia L. Ridgeway, Stanford University

In this session four prominent scholars draw upon insights from their own research to examine how material, structural factors and cultural factors work together and sometimes against one another in the making and unmaking of inequality in the contemporary US. Among the many questions they consider are these: How can we integrate cultural process with our structural analyses without collapsing back into group stereotypes and other such well known pitfalls? Must change in "durable inequalities" (that have both structural and cultural elements) like race, gender, or class come first in material circumstances? What do we need to look at to understand what is changing about the significant dimensions of inequality in contemporary US, what is not changing, and why? Rather than engaging in abstract, purely theoretical debates about such "structure vs. culture" arguments, this session focuses on substantive considerations of these issues in the context of research on contemporary patterns of social relations and inequality.

362. Thematic Session. 25 Years and Counting: Reflecting on "The Truly Disadvantaged"

Session Organizer and Presider: Robert J. Sampson, Harvard University

Panel: Douglas S. Massey, Princeton University

Mary E. Pattillo, Northwestern University

Geoffrey Canada, Harlem Children's Zone

Discussant: William Julius Wilson, Harvard University

"The Truly Disadvantaged" by William Julius Wilson (1987) is one of the most influential and cited works in sociology (and social science generally) of the last few decades. In the fall of 2012 the University of Chicago Press published a revised edition with a new afterword by Wilson. The 2013 annual meeting presents an ideal opportunity to follow up the book's re-publication and reflect on this seminal work twenty-five years after it first appeared. Panelists will reflect on core aspects of the book, such as deindustrialization and joblessness, racial segregation and social isolation, neighborhood concentration effects, and policy responses.

363. Thematic Session. Dismantling Mass Incarceration

Session Organizer: Bruce Western, Harvard University

Presider: Devah Pager, Princeton University

Panel: Marie Gottschalk, University of Pennsylvania

Michael Jacobson, Vera Institute of Justice

Bruce Western, Harvard University

Katherine Beckett, University of Washington

After roughly 40 years of steady expansion, prison populations in the United States have begun a slow decline. Panelists will consider evidence for recent declines in incarceration and discuss the varied policy opportunities and barriers to continued reductions in the prison population.

364. Thematic Session. Income Inequality in Later Life

Session Organizer and Presider: Carolyn C. Perrucci, Purdue University

The Real Reason 60 is the New 30: Consumer Debt and Income Insecurity in Late Middle Age. Kevin T. Leicht, University of Iowa

Social Security Reform: The Implications for Gender, Race, and Class Inequality in Late Life. Pamela Herd, University of Wisconsin-Madison

The Distribution of Retirement Leisure: Inequality of Precious Time Before Death. Teresa Ghilarducci, New School for Social Research

Discussant: Richard L. Hogan, Purdue University

Leicht takes the NSLY, the Wisconsin Longitudinal Survey, and the American Bankruptcy Survey and examines the cumulative effects of job instability and stagnant wages on the cumulative wealth generation of the U.S. middle class. Herd explores the specific consequences of the most commonly proposed Social Security policy changes – raising the retirement age/reducing benefits- for gender, race, and class inequality in late life. She then examines the lack of attention to spousal and survivor benefits in existing debates over Social Security reform and the role that gender, race, and class plays in the political resiliency of these benefits. Ghilarducci points out that most of the longevity improvements for workers has occurred in the top half of the income distribution. She then proposes to restore equality in retirement time by instituting guaranteed retirement accounts that supplement Social Security after 40 years of work and contributions.

365. Thematic Session. The Social Organization of Financial Markets

Session Organizer and Presider: Catherine J. Turco, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Panel: Bruce G. Carruthers, Northwestern University

David Stark, Columbia University

Ezra W. Zuckerman, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Karin D. Knorr Cetina, University of Chicago

Discussant: Catherine J. Turco, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Recent sociological approaches to understanding financial markets have often focused on macro-level institutional structures and processes—e.g., the regulatory regime, banks, and processes of financialization – or, at a more micro-level, how specific technologies intervene in the construction of markets. In both cases, the object of analysis has tended to be the market writ large. By contrast, behavioral finance has probed how social, cognitive, and emotional factors influence individuals' economic decision making, and that field has used its revised model of homo economicus to explain the inner workings of markets, features like price levels and movements, trading volume, liquidity, efficiency, etc. Can sociology inform our understanding of these topics beyond what we have already learned from behavioral economics? What might a sociological theory of pricing or liquidity look like, for instance? This session will include papers tackling these very explananda, and its goal is to integrate across them to begin to articulate what a sociological – as opposed to a purely behavioral – approach to such topics entails.

366. Special Session. Rethinking the Commodification and Sexualization of Children

Session Organizer: Karin A. Martin, University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

Presider: Denise Bailey, University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

Panel: Daniel Thomas Cook, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers

Kari Lerum, University of Washington-Bothell

Cheryl Cooky, Purdue University

Discussant: Denise Bailey, University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

Children have long been understood as victims of the market and/or of sexuality. New directions in sociological work on gender and on childhood have begun to complicate this formerly straightforward understanding. When childhood intersects with the market and with sexuality in a myriad of contexts, how can we understand these intersections in ways that grasp the many complexities of these intersections? Drawing from their own research contexts, presenters will describe these complexities of childhood and offer possibilities for interpretation.

367. Author Meets Critics Session. Invisible Families Gay Identities, Relationships and Motherhood among Black Women (University of California Press, 2011) by Mignon R. Moore

Hilton New York Midtown, Sutton Center, Second Floor

Session Organizer: Robin W. Simon, Wake Forest University

Presider: Amy Brainer, University of Illinois-Chicago

Critics: Marysol Ascencio, University of Connecticut

Sara L. Crawley, University of South Florida

Rashawn Ray, University of Maryland-College Park

Debra Umberson, University of Texas-Austin

Author: Mignon R. Moore, University of California-Los Angeles

368. Regional Spotlight Session. Broken Windows Policing in New York City 20 Years On

Session Organizer: Jeff Manza, New York University

Panel: William J. Bratton, Former Police Commissioner, New York City and Los Angeles Police Departments

Tom Tyler, Yale University

Issa B. Kohler-Hausmann, New York University

Gabriel Sayegh, Drug Policy Alliance

In the early 1990s, New York City began to shift policing tactics and criminal justice policy to emphasize a new model of crime control built around aggressively pursuing minor offenses and heightened scrutiny of high-crime neighborhoods. In the past two decades, crime rates in the City have fallen dramatically, and some analysts attribute the change in policing and policy as a primary source of the crime drop. Critics, however, have noted that the use of tactics such as "stop and frisk" have been disproportionately targeted at minorities, especially poor young men, have criminalized behavior that poses little risk to the community, and have further enlarged the net of a criminal justice system that already punished far more individuals than any other jurisdiction. In this session, we will debate these policies and their consequences from a variety of perspectives.

369. Professional Development Workshop. Dual-Career Couples: Managing the Job Market When Your Partner is Also in Academia

Session Organizer and Leader: Nicholas A. Guittar, University of South Carolina-Lancaster

This workshop is designed to engage in a constructive dialog about navigating the job market when you have a partner who is (or will be) seeking academic employment as well. Graduate students, junior faculty, and even seasoned professionals are often faced with unique challenges associated with being on the job market as dual-career couples. Most of us receive mixed signals about how to navigate these waters, so the impetus of this session will be to discuss the current state of managing the market when your partner is also in academia. Issues covered include (but are not limited to): seeking out dual-career policies, sourcing jobs, positioning oneself for success, negotiating a job offer that includes partner accommodations, strategies for making sure others perceive you and your partner as assets and not liabilities, creating opportunities, investigating different types of jobs (public v. private, academic v. non-academic). This workshop will be tailored to the unique needs of those who attend the session, so bring your questions/insight and be ready to engage.

370. Policy and Research Workshop. Experimental Design in Sociology

Session Organizers and Leaders: Jane Sell, Texas A&M University and Murray Webster, University of North Carolina-Charlotte

There will be two parts to the workshop. In the first part, organizers will present information about the history of experiments in sociology, and the general issues raised in debates about the use of experimental design: external validity, generalization, and ethics. In the second part, there will be discussion of practical issues in design: developing the design to answer theoretical questions, pre-testing, manipulation checks, reliability issues, and eliminating alternative interpretations of the data.

371. Teaching Workshop. Teaching Climate Change in Sociology

Session Organizer and Leader: Scott G. McNall, University of Montana

Panel: Jeffrey Broadbent, University of Minnesota

Kari Marie Norgaard, University of Oregon

Andrew Szasz, University of California-Santa Cruz

Joe H. Bandy, Vanderbilt University

It has been argued that climate change is one of the most challenging problems the human race has ever encountered. It is also a "wicked" problem because it is tightly bound up with a set of other problems, including social inequality. The continued quest for cheap food, energy and labor, coupled with population growth, urbanization, and patterns of consumption, serve as the main drivers of anthropogenic climate change. Climate change provides sociologists with many teachable moments and not just in classes on environmental sociology. We need to introduce students in introductory and social problems courses, as well as courses in the sociology of religion, social movements, population, social organization, gender and inequality, global change, and political sociology, to sociological concepts and the sociological research that can deepen students' understanding of climate change. In addition, we need to help students understand what they can do to address the problem of climate change in their own lives and how they can create a sustainable future. Each panelist will offer their own insights and experiences about teaching climate change and will provide attendees with recommended course materials and syllabi. After brief presentations by the panelists, the remainder of the time will be open for questions as the session is intended to be one in which colleagues learn from one another.

401. Thematic Session. Female Sexuality: Taking another Look at the Evidence for Nature vs. Nurture

Session Organizer: Pepper J. Schwartz, University of Washington

Presider: Georgiann Davis, Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville

Panel: Helen E. Fisher, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers
Virginia E. Rutter, Framingham State University
Pepper J. Schwartz, University of Washington

Sociologists have mostly discussed female sexuality within the frame of social construction, but other disciplines have paid close attention to what they believe are biological determinants that explain sexual behavior and differentiate the sexes. Are sociologists omitting important information, are other disciplines giving biology too much credit, or is some mix of the biological and sociological now necessary for understanding sexuality?

402. Thematic Session. Long Term Consequences of Early Childhood Experiences

Session Organizer and Presider: Thomas A. DiPrete, Columbia University

Panel: Greg J. Duncan, University of California-Irvine
Karl Alexander, Johns Hopkins University

Jacquelynne S. Eccles, University of Michigan-Ann Arbor
 This session will consist of a panel discussion on the connection between early childhood and adult experiences, with a particular focus on socioeconomic and other outcomes that are central to the societal structure of inequality, mobility, and aggregate well-being. Panelists will interpret and evaluate existing evidence on the strength of the connection between childhood experiences and adult outcomes and on the extent to which early childhood disadvantage can be ameliorated by later experiences. They also will address the major gaps in our knowledge about these questions and the prospects for addressing these gaps with new research initiatives.

403. Thematic Session. The Changing American Family and its Implications

Session Organizer and Presider: Michael J. Rosenfeld, Stanford University

Panel: Andrew J. Cherlin, Johns Hopkins University
Brian Powell, Indiana University

Reuben J. Thomas, City University of New York-City College
Megan M. Sweeney, University of California-Los Angeles

The family is not only a microcosm of society, but the family is the social system that shapes young people, and therefore is the blueprint for our future. In the past 50 years the US family system has undergone an unprecedented period of change and transformation. Americans are marrying later, divorcing more, and having fewer children than they did in the past. Blended families are the new reality. Extra marital childbirth is 3 times more common now than it was when Moynihan issued his famous warning about the dangers of single parenthood in 1965. Interracial marriage has risen dramatically. Same-sex marriage is rapidly gaining acceptance, and popular definitions of family seem to be changing. Where are these changes taking us? What kind of world is the modern family making for our future? What does the changing American family tell us about changes in the broader US society?

404. Thematic Session. Who are the Top One Percent?

Session Organizer and Presider: G. William Domhoff, University of California-Santa Cruz

Panel: Melvin L. Oliver, University of California-Santa Barbara
Diana Kendall, Baylor University
David Cay Johnston, Syracuse University

This panel will examine the general question of "who are the top one percent" in terms of detailed studies of the income distribution, the wealth distribution, and federal tax returns, all of which net a slightly different set of people, but then converge on the same several thousand people in terms of the top two or three "tenths" of the one percent. The panel also will engage the more interesting sociological question about the top one percent that relates to issues of power: To what degree, if any, do individuals and families within the top one percent have an active role in shaping the social processes and laws that brought them into the top one percent and help keep them there?

405. Departmental Management and Leadership Workshop. Department Chairs Drop-In Clinic: Providing Help and Insights from Organizational Consultants with Expertise in Sociology Department Leadership

Session Organizer and Leader: Jeffrey Chin, Le Moyne College

Questions about curriculum development? Have a curriculum review coming up? Questions about assessment? Faculty Development? This session assembles members of the Department Resources Group (<http://www.asanet.org/teaching/drg.cfm>) for a free consultation. Appointments are encouraged but walk-ins are also welcome. If you are not free during this time slot, contact the session organizer, Jeff Chin (chin@lemoyne.edu) and he can put you in touch with a member of the DRG who will be at the annual meeting and the two of you can arrange an alternative, mutually-convenient time to meet.

406. Policy and Research Workshop. Disadvantaged Students, the College Pipeline, and Supportive Funding Opportunities

Session Organizer and Leader: Hiroimi Ono, Institute of Education Sciences

Panel: Arne L. Kalleberg, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill

Meredith Phillips, University of California-Los Angeles

Lynn Newman, SRI International

Isaac McFarlin, University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

Educational and labor market opportunities of disadvantaged students have long been a topic of interest to sociologists. The college pipeline—and its “bottlenecks” and “leaks”—is a conceptual framework that has become commonly used in recent years to describe how and where disadvantage students are “squeezed out” of these opportunities. In this workshop, principal investigators supported by the postsecondary education program at the Institute of Education Sciences will discuss some of the highlights of their projects. Specifically, Meredith Phillips will present work from a project that implements two college access intervention programs targeted at socioeconomically disadvantaged high school students and conducts a randomized field trial to evaluate these programs. The interventions are designed to increase students’ cultural and social capital with respect to the college application process, and, ultimately, to increase college-going among these students. Lynn Newman describes the discontinuity between high school and postsecondary school in the receipt of supports, services, and accommodations by students with disabilities in 2- and 4-year colleges, and vocational/technical/business schools. She also examines factors associated with variations in rates of receipt of such help from postsecondary schools. Her findings are based on secondary analysis of survey data from the National Longitudinal Transition Study-2 (NLTS2). Arne Kalleberg will present his results from a project that seeks to understand the role of community colleges (specifically, Rowan-Cabarrus Community College in North Carolina) in helping workers who were laid off, but transition back into the labor force. He compares quantitative outcomes between those workers who did and did not attend Rowan-Cabarrus Community College, and conducts some interviews of the displaced workers. After presentations by these investigators, the program officer will explain the funding opportunities for research on disadvantaged students at IES. The presentations will be followed by a general Q&A session.

407. Teaching Workshop. Sex Matters: The Importance and Mechanics of Teaching Sexuality Effectively

Session Organizer and Leader: Mindy Stompler, Georgia State University

Panel: Elroi J. Windsor, Salem College

Amanda May Jungels, Georgia State University

Carla A. Pfeffer, Purdue University-North Central

This workshop will begin with a presentation by the organizer focusing on how to construct a basic sociology of sexuality course as effectively as possible. The presenter will discuss the basics of teaching the course; substantive and structural issues affecting teaching effectiveness; how to establish a successful classroom environment; and challenges particular to teaching the sociology of sexuality. The presentation will be followed by a panel discussion. Panelists have taught the sociology of sexuality in various environments. Workshop participants will raise questions for the panelists and are invited to send questions for consideration to the organizer in advance of the workshop. Workshop participants will be provided with a packet of materials such as sample syllabi and assignments.

7:00 am Meetings

ASA Business Meeting -- Hilton New York Midtown, Mercury Ballroom, Third Floor

The ASA Business Meeting is an opportunity for members of the Association to discuss important issues facing the discipline and profession. Members are encouraged to attend this meeting convened by the ASA President Cecilia L. Ridgeway.

Summary reports on the Association and its key activities this year will be given by President Cecilia L. Ridgeway, Secretary Catherine White Berheide, and Executive Officer Sally T. Hillsman. The meeting concludes with the traditional transfer of the gavel, marking the transition of duties from President Cecilia L. Ridgeway to incoming President Annette Lareau.

This open forum is an opportunity for members to share their insights, reactions, and suggestions. Please consult the flyer in your convention tote bag for details on the Business Meeting agenda.

As noted in the May/June issue of Footnotes and the posting of meeting information on the ASA website, members seeking to present formal resolutions should be prepared to provide background materials on the issue to be discussed. Members who missed the July 10 submission deadline may bring their resolutions and supporting background documentation to the ASA Office in the Gibson Room on the Second Floor of the Hilton New York Midtown by 3:00 pm on Monday, August 12.

8:30 am Sessions

432. Thematic Session. Beauty and Capital: The Sociology of Appearance

Session Organizer and Presider: Ashley E. Mears, Boston University

Beauty: A Funny Sort of Capital. Maxine Leeds Craig, University of California-Davis

Highbrow and Lowbrow Beauty: Status and the Transnational Diffusion of Aesthetics. Giseline Kuipers, University of Amsterdam

Start 'em Young: Child Beauty Pageants and American Girlhood.

Hilary Levey Friedman, Harvard University

Beauty and the Beast: The Dark Side of Aesthetic Labour. Dennis Nickson, University of Strathclyde; Chris Warhurst, University of Sydney

Discussant: Elizabeth A. Wissinger, City University of New York-Borough of Manhattan Community College

Sociological research on beauty and its consequences present a number of challenges, such as theorizing the origins and spread of beauty ideals within specific communities, the evaluation of physical appearance, and the intersection of beauty with traditional variables in stratification studies like gender, race, and class. In this session we offer directions for research on beauty, an important and under studied social force.

433. Thematic Session. Servants, Slaves, and Human Trafficking: Fighting for the Empowerment of Migrant Workers

Session Organizer: Rhacel Salazar Parrenas, University of Southern California

Prostitution as Slavery: Fact or Fiction. Ronald Weitzer, George Washington University

Defining the Threshold for Trafficking: A Case Study of Recruitment for Migrant Domestic Workers. Janie Chuang, American University

Caring Across Generations: The National Campaign to Recognize Domestic Work. Barbara Young, University of Wisconsin-Whitewater

Trafficked Victims or Shrewd Entrepreneurs? Empowering Sex Workers in Vietnam's New Global Economy. Kimberly Kay Hoang, Boston College

Discussant: Rhacel Salazar Parrenas, University of Southern California

The panel will examine the unfree labor of migrant domestic workers and sex workers in the 21st century. It will address how the discourse of human trafficking shapes our views on these workers and advocates for redirecting the fight against human trafficking from the rescue of victims towards the empowerment of migrant workers.

434. Thematic Session. Teaching about Inequality in the Face of the American Dream

Session Organizer: Maxine P. Atkinson, North Carolina State University

Presider: Sarah Nell Rusche, Wake Forest University

Panel: Maxine P. Atkinson, North Carolina State University
Stephen A. Sweet, Ithaca College

Nicholas A. Guittar, University of South Carolina-Lancaster
Increasing inequality coupled with an economic recession creates the ideal conditions for teaching about inequality. Many of our students have personally experienced the effect of the recession on the American dream but the meritocracy myth is strong. Participants in this session will share a variety of effective teaching techniques and materials and lead an interactive exercise designed to help students differentiate between structural constraints and the mythology of the American dream.

435. Special Session. Sociological Research on Happiness

Session Organizer and Presider: David Bartram, University of Leicester

Sociology and Happiness. Ruut Veenhoven, Erasmus University Rotterdam

Reflections on the Divide Between Happiness Research and the Sociology of Emotion. Robin W. Simon, Wake Forest University

Happiness and the Sociology of Mental Illness. Jason Schnittker, University of Pennsylvania

Gender and Happiness. Debra Umberson, University of Texas-Austin

Contemporary discourse in a variety of wealthy countries demonstrates substantial academic and political interest in happiness, rooted in part in appreciation of the idea that happiness is not generally achieved via economic growth and ever-increasing consumption. The academic study of happiness has been thriving for several decades – we can gain insight by studying “subjective well-being” directly, rather than merely inferring it from more “objective” forms of well-being such as income. This session will explore sociological contributions to happiness studies, with attention to the importance of social context in explanations, implications of key findings for core sociological theories, the diversity in approaches to measurement, and attempts to turn research findings into policy initiatives.

436. Author Meets Critics Session. Just One of the Guys? Transgender Men and the Persistence of Gender Inequality (University of Chicago Press, 2010) by Kristen Schilt

Hilton New York Midtown, Sutton Center, Second Floor

Session Organizer: Cecilia L. Ridgeway, Stanford University

Presider: Christin L. Munsch, Stanford University

Critics: Michelle J. Budig, University of Massachusetts

Michael Kimmel, State University of New York-Stony Brook

C.J. Pascoe, Colorado College

Author: Kristen Schilt, University of Chicago

437. Professional Development Workshop. Writing and Submitting Articles for Publication

Session Organizer and Leader: Arne L. Kalleberg, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill

Panel: Katharine Donato, Vanderbilt University

Becky Pettit, University of Washington

James D. Wright, University of Central Florida

This professional workshop provides an overview of the journal publication process from the point of view of four current editors of general sociological journals. The participants will provide their perspectives on topics such as: steps in the review process; characteristics of successful submissions; some common mistakes that authors make when submitting their papers to journals; how reviewers are selected; responding to an invitation to revise-and-resubmit a paper; contacting the editor to find out when a decision will be made; and appealing journal decisions. The editors will be happy to respond to participants' questions on these and other topics.

438. Policy and Research Workshop. GIS and Spatial Modeling

Session Organizer and Leader: Kyle Crowder, University of Washington

Co-Leaders: Stephen Matthews, Pennsylvania State University

Jeremy Reed Porter, City University of New York-Brooklyn College

Paul Voss, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill

Jeremy Pais, University of Connecticut

This workshop will provide an introduction to: 1) theoretical considerations related to spatial dynamics and the use of spatially-referenced data; 2) the types and sources of data available to those interested in studying these spatial dynamics; and 3) statistical considerations and core modeling strategies for spatial analysis. Participants include some of the top researchers in the area who will focus on practical advice for those interested in bolstering the use of spatial analysis in their own work.

This session is intended to provoke discussion on how "behavioral" data (that is, data gathered on individuals' activities) can help inequality researchers gain insight into old problems or suggest new lines of research. Quantitative research has historically relied heavily on survey and Census data. These data have shaped what questions are asked, and what research agendas are possible. In the past several years, we've seen a rapid increase in the amount of electronic data available on individuals' activities. These include Google searches, location data from cell phones, purchasing histories, and other "little data breadcrumbs" that people leave behind as they navigate the social world. However, despite the buzz about "big data" there has not been a lot of discussion of how these data can help us answer sociologically interesting questions, especially in the area of stratification/inequality. The section will include presentations from three researchers currently using behavioral data. Kathleen Cagney will discuss her work using cell phone data to understand individuals' neighborhood experiences. Mark Pachucki will present results related to his research on how prices and marketing factors affect food consumption. Elizabeth Bruch will present results from her study of how mate preferences and mate search strategies give rise to aggregate patterns of coupling and singlehood.

470. Thematic Session. New Reproductive Technologies and the Reproduction of Inequality

Session Organizer: Sharmila Rudrappa, University of Texas-Austin

Panel: Sarah Franklin, University of Cambridge

Sharmila Rudrappa, University of Texas-Austin

Erica Haines, Newcastle University

The 2013 annual meeting theme proposes to examine inequality through linking micro and macro social processes. A crucial site for the production of social inequalities is that of motherhood and reproduction. Markets in new reproductive technologies that have emerged primarily to assist those who face infertility, such as in vitro fertilization (IVF), intracytoplasmic sperm injection (ICSI), and pre-implantation genetic diagnosis (PGD) have resulted in exacerbating existing social inequalities.

Colen (1986) first used the term stratified reproduction to elaborate on the inequalities between West Indian nannies and their employers in New York City which operated along the lines of race, class, culture, and legal status. This panel critically interrogates new reproductive technologies through drawing on case studies from the global north and the south, to theorize stratified reproduction in transnational terms. The panelists examine how new reproductive technologies reproduce social inequalities.

471. Thematic Session. The Welfare State in Crisis

Session Organizer and Presider: Ellen R. Reese, University of California-Riverside

Panel: Frances Fox Piven, City University of New York
Sanford Schram, Bryn Mawr College
Timothy J. Casey, Legal Momentum
Sondra Youdelman, Community Voices Heard
Jennifer Hadlock, Community Voices Heard

Discussant: Lisa D. Brush, University of Pittsburgh

The implementation of U.S. welfare reform policies in the context of the current economic crisis has created new challenges for low-income families' economic security and employment. While low-income families' demands for "good jobs" and economic assistance have expanded in the context of widening unemployment and economic inequalities, state and federal welfare spending has been cutback. Meanwhile, millions of low-income families have "timed out" of welfare. This panel explores the current state of welfare reform policies and struggles for welfare rights from the point of view of academics, researchers, and activists.

472. Special Session. Beyond Bridging Borders: The American Sociological Association and the International Sociological Association

Session Organizer and Presider: Margaret Abraham, Hofstra University

Panel: Cecilia L. Ridgeway, Stanford University
Immanuel Wallerstein, Yale University
Sally T. Hillsman, American Sociological Association
Izabela Barlinska, International Sociological Association
Tina Uys, University of Johannesburg

In an increasingly globalized world, notions of space, distances, boundaries, and borders are continuously being redefined resulting in changing patterns of global interaction. As sociologists, we need to pay greater attention to the sources of power and privilege that shape the flow of knowledge production, information dissemination, and consumption of sociological research. This session brings together a panel of sociologists with leadership experience in the ASA and ISA to explore the ways to build more equitable, collaborative relationships between sociologists across the globe. Panelists will draw upon their own experiences in the context of these organizations to reflect on the challenges and possibilities for building better bridges between American sociologists and the broader international community of sociologists. They will also focus on how ASA and ISA can contribute to the debate and dialogue in addressing the key issues of our time.

473. Author Meets Critics Session. Counted Out: Same-Sex Relations and American's Definitions of Family (Russell Sage, 2010) by Brian Powell, Catherine Bolzendahl, Claudia Geist, and Lala Carr Steelman

Panel: Krishnendu Ray, New York University

Vanina Leschziner, University of Toronto

Priscilla P. Ferguson, Columbia University

Mitchell Davis, The James Beard Foundation

New York City has always been home to a diversity of food cultures and cuisines. Today, as the city has become wealthier and more diverse than ever, food has come to symbolize a broad array of changes and challenges that it faces, from the rise of elite food culture to neighborhood inequality. This panel's speakers will discuss several topics related to contemporary New York's food worlds, and shed light on how we can understand food's role in urban life.

Bernhard Nauck, Chemnitz University of Technology

Jutta von Maurice, University of Bamberg

Hans Guenther Rossbach, University of Bamberg

Martin Diewald, University of Bielefeld

Stefan Liebig, Bielefeld University

Thomas Faist, Bielefeld University

Principal Investigators of four major large-scale ongoing longitudinal studies from Germany and the spokesman of the new Collaborative Research Unit 882 "From Heterogeneities to Inequalities" at Bielefeld University will present a new basis for innovative, cross-national, and interdisciplinary research. Presentations of exemplary analytical work on research on inequality will offer stimulating new research perspectives and foster international cooperation and networking among workshop participants. The unique data infrastructure of these important studies provides the international user community with longitudinal panel data on important current societal issues such as aging, education, family formation, and perhaps most prominently, inequality. The Collaborative Research Unit 882 focuses on empirical research on inequality from a primarily micro perspective; a particular aim of the group's work is to identify general mechanisms in the emergence of inequality and to organize these into a typology. The moderated panel discussion will explore synergies with similar studies and research projects in the United States, thereby fostering international collaboration among workshop participants and generating added value for the broader research community.

477. Teaching Workshop. Practical Experience and Methods of Introducing Conversation Analysis to Audiences Who are New to this Approach

Hilton New York Midtown, Concourse E, Concourse Level

Session Organizers: Ruth Helen Parry, University of Nottingham and

Virginia Teas Gill, Illinois State University

Leader: Ruth Helen Parry, University of Nottingham

Co-Leader: Virginia Teas Gill, Illinois State University

Panel: Timothy Halkowski, University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point

Jörg Bergmann, University of Bielefeld

The perspectives and methods of conversation analysis are increasingly used within sociological investigations in arenas such as health and illness, the analysis of culture, of human relationships, of occupational work and practice, and in feminist enquiry. Conversation analysis offers a strongly empirical and systematic means of analysing the social organisation of interaction. Given its applications within sociological enquiries, it is increasingly taught within sociology degree and postgraduate courses. Furthermore, sociologists are starting to incorporate conversation analysis within the training they deliver to others – most commonly within medical school curricula, but also in areas such as business and management. Part of the rationale for this workshop is that whilst there are many individual sociologists designing and delivering teaching of conversation analysis, there has been limited dialogue on this topic between these individuals, and there is no central repository and community for which teaching of conversation analysis forms the focus. The workshop will constitute an important developmental step towards sharing established and innovative practice. This workshop draws upon a 'teaching conversation analysis' workshop we convened at a previous ASA conference. It drew a substantial and engaged audience. The theme of our proposed 2013 workshop: 'Introducing conversation analysis to those unfamiliar with it', emerged as of great interest amongst those who attended the previous event. The goals will be: -To articulate and share experiences of those who communicate CA to various audiences including sociology and social psychology undergraduates, undergraduates in healthcare professions, research colleagues and health and social care professionals -To provide a forum for discussing challenges and strategies with regards first introductions of CA to audiences unfamiliar with it -To introduce specific resources spanning the design, modalities of delivery, and assessment and evaluation of teaching. Including ICT resources, pedagogical approaches, and practical exercises Intended audience: postgraduate and faculty sociologists from a broad range of backgrounds who themselves teach, or may in the future be in a position to teach conversation analytic methods and perspectives to sociologists and others Sociologists with broad interests in communicating practical methods and sociological perspectives to a variety of audiences

How Gender Informs Research Programs and Disciplinary Cultures. Erin Leahey, University of Arizona

There is notable durable inequality in the career outcomes and attainments of women and underrepresented groups in science. This session highlights research that directs our attention to cross-level processes that contribute to this inequality. Covering the domains of both gender and race, session panelists will address the generation of scientific identity and the role of self-concept, culture and practice of collaboration across work settings, and within-field cultural framing of the profession. Together, the panelists highlight key areas in which the culture and practice of science are linked to the reproduction of inequality.

507. Thematic Session. Interrogating Contemporary Genetics and its Potential Contribution to Social Science (co-sponsored by Section on Evolution, Biology and Society)

Session Organizers: Jeremy Freese, Northwestern University and Guang Guo, University of North Carolina

Panel: Jason D. Boardman, University of Colorado-Boulder
Dalton Conley, New York University

Eric Turkheimer, University of Virginia

Michael J. Shanahan, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill

Guang Guo, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill

For many, the longtime archenemy of sociological perspectives on inequality is "genetics" or "biology." Yet recent years have seen enormous changes in genomic data and analytic techniques. These have provoked much rethinking about the role of genetic difference in human development. As a result, there are many new ways of thinking about the interdependence of individual difference and social environments. The presentations in this session highlight some of these, and together they point to various constructive ways that sociologists might engage, inform, and benefit from ongoing developments in the integration of family-based and molecular genetic data in social science.

508. Thematic Session. Reproductive Justice: An Intergenerational Examination of History and the Future

Session Organizer: Kristin Luker, University of California-Berkeley

Presider: Zakiya T. Luna, University of California-Berkeley

Panel: Kristin Luker, University of California-Berkeley

Jeanne Flavin, Fordham University

Sujatha Jesudason, University of California-San Francisco

Zakiya T. Luna, University of California-Berkeley

How have reproductive inequalities been created and maintained through law, policy and everyday interactions? The most recent spate of political and legal attacks on reproductive rights has demonstrated their continued controversial status in US society. However, these attacks have myriad effects and responses besides those most visible in the media. This intergenerational panel will examine how the historically constraining legal and social movement emphasis on reproductive rights and health is shifting to an approach of "reproductive justice," which draws on multiple social justice movements and centers the interactional effects of race, age, class, sexuality, and ability status on reproductive futures. Further, panelists will highlight how individuals and communities have and continue to creatively resist reproductive oppression. Finally, they will consider the role of scholarship in supporting—and constraining—social movement efforts to achieve reproductive justice.

509. Thematic Session. Shifting Meanings of Family and Work

Sheraton New York Hotel & Towers, Central Park East, Second Floor

Session Organizer and Presider: Michelle J. Budig, University of Massachusetts

Work-family Issues in the Late Life Course: Adult Working Children and Support for Elders. Suzanne M. Bianchi, University of California-Los Angeles

Cross-National Comparisons of Workers' Access to Flexibility and Schedule Control: Implications for Work and Family. Pamela Stone, City University of New York-Hunter College

The Hidden Work-Family Challenges of Unemployment: Gender and Job-Loss Among the Working-Class. Sarah Damaske, Pennsylvania State University

Discussant: Jennifer L. Glass, University of Texas-Austin

Definitions of families, of work, and of work-family issues are dynamic and evolving. Family structures and care responsibilities are being reshaped by the aging workforce, marital disruption, declining fertility, and non-traditional family forms. Similarly, employment conditions are changing as workers and employers face often competing needs for flexibility and schedule control. Is there hope for more family supportive organizational cultures? The shifting meanings of family and work present new challenges and opportunities for integrating work and family responsibilities. This session highlights research on the changing meanings of families, demographic shifts in family structure, increasing intergenerational care responsibilities, the impact of work schedules and flexibility on the interface of work and family life, and the potential for creating more family-supportive workplace cultures. This session maps out new terrain for work-family scholarship, considers how workers are reframing what they "owe" family members and employers, and how employers might respond to these shifts.

510. Thematic Session. The State against Inequalities

Session Organizer and Presider: David Brady, Social Science Research Center-Berlin

Panel: Alexander Hicks, Emory University

Jason Beckfield, Harvard University

Patrick G. Heller, Brown University

Discussant: Rebekah Burroway, State University of New York-Stony Brook

This session will focus on the role of the state in mitigating inequalities in life chances and economic outcomes. The session will explore a broad variety of inequalities: class and economic inequality, race/ethnic inequality, gender inequality, health inequality, and inequality across the life course among others. Also, the session will explore a variety of the world's regions. Much attention will be paid to the funding, design and implementation of social policies: education, family assistance, socialized medicine, pensions, etc. Further, the session will discuss exemplary success stories where states have most effectively addressed inequality. Some attempt will be made to include non-sociologists. The session will seek to advance theoretical knowledge about generalizable patterns in the ways in which states effectively reduce inequality. Finally, the session will seek to bring in recent advances in comparative social policy that have been relatively neglected in U.S. social science, and especially in American sociology.

511. Special Session. Technologies and/of Marginalized Bodies

Hilton New York Midtown, Sutton Center, Second Floor

Session Organizers: Laura K. Mauldin, Rochester Institute of Technology and Monica J. Casper, University of Arizona

Presider: Laura K. Mauldin, Rochester Institute of Technology

"Robo-Legs" and the "Un-Whole" Person: Prosthetic Transformations and Accomplished Dismemberment.

Cassandra S. Crawford, Northern Illinois University

Technologies of Sport. CL Cole, University of Illinois

Discussant: Laura K. Mauldin, Rochester Institute of Technology

This panel focuses on relationships between technologies and bodies, and how these affect, shape, and/or reflect inequality. More specifically, the session includes papers that examine technologies related to disability and mobility such as 'assistive technologies,' biotechnologies, medical devices, and information and communications technologies (ICTs). We link macro/meso level examination of technological practices to micro level processes such as user experience, especially in marginalized populations such as persons with physical disabilities and/or chronic illnesses. Papers consider prosthetics, brain implants, robotics, and sport technologies. Together, they contribute to conversations regarding the ways technologies mitigate or re-inscribe inequalities, especially embodied inequalities such as disabilities.

512. Professional Development Workshop. Writing Reviews of Scholarly Articles and Books

Session Organizer and Leader: Gary Alan Fine, Northwestern University

Panel: Holly J. McCammon, Vanderbilt University

Larry W. Isaac, Vanderbilt University

Eric I. Schwartz, Princeton University Press

Good articles depend upon good reviewers. Great articles depend upon great reviewers. Although conference sessions provide advice to authors that suggest how articles can be crafted to increase their chances for publication success, it is rare that attention is given to the process of reviewing. Yet, most faculty and some graduate students are called upon to help journals and publishers by providing advice to editors. Given the diversity of topics in sociology, editors are forced to rely on specialists to judge papers. In this workshop/symposium, a group of editors discuss what they look for in assessments from reviewers. To what extent should reviewers evaluate a manuscript based on their own intellectual concerns or preferred theories? Should reviewers be optimistic about changes prior to publication or should they judge a submission as a finished product? When should reviewers recommend revisions? How much time should a reviewer spend on an evaluation and how soon should reviews be returned? In what circumstances should a reviewer decline to do a review or negotiate for additional time? Should reviewers in a double-blind process review manuscripts whose authors they know as friends, colleagues, teachers, or students? More broadly what are the ethical standards of reviewing? Although being a reviewer for a journal or publisher rarely is considered in promotion, tenure, or salary decisions, the discipline could not survive without such work.

513. Policy and Research Workshop. Panel Study of Income Dynamics

Session Organizer: Fabian T. Pfeffer, University of Michigan-Ann Arbor

Leader: Noura E. Insolera, Panel Study of Income Dynamics

This workshop is geared toward current and prospective users of the Panel Study of Income Dynamics (PSID, psid.org), the world's longest running longitudinal household survey. PSID has collected data on a wide range of sociologically relevant topics from a nationally representative sample of US families and their descendants since 1968. Content domains include employment, occupations, income, wealth, education, expenditures, health, aging, marriage, childbearing, child development, youth transitions, philanthropy, intergenerational relations, and numerous other topics. This workshop provides an overview of the general structure and content of the PSID and its supplemental surveys (including the Childhood Development Supplement, the Transition to Adulthood Study, and the Disability and Time Use study) as well as an update on current and future data collection efforts. A hands-on introduction to the PSID Data Center will enable users to quickly locate relevant documentation, tutorials, and data. There will also be an interactive portion to address questions from current users.

514. Teaching Workshop. Building a Cumulative Curriculum in the Sociology Major

Session Organizer and Presider: Teresa Ciabattari, Pacific Lutheran University

Co-Leaders: Laura McCloud, Pacific Lutheran University

Anna Y. Leon-Guerrero, Pacific Lutheran University

In Liberal Learning and the Sociology Major Updated (2004), ASA recommends that departments develop a cumulative and sequential curriculum: "Departments should structure the curriculum of required courses and substantive elective courses to have at least four levels with appropriate prerequisites. At each succeeding level, courses should increase in both depth and integration in the major while providing multiple opportunities for students to develop higher order thinking skills and to improve their written and oral communication skills" (p. 9). Participants in this workshop will explore how build such a curriculum by (1) studying a cumulative curriculum that focuses on outcomes related to sociological thinking, data collection and analysis, and writing; (2) discussing the benefits and challenges of such a curriculum; and (3) creating specific strategies for developing sequential curricula in their own departments.

As the dramatic takeoff in income inequality continues apace and a new Gilded Age opens up, it's often difficult to see the forest for the trees, to make sense of what's happening, and to ensure that we're mobilizing our scarce sociological resources to address the most important questions of our time. We've asked five generations of top sociologists, ranging from those in their 20s to those in their 60s, to share their thoughts on the critical inequality questions of our time and how we might take them on.

Inequalities -- social and economic -- structure politics in a wide variety of political systems. In the US growing inequality has been accompanied by an ever-wider gap between family income and vote. Comparative studies show that since the late 1980s, the US has stood out among rich democracies for its strong correlations between various class indicators and partisanship. From 1950-1980, in contrast, the US had a relatively weak correlation between class and partisanship. Panelists will discuss these patterns in historical and comparative perspective and provide new evidence on the mechanisms -- policy preferences, perceptions of inequality and politics, and values -- that contribute to the link between inequality and politics.

This session's panelists will introduce and lead discussion on patterns, and political economic sources, of inequality at interrelated individual, organizational, institutional, national and transnational levels. Modes of inequality addressed will include gender equality (and work-family reconciliation policy), poverty, and global occupational inequality.

545. Thematic Session. The Micropolitics of Domination

Session Organizer and Presider: Christine L. Williams, University of Texas-Austin

Panel: Kristen Schilt, University of Chicago

Rhacel Salazar Parrenas, University of Southern California
Adia M. Harvey Wingfield, Georgia State University

Discussant: Christine L. Williams, University of Texas-Austin

Social interactions are key sites for the reproduction of structural inequalities. This panel will bring together new and established scholars to explore how inequalities of gender, race, and nation are created in and through daily interactions. The panelists will explore these micro-macro linkages in a variety of contexts, including universities, workplaces, and homes.

546. Policy and Research Workshop. Simulations

Session Organizer and Leader: Michael W. Macy, Cornell University

Co-Leaders: Scott Golder, Cornell University
James A. Kitts, Columbia University

This workshop introduces agent-based computational modeling as a tool of theoretical research that can be used to explore the dynamics of interaction among interdependent adaptive actors. The workshop begins with a brief epistemological overview of "generative" approaches to explanation centered on interactions among agents and how this approach differs from models of interactions among variables. We then discuss basic methodological principles with a focus on best practices and common mistakes. The workshop will conclude with a critical examination of published applications.

8:00 am Meetings

2013-14 ASA Council – Hilton New York Midtown, Clinton, Second Floor

Informational Poster Session 248Research Funding Opportunities and Data Resources*Organizers: Nicole Van Vooren, American Sociological Association*Sunday, August 11, 2013, 1:00 – 4:00 pm*Hilton New York Midtown / Rhinelander Gallery, Second Floor

This poster/exhibit session provides a unique occasion to meet representatives of major research funding institutions and principal investigators, researchers, and managers of large-scale datasets that are publicly available for use. Each display by a funding institution provides a visual overview of research funding and the application process, materials for distribution, and time for direct individual discussion. Data resource representatives are available to talk about the featured datasets, their analytic potential, and issues relating to access and use, including state-of-the-art Internet services to access datasets. This is an opportunity for meeting attendees to learn about these datasets and their potential for research and teaching. All meeting participants, including students, are encouraged to attend.

1. Fellowship Support for SociologistsAmerican Sociological Association

Presenter(s): Roberta Spalter-Roth, Nicole Van Vooren, Michael Kisielewski; 1430 K St. NW Suite 600, Washington, DC 20005; phone: 202-383-9005; fax: 202-638-0882; email: research@asanet.org; webpage: www.asanet.org

The American Sociological Association (ASA) provides funding to its members through several small awards and fellowship programs. These include the Fund for the Advancement of the Discipline small awards program, Teaching Endowment grants, and the Spivack fellowship program for applied and policy research.

The ASA and the National Science Foundation jointly support the Fund for the Advancement of the Discipline (FAD). The goal of FAD is to nurture the development of scientific knowledge by funding ground breaking research initiatives and other scientific research activities. FAD provides support (up to $7,000) for substantive and methodological breakthroughs that can advance knowledge and lead to the acquisition of additional research funds. Awards are limited to individuals with PhD degrees or the equivalent.

ASA provides awards (up to $2,000) through its Howerly Teaching Enhancement Grants Program to support projects that extend the quality of teaching in the United States and Canada. Individuals, departments, and a program or committee of a state or regional association are eligible to apply.

Through its Sydney S. Spivack Program in Applied Social Research and Social Policy, ASA supports a Congressional Fellowship and Community Action Research Fellowships. The ASA Congressional Fellowship provides PhD level sociologists with in-depth experience as a staff member of a Congressional Committee or in a Congressional Office or agency. The Community Action Research Fellowships provide support up to $2,500 for sociological work with community organizations, local public interest groups, or community action projects.

2. Minority Affairs ProgramAmerican Sociological Association

Presenter(s): Jean Shin, Beth Floyd; 1430 K St. NW Suite 600, Washington, DC 20005; phone: 202-383-9005; fax: 202-638-0882; email: minority.affairs@asanet.org; webpage: www.asanet.org

The ASA Minority Fellowship Program (MFP) has existed since 1974 and has supported nearly 500 sociologists of color during this time span. MFP is supported by significant annual contributions from Sociologists for Women in Society, Alpha Kappa Delta, and the Midwest Sociological Society, along with the Association of Black Sociologists, the Southwestern Sociological Association, the Eastern Sociological Society, the Pacific Sociological Association, and numerous individual ASA members. Applicants can be new or continuing graduate students of sociology, who are enrolled in a program that grants the Ph.D. Applications may be for study in any sub-area or specialty in sociology. Applicants must be members of an underrepresented racial/ethnic minority group in the U.S. (e.g. Blacks/African-Americans, Hispanics/Latinos, Asians or Pacific Islanders, or American Indians/Alaska Natives). Applicants must also be U.S. citizens, non-citizen nationals of the U.S., or have been lawfully admitted to the U.S. for permanent residence. Application deadline is January 31st; notifications are made by April 30th. Fellowship is awarded for 12 months. Tuition and fees are arranged with the home department. Fellows are selected each year by the MFP Advisory Panel, a rotating, appointed group of senior scholars in sociology.

3. Sociology ProgramNational Science Foundation

Presenter(s): Patricia White, Saylor Breckenridge; 4201 Wilson Boulevard, Arlington, VA 22230; phone: 703-292-8762; fax: 703-292-9195; email: pwhite@nsf.gov; webpage: www.nsf.gov/funding/pgm_summ.jsp?pims_id=5369&org=SES&from=home

The Sociology Program at the National Science Foundation (NSF) supports basic research on all forms of human social organization -- societies, institutions, groups and demography -- and processes of individual and institutional change. The Program encourages theoretically focused empirical investigations aimed at improving the explanation of fundamental social processes. Included is research on organizations and organizational behavior, population dynamics, social movements, social groups, labor force participation, stratification and mobility, family, social networks, socialization, gender roles, and the sociology of science and technology. The Program supports both original data collections and secondary data analysis that use the full range of quantitative and qualitative methodological tools. Theoretically grounded projects that offer methodological innovations and improvements for data collection and analysis are also welcomed. The Sociology Program also funds doctoral dissertation research to defray direct costs associated with conducting research, for example, dataset acquisition, additional statistical or methodological training, meeting with scholars associated with original datasets, and fieldwork away from the student's home campus.

The Program resides in NSF's Division of Social and Economic Sciences. The Division supports disciplinary and interdisciplinary research, data collection, and studies to improve measurements and methods. Its goal is to develop basic scientific knowledge of social, behavioral and economic systems, organizations and institutions, and human interaction and decision-making. It also provides support for research conferences, doctoral dissertation project, international group travel, and the development data resources and infrastructure.

4. National Institute of Child Health and Human Development

National Institutes of Health

Presenter(s): Rebecca L. Clark, Augie Diana, Michael Spittel, Mercedes Rubio; 6100 Executive Boulevard, Room 8B07H, Bethesda, MD 20892-7510; phone: (301) 496-1174; fax: (301) 496-0962; email: rclark@mail.nih.gov; webpage: <http://www.nichd.nih.gov/about/org/cpr/dbs/index.cfm>

Funding for Social Science Research and Training at the National Institutes of Health

The National Institutes of Health are a major supporter of the social and behavioral sciences, providing an estimated $3 billion in fiscal year 2007. In addition to funding both large and small research projects, NIH also funds fellowships for graduate students, post-doctoral researchers, and senior fellows, career development grants for recent Ph.D.s and more established researchers, supplements to existing research projects to promote diversity in science, center grants, and special grants to support scientific research at educational institutions that have not been major recipients of NIH funds. Substantive areas of interest are broad, and include research in the well-being of human beings across the life course; population studies/demography; the role of education, human capital, and socioeconomic status on health and well-being; physical and mental disability; substance abuse etiology, prevention, and treatment; HIV/AIDS; mental health; health disparities; nursing research; and other research on the role that behavioral and social factors play in health, health care, and well-being.

5. New Immigrant Survey (NIS) Office of Population Research - Princeton University

Presenter(s): Monica Espinoza Higgins; 187 Wallace Hall, Princeton, NJ 08544; phone: 609-258-0081; fax: 609-258-1039; email: espinoza@princeton.edu; webpage: <http://nis.princeton.edu>

The New Immigrant Survey (NIS) is a multi-cohort prospective-retrospective panel survey of new legal immigrants to the United States based on probability samples of administrative records from the U.S. Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services. The NIS provides new kinds of data that will help answer many of the important questions about immigration and concomitantly shed light on basic aspects of human development. The main objective is to provide a public-use database on new legal immigrants to the United States and their children that will be useful for addressing scientific and policy questions about migration behavior and the impacts of migration. Two rounds of interviewing have now been completed.

The first full cohort (NIS-2003-1) was sampled during May through November of 2003, yielding data on 8,573 Adult Sample respondents, 810 sponsor-parent of the Sampled Child, 4,915 spouses, and 1,072 children aged 8-12. The baseline survey was conducted from June 2003 to June 2004. The geographic sampling design takes advantage of the natural clustering of immigrants. It includes all top 85 Metropolitan Statistical Areas (MSAs) and all top 38 counties, plus a random sample of MSAs and counties. A follow-up interview with 2003 cohort was conducted from June 2007 to October 2009 (NIS-2003-2). The number of completed interviews with main sampled immigrants in the Adult Sample was 3,902, plus 1,557 spouses. Among sponsor-parents in the Child Sample and now-adult main children from the Child Sample, the number of completed interviews was 391.

The NIS content includes the following information: demographic, health and insurance, migration history, living conditions, transfers, employment history, income, assets, social networks, religion, housing environment, and child assessment tests. Interviews were conducted in the respondents' language of choice. Round 2 instruments were designed to track changes from the baseline and also included new questions. As with the Round 1 questionnaire, questions that were used in social-demographic-migration surveys around the world as well as the major U.S. longitudinal surveys were reviewed in order to achieve comparability. Public release of NIS-2003-2 is expected end of summer 2013.

6. Mexican Migration Project and Latin American Migration Project Office of Population Research at Princeton University

Presenter(s): Karen A Pren; 237 Wallace Hall, Princeton, NJ 08544; phone: 609-258-8155; fax: 609-258-1039; email: mmp@opr.princeton.edu / lamp@opr.princeton.edu; webpage: mmp.opr.princeton.edu / lamp.opr.princeton.edu

Founded in 1982, the Mexican Migration Project (MMP) has annually administered ethnosurveys to randomly sampled households in various communities in Mexico since 1987. In 1998, the Latin American Migration Project was born. For both projects, each community yields approximately 200 surveyed households in the home country, as well as 10 to 20 households of community members living in the U.S. Responses are converted to electronic format and compiled to form five unique data sets. PERS file contains socioeconomic information for each household member, including basic measures of domestic and international migration. MIG file contains detailed for each household head regarding detailed border-crossing, measures of migration experience of family of origin, extended family and friends, and the social and economic characteristics of last international trip. HOUSE file contains measures of household composition and amenities, as well as data about businesses, land, property, vehicles, and livestock. LIFE and SPOUSE files are detailed life histories of the household head and spouse; each record represents a person-year detailing information about labor force, family/household formation, and cumulative international experience. In addition, we offer the community file with measures of infrastructure, social resources, public services, labor force participation, and education. Currently, available to the public, the MMP contains 134 communities, while the LAMP include multiple communities surveyed in Puerto Rico, Dominican Republic, Haiti, Guatemala, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Colombia, Peru, Paraguay, and Ecuador.

7. Sociology Sungkyunkwan University

Presenter(s): Weidong Wang, Noriko Iwai, Jibum Kim, Yang-Chih Fu; 3-53 Myungryun-dong, Jongno-ku, Seoul, Korea, AL; webpage: <http://www.eassda.org>

The East Asian Social Survey (EASS) is a collaboration of four East Asian societies: China, Japan, Korea, and Taiwan. Modeled after the US General Social Survey, each EASS participating team has conducted its own version of General Social Survey (Chinese General Social Survey, National Survey Research Center at the Renmin University of China, PI: Li Lulu; Japanese General Social Survey, JGSS Research Center at Osaka University of Commerce, PI: Noriko Iwai; Korean General Social Survey, Survey Research Center at Sungkyunkwan University, PI: Sang-Wook Kim; and Taiwan Social Change Survey, Institute of Sociology, Academia Sinica, PI: Yang-Chih Fu). Every two years, each society's General Social Survey includes an EASS module: Family in 2006, Culture and Globalization in 2008, Health and Society in 2010, Network Social Capital in 2012, and Work Life in 2014 (under development). The EASS has become an important social science data source to understand social life in East Asia.

For more information about the EASS, please see <http://www.eassda.org>

8. American Social Indicators

Presenter(s): Emanuel Smikun, Janet Klein; 300 Andover Street, Suite 157, Peabody, MA 01960; phone: 978-210-2262; email: info@socialindicators.org; webpage: www.socialindicators.org

Indicators of Social Justice

At American Social Indicators we focus on social justice as the central sociological value. Rather than following any particular ideology, we develop a database of descriptive and critical indicators of deviations from standards of fairness in the distribution of economic, cultural, family, and political status groups, and in exchange of their shared class interests such as occupation, management, settlement, and property. The critical indicators include social unsustainability, social inflation, social deflation, and social underdevelopment.

The normative standards of fairness are obtained from evaluations of mutual consistency between structures of status groups and of their class interests. Consult the book, "Distributive Justice and Fair Exchange" by Emanuel Smikun, for further details of the underlying social theory and methodology. The book also details methods for proactively reversing these adverse social conditions. Presented are charts of four critical social indicators in their recent history and current trends. We have also developed such indicators for nine regions of the United States:

- New England: Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut
- Middle Atlantic: New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania
- East North-Central: Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio
- West North-Central: Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas
- South: Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, District of Columbia
- East South-Central: Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi
- West South-Central: Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Texas
- Mountain: Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico, Pacific: Washington, Oregon, California, Alaska, Hawaii

9. General Social Surveys NORC at the University of Chicago

Presenter(s): Tom W Smith, Jaesok Son; 1155 East 60th St., Chicago, IL 60637; phone: 773-256-6288; email: smitht@norc.uchicago.edu; webpage: <http://www3.norc.org/GSS+Website>

The General Social Survey (GSS) has been conducted 29 times since 1972, the latest in 2012. The International Social Survey Program (ISSP) has been conducted 28 times. The ISSP now covers 49 countries. Research from the latest rounds of the GSS and ISSP are presented along with new and planned development in the GSS and ISSP.

10. Social Explorer, Inc

Presenter(s): Andrew A. Beveridge, Sydney Beveridge, Ahmed Lacevic; 50 Merriam Ave, Bronxville, NY 10708; phone: 914-337-6237; fax: 914-337-8210; email: info@socialexplorer.com; webpage: www.socialexplorer.com

Social Explorer is a powerful online research and visualization tool. It allows users to explore local and national census data from 1790 to the present, as well as election data, crime data, economic data, the Irish Census from 1863 to near the present, and the General Social Survey and the American National Election Survey, as well as other new data sources. Based on decades of demographic and programming expertise, Social Explorer enables users to conduct research related to the social sciences, history, business and more with ease. Last year Social Explorer was completely redesigned as general visualization and content delivery tool for the social sciences, and includes map visualizations, reports, graphing and charting tools, and tools to design and set-up info graphics. It is now based on new cutting edge technology. It now supports mobile devices.

Last year over 550,000 Social Explorer users created more than 10 million maps and 200,000 reports. Social Explorer is used at most of the top 20 universities, as ranked by US News, and is in use on the campuses of most of the 34 university-based population centers. It has been a go-to resource for the New York Times.

Social Explorer was named an "Outstanding Reference Source" by the Reference and User Services Association (RUSA) in 2010 a division of the American Library Association. Social Explorer was the only online-only research tool featured among that year's awardees. Social Explorer was named an Outstanding Website by the Webmarketing Association in 2012.

Social Explorer and the University of Illinois at Chicago have been awarded several collaborative NSF grants. Social Explorer comes as a Free Edition, which has a limited set of variables, maps and features; A Student Edition, which has a wider array of data and is licensed to Pearson Publishing for use in over two dozen Sociology texts, including the best sellers by Henslin and Maconis, and the new Sociology Project, and a Professional Edition and all the data and more features, which is licensed to colleges, universities and other institutions. The Professional Edition is distributed by Oxford University Press On-line.

11. Minnesota Population Center - Terra Populus University of Minnesota

Presenter(s): Cathy Fitch; 50 Willey Hall, 225 19th Ave. S, Minneapolis, MN 55455; phone: 612-624-5818; fax: 612-626-8375; email: terrapop@umn.edu; webpage: www.terrapop.org

The goal of Terra Populus (TerraPop) is to lower barriers to conducting interdisciplinary human-environment interactions research by making data with different formats from different scientific domains easily interoperable. TerraPop is developing organizational and technical infrastructure to integrate, preserve, and disseminate data describing population and environment over time. TerraPop will incorporate large international microdata and aggregate census datasets, along with land use, land cover, climate, and other environmental datasets. Currently, these data exist in a variety of data structures, have generally inadequate metadata, and have incompatible geographic identifiers. TerraPop is developing methods of integrating data from different domains and data structures based on spatio-temporal linkages among data contents. The new infrastructure will enable researchers to merge data from heterogeneous sources to study relationships between human behavior and the natural world. TerraPop will partner with data archives, data producers, and data users to create a sustainable international organization that will guarantee preservation and access over multiple decades. A beta version of the TerraPop data access system will be available in spring 2013, and initial public release is planned by the end of 2013.

12. Minnesota Population Center- IHIS University of Minnesota, Twin Cities

Presenter(s): Julia A. Rivera Drew; 50 Willey Hall, 225 19th Avenue S., Minneapolis, MN 55455; phone: 612-626-3486; fax: 612-626-8375; email: mpc@umn.edu; webpage: www.ipums.org

The Integrated Health Interview Series (IHIS) simplifies cross-temporal analysis of population health data collected in the U.S. National Health Interview Survey (NHIS). The NHIS are the main source of information on the health of the U.S. population. IHIS is a web-based system that provides integrated data and documentation covering thousands of sociodemographic and health-related variables from the 1960s to the present. IHIS allows researchers to create tailor-made data extracts containing the variables and years relevant to their own projects. Extensive online documentation highlights comparability issues and specifies variable availability, codes and frequencies, and question wording. Funded by NICHD, IHIS helps researchers make consistent comparisons across 4 decades of dramatic changes in health status, health behavior, and healthcare. IHIS data on more than 4 million persons are available for free over the internet (at www.ihis.us) to researchers, educators, and the general public.

13. Minnesota Population Center- Integrated Demographic and Health Surveys (IDHS) University of Minnesota

Presenter(s): Katie Genadek; 50 Willey Hall, 225 19th Avenue South, Minneapolis, MN 55455; phone: 612-624-5818; fax: 612-626-8375; email: kgenadek@umn.edu; webpage: WWW.idhsdata.org

The Demographic and Health Surveys (DHS) are the main source of information on health in the developing world. The Integrated Demographic and Health Surveys (IDHS) Project is designed to facilitate analysis of DHS data across time and space. Supported by a grant from the National Institute for Child Health and Human Development, and carried out in partnership with the MEASURE DHS project that collects DHS data, the IDHS project is focusing initially on data from Africa and India. Housed at the Minnesota Population Center, IDHS is modeled on the MPC's other large data integration projects, such as IPUMS and IHIS, that have been used by over 60,000 researchers around the world. The Demographic and Health Surveys have collected nationally representative and reliable information on health and population trends in developing countries since 1984. Over time, the number of health topics covered by the surveys has grown. Today, topics covered include: fertility, family planning, antenatal care, maternal mortality, infant and child survival, infectious diseases, malaria, malnutrition, HIV knowledge and prevalence, female genital cutting, education and labor force participation, immunization, gender roles, domestic violence, and access to health care. Particularly detailed information is collected for women of childbearing age, their male partners, and children under age 6. IDHS is designed to make analyzing DHS data over time and across countries easier. To achieve these goals, IDHS will:

- Display variable availability across surveys
- Code data consistently across years and countries, without losing information
 - Write variable-specific documentation highlighting comparability issues
 - Offer English-language translations of survey forms
 - Create customized multi-country and multi-year datasets, according to user specifications
 - Provide on-line tabulation tools
 - IDHS data will be available for free online early 2014.

14. Minnesota Population Center- IPUMS-CPS University of Minnesota

Presenter(s): Sarah Flood, Rob Warren, John Robert Warren; 225 19th Avenue South, Minneapolis, MN 55455; phone: 612.624.5818; fax: 612.626.8375; email: ipums@umn.edu; webpage: <http://cps.ipums.org/>

The Integrated Public Use Microdata Series of the Current Population Survey (IPUMS-CPS) is a harmonized set of individual-level data and documentation from 1962 to the present. The CPS is a monthly U.S. household survey conducted jointly by the U.S. Census Bureau and the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The CPS is the primary source of information on the labor force characteristics of the civilian non-institutionalized U.S. population. The U.S. government uses CPS data to calculate poverty and unemployment rates. IPUMS-CPS covers topics such as race and ethnicity, education, income, occupation and industry, migration, disability, and veteran status.

In collaboration with Unicon Research Corporation, a leading disseminator of CPS data, IPUMS-CPS will expand dramatically in coming years. The IPUMS-CPS database currently contains Annual Social and Economic Supplement (ASEC) data collected in March for each year and non-March Basic Monthly Survey data from 1994-2010. We will continue to add additional Basic Monthly Survey data and Supplement data through 2016. In addition to allowing convenient access to all CPS data, IPUMS-CPS will also make the analysis of longitudinal CPS data radically easier by delivering linked files, constructing appropriate weights, and providing comprehensive documentation.

15. Minnesota Population Center- ATUS University of Minnesota

Presenter(s): Sarah Flood, Sandra Hofferth; 225 19th Avenue South, Minneapolis, MN 55455; phone: 6126245818; fax: ; email: atusdata@umn.edu; webpage: www.atusdata.org

The American Time Use Survey (ATUS) is an ongoing time diary survey funded by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics and fielded by the United States Census Bureau. Data collection began with some 20,000 interviews in 2003 and 14,000 responses have been collected each subsequent year. ATUS respondents are a nationally representative sample of persons aged 15 and older drawn from households who have concluded their participation in the Current Population Survey (CPS), the monthly labor force survey in the United States. For each activity during the day covered by the ATUS interview, respondents are asked what they were doing, where they were, and who was with them.

The ATUS Data Extract Builder (ATUS-X) is a web-based data dissemination system developed collaboratively by the University of Maryland Population Research Center and the University of Minnesota Population Center. The ATUS public use data are contained in multiple data files, some referring to the person, some to the household, and others to the individual activity. The ATUS-X eliminates the need to write programs to manipulate these separate files to produce a file that is suitable for analysis. It also simplifies the creation of time use variables broken out along multiple dimensions (e.g., time spent watching television at home in the company of one's spouse).

The ATUS-X system available at www.atusdata.org allows researchers to select study populations for data extracts; to create measures of time in user-defined activity aggregations, broken out as desired by time of day, by location, by whether the respondent was engaged in caring for children during the activity or was engaged in eating or drinking during the activity, and by the presence or absence of specified others; and, to request either a rectangular or a hierarchical data extract. Data for survey years 2003 through 2011 are available now and new data will be added as they are released. Customized downloadable datasets come with SAS, SPSS, and Stata command files, which include variable and value labels for ease of use. ATUS-X also provides researchers with accessible and comprehensive online documentation.

16. American Time Use Survey Bureau of Labor Statistics

Presenter(s): Laura Wronski; 2 Massachusetts Avenue NE, Suite 4675, Washington, DC 20212; phone: 202-691-7846; email: wronski.laura@bls.gov; webpage: www.bls.gov/tus

The American Time Use Survey (ATUS) provides nationally representative estimates of how, where, and with whom Americans spend their time, and is the only federal survey providing data on the full range of nonmarket activities, from childcare to volunteering. Data collected in 2012—including newly-added data on eldercare—were published in June 2013. All ATUS data files are available to the public for free from the Bureau of Labor Statistics website. Research using ATUS data has been conducted in a variety of fields, on a variety of topics. Some examples are: human capital investments in children, household divisions of labor, time use by socioeconomic status, and physical and emotional well-being.

17. Center for Human Resource Research- NLSY79 and NLSY97 The Ohio State University

Presenter(s): Paula C. Baker; 921 Chatham Lane, Suite 100, Columbus, OH 43221-2418; phone: 614-442-7375; fax: 614-442-7329; email: baker.21@osu.edu; webpage: <http://www.chrr.ohio-state.edu/>

National Longitudinal Surveys of Youth, 1979 and 1997 cohorts. The NLSY79 and NLSY97 are two cohorts of the NLS program, a set of surveys sponsored by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor. Currently in its 25th round, the NLSY79 started annual interviewing in 1979 with youths age 14 to 22, and switched to biennial interviewing after the 1994 survey. Data are currently available through 2010, when 7,565 NLSY79 respondents were interviewed. The NLSY97 has completed 15 annual interviews with respondents age 12 to 17 at the time of the first round in 1997; round 16 (the first biennial interview) will begin in fall 2013. Data are available from the 2010-2011 interview with 7,479 respondents, with round 15 slated for release in August 2013. The two surveys include oversamples of blacks and Hispanics. Both cohorts were initially focused on documenting the school-to-work transition, with survey content evolving over time as respondents passed through the life stages. Topics covered in both cohorts include characteristics of jobs, labor market status, education, training, health and physical condition, marital and family characteristics, income and assets, attitudes, environmental characteristics, and military experiences. Scores on the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery are available for 94% of NLSY79 respondents and 80% of NLSY97 respondents. The rich history and wide range of data in each survey support research in a number of topical areas, while the overlapping content of the two surveys provides opportunities for cross-cohort analysis. NLSY79 data can be also merged with data from the Child/Young Adult survey, which tracks children of women in the NLSY79.

NLS public-use data are available at no cost at www.nlsinfo.org/webinvestigator/; detailed geographic data can be obtained by U.S. researchers through an application process supervised by BLS. A searchable, annotated listing of NLS research can be accessed at www.nlsbibliography.org/. More information about the NLSY79 and NLSY97 is available online at www.bls.gov/nls.

18. Center for Human Resource Research- Children of the NLSY79

The Ohio State University

Presenter(s): Paula C. Baker; 921 Chatham Lane, Suite 100, Columbus, OH 43221-2418; phone: 614-442-7375; fax: 614-442-7329; email: baker.21@osu.edu; webpage: <http://www.chrr.ohio-state.edu/>

Children of the National Longitudinal Survey of Youth. The Children of the NLSY79 data set profiles the ability, development, and achievement of the children born to mothers in the National Longitudinal Surveys of Youth/1979 Cohort. Started in 1986 and repeated biennially, the Child surveys are sponsored by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics with support from NICHD. The current public data release contains Child data collected over a span of 25 years, supplemented by maternal histories that date back to when the mothers were age 14-21. The ongoing Child surveys use mother report, direct assessment, and child self-report to gauge the children's health, abilities, problems, activities, attitudes, school progress, and home environment. Starting in 1994, children 15 and older are no longer assessed but interviewed as Young Adults on schooling, employment, training, family experiences, health, and attitudes. The Child/Young Adult sample ranges in age from birth to early forties and contains significant numbers of minority and economically disadvantaged respondents. More than 7,000 children and young adults were interviewed in 2010 (the most recent data release). Many constructed variables are provided in the Child-Young Adult data file, which can be merged with any item from the longitudinal record of the NLSY79 mothers. The NLSY79 main Youth file contains histories of employment, education, income, training, health, marriage, fertility, household composition, and residence. Information is also available from the mother's interviews about her childcare practices, substance use, illegal activities, aptitude, aspirations, and attitudes. The current public data release, available at no cost at <http://www.nlsinfo.org/webinvestigator/>, represents 13 rounds of NLSY79 Child and Young Adult survey data as well as the complete histories of their mothers. A searchable, annotated listing of NLS research can be accessed at: <http://www.nlsbibliography.org/>. Details on the NLSY79 Child and Young Adult surveys can be found online at: <http://www.bls.gov/nls/nlsy79ch.htm>

19. Sociology- WLS

University of Wisconsin-Madison

Presenter(s): Pamela Herd, Vicky Chang; 1180 Observatory Drive / 4412 Sewell Social Sciences, Madison, WI 53706; phone: 608 262-2182; fax: 608 262-8400; email: wls@ssc.wisc.edu; webpage: <http://www.ssc.wisc.edu/wlsresearch/>

The WLS is a long-term study of a random sample of 10,317 men and women who graduated from Wisconsin high schools in 1957 and of their randomly selected brothers or sisters. The WLS sample is broadly representative of white, non-Hispanic American men and women who have completed at least a high school education. Almost 85 percent of surviving graduates continue to participate in the WLS. Public data, documentation, and publications are available online. Survey data were collected from the original respondents or their parents in 1957, 1964, 1975, 1992, 2003, and 2011, and from a selected sibling in 1977, 1993, 2004, and 2011. Survey data were collected from the spouses of the graduates in 2004 and the spouses of the siblings in 2005. The data cover nearly every aspect of the participants' lives from early life socioeconomic background, schooling, family and work to health, social participation, civic engagement, well-being, and cognition. The study also has a wealth of unique data including examples such as administrative IQ scores from high school, information collected from high school yearbooks that include measures of attractiveness, proxy measures for obesity, and complete lists of student activities for all respondents. Examples of administrative data include Medicare records, Social Security records (forthcoming), and resource data on primary and secondary schools attended by participants. The WLS also collected saliva samples from which we have created a DNA file with 90 SNPs. The newest data include anthropometric and functioning measures which add yet a new dimension to the many types of WLS data.

Visitors to the poster session can talk to project leaders about the study, the WLS pilot grant program, and the availability of genetic data.

20. The Association of Religion Data Archives Pennsylvania State University, Department of Sociology

Presenter(s): Gail Johnston Ulmer, Nathaniel Porter, Benjamin Gurrentz; 211 Oswald Tower, University Park, PA 16802; phone: 814-865-6258; fax: 814-863-7216; email: support@thearda.com; webpage: <http://www.thearda.com>

The Association of Religion Data Archives (ARDA) provides free access to the highest quality data on religion. The ARDA allows you to interactively explore American and international data using online features for generating national profiles, maps, church membership overviews, GIS mapping, QuickStats, QuickLists, denominational heritage trees, tables, charts, and other summary reports. Over 700 data files are available for online preview (including multiple years of the General Social Survey) and virtually all can be downloaded free of charge. The Learning Center was recently expanded and now includes detailed lesson plans for instructors, new Learning Modules for students, YouTube videos of different religious groups, an expanded dictionary of religious and statistical terms, guidelines for observing religious groups, and other interactive online tools. Housed in the Social Science Research Institute at the Pennsylvania State University, the ARDA is funded by the Lilly Endowment, the John Templeton Foundation, the Pennsylvania State University, and Chapman University.

21. Division of Viral Hepatitis Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

Presenter(s): Deborah Holtzman, Karin A. Mack; 1600 Clifton Road, NE Mailstop G-37, Atlanta, GA 30333; phone: 404-718-8555; fax: 404-718-8588; email: dxh4@cdc.gov; webpage: www.cdc.gov

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), based in Atlanta, Georgia, is the nation's lead public health agency. Its mission is to prevent and control disease, injury, and disability and to prepare for emerging health threats. CDC seeks to accomplish its mission in partnership, both domestically and globally, by monitoring health, detecting and investigating health problems, conducting research to enhance prevention, developing and advocating sound public health policies, implementing prevention strategies, promoting healthy behaviors, fostering safe and healthful environments, and providing leadership and training. The agency maintains a full research and practice agenda that includes the prevention of infectious diseases, chronic diseases, injuries, workplace hazards, birth defects, and disabilities, in addition to protection from environmental hazards such as lead and other toxic substances. CDC employs scientists from a variety of disciplines including those from the social and behavioral sciences. Each of these disciplines brings a unique perspective to the conduct of public health research and practice which significantly contributes to CDC's mission overall. Information will be available regarding job opportunities, postgraduate training, the Epidemic Intelligence Service (EIS), and funding opportunities.

22. Center for Finance, Access and Cost Trends Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality

Presenter(s): Terceira A. Berdahl, Jim Kirby; 540 Gaither road, Rockville, MD 20850; phone: 301-427-1687; email: terceira.berdahl@ahrq.hhs.gov; webpage: www.ahrq.gov

Sponsored by the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality (AHRQ), the Medical Expenditure Panel Survey (MEPS) is a vital resource designed to continually provide policymakers, researchers, health care professionals, businesses and others with timely, comprehensive information about the United States population's health, health care utilization, and costs. The MEPS is a continuous on-going nationally representative survey initiated in 1996. MEPS collects data on the specific health care services that Americans use, how frequently they use them, the cost of those services and how they are paid, as well as data on the cost, scope, and breadth of private health insurance held by and available to the U.S. civilian non-institutionalized population. MEPS is unparalleled for the degree of detail in its data, as well as its ability to link health status and health care to the demographic, employment, economic, family and other characteristics of survey respondents. In addition, MEPS is the only national survey that provides a foundation for estimating the impact of changes in sources of payment, insurance coverage, and family status on different economic groups or special populations such as the poor, elderly, veterans, the uninsured, and racial and ethnic minorities. These data have been used to examine factors associated with access to health care, estimates of eligibility for federal programs, racial and ethnic disparities in health, and issues related to the quality and satisfaction with health care. The MEPS is useful for monitoring the effects of social policy on population health, healthcare access, utilization, and quality across time and policy relevant subgroups. All MEPS public use data files are available for down-loading free of charge from the MEPS website: www.meps.ahrq.gov.

ASA Minority Fellowship Program Fellows

The following current and former MFP Fellows are participating in this year's Annual Meeting Program. ASA and the 2012 Program Committee are pleased to highlight professional activities of these fellows. The ASA Minority Fellowship Program (MFP), in operation since 1974, has been a significant factor in recruiting minorities into Sociology. Fellows continue to make important contributions to the growth of the discipline. The Association takes great satisfaction in acknowledging this form of professional activity.

ASA Honors Program Students

The following undergraduate sociology students were accepted into the ASA Honors Program for 2013. This program requires nearly a week of participation in professional events held concurrently with the Annual Meeting. Students receive full credit for participation only after completion of the program on August 13th.

ASA and the 2013 Program Committee are pleased to highlight these students' introduction to the profession of sociology. The Honors Program has a 39-year history of involving sociology students in the ASA Annual Meeting. This year's students are wearing gold ribbons showing their Honors Program affiliation. Please welcome them to their first national meeting!

Down to Earth Sociology

Introductory Readings,
Fourteenth Edition
By James M. Henslin

This fourteenth edition of the most popular anthology in the field includes new articles on our changing world while retaining its classic must-read essays. The forty-six selections here, including work by Peter Berger, Herbert Gans, Erving Goffman, Donna Eder, Zella Luria, C. Wright Mills, Deborah Tannen, Barrie Thorne, Sidney Katz, Philip Zimbardo, and others, will continue to open new windows onto the social realities that shape our world.

The World of Sociology

Journals from M.E. Sharpe

International Journal of Sociology welcomes incoming editor Sandra Marquart-Pyatt, of the Department of Sociology and the Environmental Society and Policy Program at Michigan State University, who is succeeding longtime editor Tadeusz Krauze, Department of Sociology, Hofstra University.

Chinese Sociological Review is edited by Xiaogang Wu and published in association with the Center for Applied Social and Economic Research, Hong Kong University of Science and Technology, and the National Survey Research Center, Renmin University of China.

Enjoy FREE access to all five journals during the month of August. Go to www.tinyurl.com/sharpe-ASA2013.

Chinese Education & Society is edited by Stanley Rosen, professor of political science and director of the East Asian Studies Center at the University of Southern California, and Gerard Postiglione, professor at the Faculty of Education and director of the Wah Ching Center of Research on Education in China of the University of Hong Kong. Russian Education & Society and Sociological Research are edited by T. Anthony Jones, professor of sociology at Northeastern University and executive director of the Gorbachev Foundation North America.

Institutional subscribers to these three titles receive online access to complete digital archives back to volume 1, with coverage of China during the Cultural Revolution and the Soviet Union during the Thaw.

Institutional subscriptions to all M.E. Sharpe journals are available in print and online or online only.

M.E. Sharpe is a Portico partner.

A national study of socioeconomics and health over lifetimes and across generations

- 38 waves of data collected on a nationally representative sample of over 9,000 U.S. families, allowing the study of life-course evolution and change within families over multiple generations
- Demographic, economic, sociological, and psychological data including marriage, birth histories, adult and childhood health conditions, poverty indicators, income, wealth, expenditures, food security, housing, mortgage distress and foreclosures
- Health and aging data, including time use, well-being, retirement transitions, onset and duration of chronic health conditions, activities of daily living, instrumental activities of daily living, mortality, health care expenditures, pensions and wealth accumulation
- Freely accessible, web-based Data Center provides customized datasets in a variety of formats including SAS, Stata, SPSS, Excel, and Text
- Create intergenerational datasets by linking multiple waves of PSID data (e.g., multiple generations of family members including elderly parents and adult children)

Child Development Supplement (CDS) / Transition into Adulthood (TA) Study

- Three waves of CDS data on 3,500 children aged 0-12 from PSID families who were first interviewed in 1997, re-interviewed in 2002 at ages 5-18, and again in 2007 at ages 10-18
- Re-interview in 2005, 2007, 2009, 2011, and 2013 for CDS young adults aged 18 years and older in the TA study
- Measures of child/adolescent cognitive, social and behavioral development, as well as details on extra-curricular activities, sports and community groups
- Rich information about family process and home environment
- Unique comprehensive national time-use information on children and youth of all ages
- Data from all waves of CDS and TA are freely available at the PSID website

FIVE DAYS AT MEMORIAL

Life and Death in a Storm-Ravaged Hospital

By Sheri Fink

Five Days at Memorial is Pulitzer Prize winner Sheri Fink's landmark investigation of patient deaths at a New Orleans hospital ravaged by Hurricane Katrina. Fink exposes the hidden dilemmas of end-of-life care and reveals just how ill-prepared we are for the impact of large-scale disasters. Five Days at Memorial radically transforms your understanding of human nature in crisis.

THE MAKING OF GLOBAL CAPITALISM

The Political Economy of American Empire

By Leo Panitch and Sam Gindin

This groundbreaking work demonstrates the relationship between modern capitalism and the American state, including its role in promoting free trade and capital movements. Through a powerful historical survey, it shows how the US has superintended the restructuring of other states in favor of competitive markets and coordinated the management of increasingly frequent financial crises.

Racism without Racists
Color-Blind Racism and the Persistence of Racial Inequality in America
FOURTH EDITION
By Eduardo Bonilla-Silva

"Updated to include a discussion of the significance of Obama's first term and 2012 re-election, this fourth edition of Bonilla-Silva's now-classic Racism without Racists documents in remorseless (and often hilarious) detail the white evasions that enable white denial of the reality of ongoing illicit structural racial advantage."

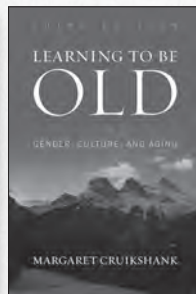

—Charles W. Mills, Northwestern University

Racism without Racists is a provocative challenge to color-blind thinking in America. The fourth edition of Eduardo Bonilla-Silva's acclaimed book adds a chapter on what he calls "the new racism" to provide students with the essential foundation to explore race in more depth. This edition also updates Bonilla-Silva's assessment on race in America after President Barack Obama's re-election.

Index of Session Participants

Numbers refer to Session Numbers (not pages) in the Program Schedule.

For roundtable sessions, table numbers are given after the session number. (For example, a presenter at the tenth table on session 350 will have "350-10" in this index.) Please note that this index also includes session organizers.
