

Footnotes

OCTOBER 1987

VOLUME 15
NUMBER 7

ASA Awards Presented in Chicago

John W. Riley, Jr. (left) receives Distinguished Career Award for the Practice of Sociology from Larry E. Suter.

by Lionel Maldonado

Six scholars were recognized during the Presidential Address and Awards Ceremony at this year's Annual Meeting in Chicago for their contributions to the discipline. Wilbert Moore was honored with the Career of Distinguished Scholarship Award and John W. Riley, Jr., with the Distinguished Career Award for the Practice of Sociology. Sandra Harding and Judith Rollins shared the Jessie Bernard Award. William Gamson received the Distinguished Contributions to Teaching Award and Andrew G. Walder was presented the Distinguished Scholarly Publication Award. The Common Wealth Award will be made at a separate ceremony in March 1988 by the Trustees of the Bank of Delaware and will be announced in a future issue of Footnotes.

The Jessie Bernard Award

The Jessie Bernard Award is given in alternate years in recognition of scholarly work that has enlarged the horizons of sociology to encompass the role of women in society. The contribution may be an exceptional single work, several pieces of work, or significant cumulative work done throughout a professional career.

This year, the award went to two authors of exceptional books: Sandra Harding for The Science Question in Feminism (Cornell University Press, 1986) and Judith Rollins for Between Women: Domestics and Their Employers (Temple University Press, 1986).

Sandra Harding (PhD New York University, 1973) holds a joint appointment in the Departments of Sociology and Philosophy, as well as being Director of Women's Studies at the University of Delaware. Diane Margolis, in presenting the award, characterized The Science Question in Feminism as "pathbreaking work . . . is a critical analysis that raises fundamental questions about the androcentric epistemological foundations of modern science. Not only is it a brilliant feminist critique of science, it challenges the remnants of scientific dualism in feminist theory itself."

Margolis went on to note that Rollins' Between Women: Domestics and Their Employers, the Award co-winner, is a Wilbert E. Moore (right) receives plaque for the Career of Distinguished Scholarship Award from Lenore Weitzman.

"...quiet and moving book based on a participant observation study of the relationship between black female domestic workers and the white women who employed them. It makes a unique theoretical contribution to our understanding of the dynamics of race, class, and gender and to relationships of dominance and subordination." Rollins earned her PhD in 1983 at Brandeis University.

Distinguished Scholarly Publication Award

Presented by Cora Marrett, this award went to Andrew G. Walder (PhD Michigan 1981), currently at Harvard on leave from Columbia University, for his book, Communist Neo-Traditionalism: Work and Authority in Chinese Industry (University of California Press, 1986).

Marrett summarized the Committee's assessment of Walder's book as one based on data from intensive interviews

1988 Guide Listings

Listing forms for the 1988 Guide to Graduate Departments of Sociology were sent to all PhD and MA-granting departments on the ASA files in early September. All listings must be returned to the ASA office by October 31, 1987, in order to appear in the 1988 Guide.

The ASA encourages all graduate departments to list in the annual Guide, so we can provide the most accurate and comprehensive information on graduate programs currently available. The Guide is a valuable resource to faculty, prospective students, graduate advisors and others interested in the wide variety of information the ASA compiles. This year the ASA is offering a special pre-payment discount, as well as listing proofs to departments, in an effort to improve the upcoming edition of the Guide.

Listing forms are sent directly to the chairs of graduate departments. Graduate department chairs are urged to contact Karen Gray Edwards, Publications Manager, at the ASA office if they have not yet received their forms. □ with Chinese emigres, in addition to government documents, newspaper accounts, and scholarly publications to argue for a new perspective on communist society. To Walder, she continued, authority relations within communist industry are "neo-traditional": that is, they link the worker socially, economically, and politically to the enterprise and to a network of particularistic ties within it. Thus, while it is a case

See Awards, page 3

Dues Renewals on the Way

Within the month, you should receive your renewal notice for your 1988 dues. After completing the form (making your choices for journals and Sections), return two copies with your check or credit card number and keep the pink copy for your records. Once the Executive Office processes your payment, you will receive a mailing of membership benefits: the Publications Price List, the Coupon Listing, a brochure on teaching workshops, and much more! Renew early! Thank you. □

INSIDE

Footnotes

- 2 Observing, Council Briefs, NSF Appointments, New Section
- 4 Photos from Chicago
- 5 Profile of Herbert J. Gans
- 6 MFP Announces New Fellows, Insurance Plan
- 7 Sociologists Win Awards, TRC Seeks Materials
- 8 ASA/NSF Small Grant Awards, New TRC Products
- 9 ASA Departments and Business Columns
- 14 Obituaries

MFP Invites Applications

The American Sociological Association's Minority Fellowship Program announces doctoral fellowships and dissertation support for 1988-89.

Open to US citizens and permanent visa residents, including, but not limited to Blacks, Hispanics (e.g., Chicano, Cuban, Puerto Rican), American Indian, and Asian (e.g., Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Filipino, Samoan, Hawaiian, Guamanian) and who document an interest in and commitment to teaching, research, and service careers on the sociological aspects of mental health issues of ethnic and racial minorities.

Open to students beginning or continuing study in sociology departments. Potential for success in graduate studies, financial need, and an express commitment to sociological work on mental health issues relevant to ethnic/racial minorities are considered.

Fellowships. Stipend is $6552; arrangements for tuition payment made with university or department. Approximately 10-15 new awards will be made.

Dissertation Awards. Up to $5,000 and restricted to expenses directly related to dissertation costs (e.g., purchase of data sets, printing research instruments, typing costs, computer expenses, etc.). Funds not awarded for living expenses.

Application Deadline. January 15, 1988. Write or call for application forms: Minority Fellowship Program, American Sociological Association, 1722 N Street NW, Washington, DC 20036; (202) 833-3410. □

Observing

Reflections on the Annual Meeting

The weather was about the only major complaint we heard during the 1987 annual meeting of the American Sociological Association. The 82nd Annual Meeting brought more than 3000 paid attendees to Chicago, for what was generally acknowledged as exciting and highly successful. The unique feature of this meeting was the fact that not only was the theme focused on cross-national research and practice, but a large number of participants were from just about all parts of the globe. Judging by all the comments I heard, Margaret Archer, President of the International Sociological Association, did indeed speak for our colleagues near and far when she thanked President Melvin L. Kohn and the 1987 Program Committee for having organized such a meeting with an exciting and well-planned cross-national focus, and then labored to find travel funds for so many of them.

This meeting fit well with the upbeat tone of my Annual Report in the August issue of Footnotes. There is a sense that sociology is very much alive in the world. That does not mean that in all places and in all aspects it is equally flourishing. Rather, the meeting suggests that there is something like a series of continua of liveness, acceptance, and use in teaching, research and practice. Thus, for example, it may well be that England is the current dominant force in sociological theory, that the U.S. dominates in research methodology, and that several of the European countries have incorporated sociology into the policy/decision-making phases of social life.

Let me illustrate the point based on the Thematic Session I chaired, "On the Nature of Sociological Research and Practice, Worldwide." The five panel members present were from India, Israel, Norway, Japan and Poland respectively. At one end of the continuum is Norway, where sociology and the other social sciences are very much a part of the social policy making process, with sociology in the ascendancy when welfare programs are expanding, while political science and economics dominate the process in times of fiscal restraint and budget tightening. At the other end of the continuum is Japan, where, according to Dr. Ken-ichi Tomimaga, sociology occupies the bottom rung of the status ladder, despite the group-centered focus of Japanese economic life. Israel and India occupy positions in-between. Most surprising was the presentation by Dr. Stefan Novak of Poland. There, sociologists work both sides of the political aisle, and are respected by the government and the Church leaders. Moreover, according to Dr. Novak, his colleagues even sit down together afterwards to reflect in a civil manner on the policy-making process in which they were engaged on opposing sides.

I have been wondering who might have presented the picture regarding the situation in the United States. To what extent do the recent ASA programs and presidential addresses present a picture, however incomplete, of the present state of sociology in the United States? Is there a dominant pattern? Are we more involved in the policy process than we recognize. And, may we not expect to capture a more complete picture in the 1988 meeting in Atlanta? President Gans has set as his theme, "Sociology in America," an examination of "how sociological tools can help us understand the discipline's relations to, and conflicts with, a number of significant groups in the country."

Chicago turned out to be "Everybody's Kind of Town." Now it's time to get on with the planning for Atlanta. Members of the Southern Sociological Society already know well its many charms and points of interest. It remains for the rest of us to discover why and how it has grown far beyond Floyd Hunter's depiction of it as a "Regional City" in his classic study Community Power Structure.—WVDA □

Sections Address Science, Technology

Over one hundred people attended an organizing meeting for a new ASA Section on Science, Knowledge, and Technology. With sufficient names on a petition to be considered "in formation," the new Section also received approval from the Committee on Sections and the ASA Council. Interested ASA members can join the Section by sending $5.00 dues to the ASA Executive Office, 1722 N Street NW, Washington, DC 20036. Over the next two years, at least 200 members must join the Section on Science, Knowledge, and Technology for it to become the twenty-sixth section of the ASA.

Section on Environment Changes Name

The Section on Environmental Sociology was among the first ASA sections, having been established in 1975. Although it is one of the smaller sections, its vitality is seen in a lengthy, informative, and regularly published newsletter and an active annual meeting program. Frederick Buttel, Cornell University, and chair of the Section notes an "explosion of interest in the Section in issues relating to technology—including but not limited to social aspects of technological risk and risk assessment, the social and environmental consequences of new high-technologies, and the political economy of the regulation of science and technology. Over two years ago at the 1985 annual meeting in Washington, DC, discussions were initiated about changing the name of the Section to include "technology." There appeared to be a strong consensus that technological issues had become a sui generis component of the intellectual life of the Section and that a name change was warranted to convey more accurately the nature of the scholarship that was being done."

After polling members' opinions about a name change and publishing a series of papers pro, con, and neutral to the proposal, Section members voted to be called the "new" Section on Environment and Technology. ASA members interested in the Section can contact Buttel and join using the dues renewal form they will receive this fall. □

Council Briefs from Chicago

The 1986-87 Council held its third meeting, sandwiched in the annual meeting on Thursday, August 20, chaired by President Melvin L. Kohn. The fast-paced four hours were the final meeting for outgoing Council members Matilda White Riley, William Gamson, Stanley Lieberman, Francesca M. Cancian, Rose Laub Coser, and Barbara Heyns. On the following Saturday and Sunday, when the halls of the Palmer House were deserted, President Herbert Gans chaired the first meeting of the 1987-88 Council, welcoming new Council members Joan Huber, Glen H. Elder, Jr., Lois DeFleur, Nancy B. Tuma, Randall Collins, and Richard T. Campbell.

A substantial part of the Council meeting was devoted to the financial health of the ASA. Secretary Michael T. Aiken and Executive Officer William V. D'Antonio outlined budget shortfalls. In particular, library subscriptions to journals and sales of the Index have been under projections. ASA membership continues to grow at a slow, steady rate. Many agenda items were discussed in context of budget shortfalls and a collective resistance to raising dues.

The most recent publications (Teaching Sociology, Sociological Methodology and Sociological Theory) have had start up support from the Rose Fund, which has not been recovered in library subscriptions, lowering the principal of the Fund.

ASA Council:

- voted to protect the Rose Fund such that its balance not be allowed to fall below $300,000 in 1987 and that any shortfall should be replaced from the general fund.

- directed the Publications Committee to seek commercial publishers for Sociological Methodology and Sociological Theory.

- reaffirmed its commitment to the new journal Sociological Practice Review and urged a search for outside funding as well as a prepublication subscription drive.

- discussed the recommendations from the Committee on Committees and finalized a ranked slate for all ASA Committee appointments.

- approved a recommendation to submit for ratification by the membership a proposal to amend the ASA Constitution by adding the current President and Past President as voting members of the Executive Office and Budget Committee.

- formed a standing committee to develop procedures for an annual ASA dissertation award to be made for the first time in 1989.

- asked the Executive Office to explore means of reducing the costs of producing the Preliminary and/or Final annual meeting programs.

- accepted the report of the subcommittee on ASA relations with other sociological associations that encouraged the ASA Executive Office to inform other groups of the options for use of ASA facilities and relevant deadlines.

- approved the formation of a new Section on Science, Knowledge, and Technology

- approved the practice of allowing each Section to confer two non-cash awards, one of which is an award to a student.

- approved the appointment of J. Michael Brooks, University of Kentucky as the Field Coordinator Designate of the Teaching Services Program.

- voted for Cleveland as the site of the 1991 annual meeting, contingent on completion of negotiation on all parts of the contract.

- advanced the MA Certification process by forming a standing committee to administer the examination.—CBH □

Presser, Moen Appointed by NSF to Lead Sociology Program

Stanley Presser has been promoted to Program Director for Sociology at the National Science Foundation, and Phyllis Moen has been appointed the new Associate Program Director.

Before joining the Foundation in 1985, Presser was director of the Detroit Area Study in the Sociology Department at the University of Michigan. His publications include Questions and Answers in Attitude Surveys: Experiments on Question Form, Working, and Context (with Howard Schuman) and Survey Questions: Handcrafting the Standardized Questionnaire (with Jean Converse). He has served on the editorial boards of Public Opinion Quarterly, Sociological Methods and Research, and Social Psychology Quarterly, as well as on the Board of Overseers of the NORC General Social Survey. He is presently a member of the executive council of the American Association for Public Opinion Research, and has chaired its Standards Committee.

Phyllis Moen is on leave of absence from Cornell University, where she has a joint appointment as Associate Professor in Human Development and Family Studies, and in Sociology. Moen earned her PhD in Sociology at the University of Minnesota in 1978. She is author of numerous articles on the sociology of work and the family and has recently completed a book, Parallel Roles: Working Parents and Well-Being, to be published in the Life Course Studies Series, University of Wisconsin Press. Her most recent research project is a longitudinal study of women's roles over the life course in collaboration with Robin M. Williams, Jr., funded by the National Institute on Aging. □ study of contemporary Chinese industry, Communist Neo-Traditionalism sharpens the analysis through detailed comparisons with industrial relations in the Soviet Union, Japan, and the United States. Walder's volume offers readers an account of relationships and practices in factories that is provocative and forceful. Marrett offered the award committee's judgment that Communist Neo-Traditionalism is at once serious in topic, scholarly in approach, and eminently readable; it stands as a model for research and scholarship in the discipline. It is the ASA's policy that recipients of this award are entitled to offer a lecture-ship known as the Sorokin Lecture, at ASA expense. Regional and state sociological associations/societies may apply to ASA to have this scholar deliver the lecture at their annual meeting.

Judith Rollins

Sandra Harding

Awards, from page 1

Distinguished Contributions to Teaching Award

This annual award honors outstanding contributions to the undergraduate and/or graduate teaching and learning of sociology. It may recognize either a career contribution or a specific product; individuals, departments, schools, and other collective actors are eligible.

William A. Gamson (PhD Michigan 1959) received the Award this year. Gamson's many contributions, noted Richard Gelles on behalf of the Award Committee, have been highly visible and widely recognized. He developed, for example, SIMSOC in 1964 as a laboratory for introductory sociology. The simulation later was published by the Free Press (1969) and, over the years, perhaps one-quarter of a million persons have played SIMSOC. Most have been students, but a significant proportion have been adults enrolled in workshops and training programs.

William A. Gamson (right) accepts Distinguished Contributions to Teaching Award from Richard Gelles.

Gamson has been one of the pioneers in the use of simulations. He has published extensively on simulations and has served as an editorial board member of the journal, Games and Simulations. His newest game, What's News, was published in 1984 by The Free Press.

Gamson also has been an important advocate on behalf of teaching. He has worked long and hard as the liaison between ASA Council and the Association's Committee on Teaching. He helped institutionalize the ASA Teaching Services Program. It is for these major important contributions and the truly distinctive excellence in the development of teaching materials, Gelles said, that William Gamson was honored with the 1987 Distinguished Contributions to Teaching Award.

William Gamson has been honored in the Association for other achievements. He was awarded the Sorokin Award in 1969 for his book Power and Discontent. This award now is known as the Distinguished Scholarly Publication Award. Gamson also served a three-year term on ASA Council, which ended this year.

Distinguished Career Award for the Practice of Sociology

In the words of Larry Suter who presented the citation in Chicago, John W. Riley, Jr. (PhD Harvard, 1936) was selected for this award as a result of his very active and long life as an academic and applied sociologist in a wide variety of settings. Active in research in the academic settings of Marietta, Wellesley, and Douglass Colleges, Jack went on to build the sociology department at Rutgers. At the same time, he was a sought-after consultant. Among the major corporations seeking his advice and skills were CBS, and Ford Motor Company. He serves and has served on many boards, including the National Urban League, American Foundation for the Blind, and others.

During WW II, Jack was among the pioneering group of social scientists whose far-ranging contributions found wide acceptance in other disciplines. It was during this time that he served with General Eisenhower in Europe. Under fire, he was on the Normandy beachhead to begin a survey of public opinion of the French population that had been under German occupation for four years. He received the Distinguished Service Citation for his efforts at this time. Later, under General

MacArthur in Korea, he surveyed public opinion of both South and North Koreans during the unstable war conditions of 1950-51. These field research experiences have been important in shaping mass communications research in sociology.

Among the comments of one among the many who nominated Jack Riley for this award is that he is a "...missionary for sociology in the most positive sense, informing non-sociologists how... (the sociological perspective and its findings)... can help them..." understand the contemporary world.

Suter proffered that perhaps the most striking illustration of this point is in Jack's career at The Equitable Life Assurance Society. Having become convinced that The Equitable needed to support a program of basic social research, its chief executive sought, in his own words, a "people person" and in 1960 Jack Riley was appointed to head its Office of Social Research. He later became a senior Vice President of the firm. It was in that position that Jack brought a disciplined knowledge of the workings of society to bear on the problems and policy processes at Equitable. Among a myriad of other visionary moves, he actively encouraged the hiring and promotion of women and minorities long before affirmative action became a national concern. At the same time, he became a pioneer in corporate social responsibility, actively encouraging a consortium of insurance companies to promote the rebuilding of inner-cities.

Typically, Jack managed to combine his activist role with scholarship while at Equitable. He helped launch a new field of inquiry, the sociology of death and has helped focus its subsequent study. Jack has been a proficient writer on a range of topics, including teaching, scale analysis, aging, sociological research, and the corporation.

It was for his pioneering leadership and for his contributions to the discipline as well as to social and corporate policy and practice that John W. Riley, Jr., was selected by the Committee to receive the ASA Distinguished Career Award for the Practice of Sociology. Riley is the second recipient of this award.

Career of Distinguished Scholarship Award

Wilbert E. Moore (PhD Harvard 1940) was this year's recipient of the Career of Distinguished Scholarship Award. The award was presented by Lenore J. Weitzman.

Moore's still-active career spans five decades. It has been a career of truly distinguished and innovative scholarship, as often bridging several social and behavioral sciences as breaking new ground in his home discipline. In presenting the award, Weitzman elected to discuss Moore's career in terms of decades and noting only highlights from each.

The first decade, she noted, takes the self-described farm boy from the University of Oregon to Harvard, where he had been awarded a graduate fellowship. There, he joined a stellar cohort of young social scientists, Robert K. Merton, Robin Williams, George Homans, Charles Loomis, Kingsley Davis, among others. He studied with Talcott Parsons and Pitirim Sorokin.

Moore's graduate career was capped with his 1940 dissertation, on slavery and abolition. It was an important venture into social stratification, a field that he and Kingsley Davis would do much to shape and develop in subsequent years.

Wilbert Moore was hired at Penn State by Kingsley Davis, who had preceded him by a year. Both highly productive there, their activity was stimulated in part by a unique contest between them. Moore's talents for forging links between sociology and economics led him to propose a system whereby the loser in the competition for the greatest number of pages written each month had to pay at the rate of ten cents per page, a rate that sometimes would total a whole dollar for the winner. It would appear that their spirited competition lasted many years.

Moore and Davis soon moved to Princeton. It was while there that they published their classic article, "Some Principles of Stratification" (American Sociological Review, 1945), a functional analysis of inequality as a general property of social systems. This article did much to stimulate sociology and related disciplines; it became one of the most widely cited, debated, and frequently anthologized articles in sociology.

Not content to rest on his laurels, Wilbert Moore published three major books the following year, 1946. The first, Industrial Relations and the Social Order, had been completed more than a year earlier but had remained unprinted due to the paper shortage during WW II.

The volume established Moore as the leading authority in industrial relations. It exemplified an important theme in his style of scholarship, namely, that important economic issues should not be left solely to economists. Moreover, it gave birth to an entire new field, industrial sociology.

Moore's interests in industrialization and labor took a comparative focus in the second decade of his career. He was among the first American sociologists to recognize the growing importance of the world scene. He developed expertise on comparative aspects of industrialization and the spread of the industrial order outside the West, particularly in Latin America. His fourth book, Industrialization and Labor, published in 1951 and his major work of that decade, inspired a generation of comparative sociological analysts.

The third decade of Moore's illustrious career includes his book, Social Change (1963). Considered a masterpiece by many for its compact nature (a mere 128 pages) that covers everything from attitudinal change to revolution, it was translated into nine languages.

This third decade is important in Moore's career for another reason, too. It saw his election as President of the American Sociological Association in 1966. This high honor kept him in league with his Harvard mentors and fellow graduate students similarly esteemed: Parsons in 1949, Robert Merton in 1957, Robin Williams in 1958, Kingsley Davis in 1959, George Homans in 1964, Charles Loomis in 1967, and Sorokin in 1965.

Wilbert Moore's pioneering spirit was clearly evident in the fourth decade of his career. He left Princeton for the Russell Sage Foundation to become, in his words, a philanthropist. There, he actively promoted the social indicators project which culminated in his book with Elinor Sheldon, Indicators of Social Change. And being himself a trustworthy person, Moore found himself increasingly entrusted with decisions while at Russell Sage.

And so it was that in 1970 Wilbert Moore took another pioneering step when he moved to Denver to become a Professor of Sociology and Law at the

Bits and Pieces from Chicago . . .

Eager job seekers scan employment service board.

The reception for foreign scholars honored the special guests at the meeting.

Robert Newby (center) greets students at the Minority Fellowship Program reception.

ASA President Melvin L. Kohn passes the gavel and the presidency to Herbert J. Gans.

The Welcoming and Orientation Party drew large crowds seeking information and refreshments.

The University of Hawaii-Manoa had a good reunion at the Departmental Alumni Night.

More displays and exhibits than ever, including computer vendors and good old books.

The natives were friendly, but they can't spell.

Herb Gans: "How Do You Know That?"

Judith R. Blau, State University of New York-Albany

Aside from their broad scope, substantive significance, and just plain good writing, Herbert J. Gans' contributions to the discipline have become enduring classics because they teach us and help us to teach our students something very fundamental about the essential logic of the sociological enterprise. "How do you know that?" is an expression that Herb once sprawled over a paper of mine. It is an expression Herb uses fairly frequently, I have since learned from his students, to indicate his concern about rigor that links the assumptions with the data and these in turn with the conclusions. There are many reasons why The Urban Villagers, The Levittowners, and Deciding What's News are important, but one reason is that each is an exemplar of rigorous sociology. Long before I met Herb Gans, he became an ally in the classroom—helping me to teach Freshmen what sociology was all about. But now Herb is a dear friend, and a formal introduction will not do. It is Herb Gans, the person, to whom you will be first introduced, then Herb Gans, the free-spoken scholar, and finally, Herb Gans, the sociologist.

The start of Herb's and my friendship probably owes as much to our children as anything. Before mellowing with adolescence, our kids had a scrappy and competitive relationship while strongly bound by loyalty and affection. Parents quite naturally get involved in such youthful relationships, as advisors and referees (and in games that are more fun with three than with two). It was in those days that on the weekends, Louise, Herb, Peter, and I spelled off one another; Herb did more than his share, making him still a member of our legendary extended family. (I would never tell him that my warmest, most proletarian looking winter cap is known in our family as my "Herb hat;" and, we don't drink apple cider, we have "Herb's drink.") I owe to Herb a remarkable innovation. Indeed, he is the source of more equality (to coin a phrase) in our family. "If Herb Gans can do the marketing," said I, "so too can other male scholars." Needless to say, I am indebted to him—as a model for family reform and for political justification for my warmest hat.

Leaving Nazi Germany at the age of 12, Gans settled with his family on Chicago's South Side, attending neighborhood schools and Hyde Park High School. In recalling these years Herb writes (in a paper for a projected anthology of sociologists' autobiographies) of his family's economic marginality, his addition to American popular culture—cinema and radio serials—and also of his early experiences in journalism—editing the high school newspaper and contributing (at age 16) to the Chicago Daily News. These early experiences had longstanding importance for Herb's career. For one thing, he is an exceptionally lucid writer—a good storyteller. For another, his interests in culture and leisure, media studies and journalism, thrived and did so in different forms, in his literary and critical essays, in film reviews, and in his scholarly writings.

Having to live at home to help in the family business, Herb attended the neighborhood college and graduate school, the latter after a short stint in the army. The school happened to be the University of Chicago, an intellectually and politically heady place to be in the late 40's. During the requisite encounters with Plato and Aristotle, as well as Stalinists and Trotskyites et al, Herb discovered the social sciences and decided to become a sociologist. He considers his major influences to have been Everett Hughes, Earl Johnson, Martin Meyerson, David Riesman, and Lloyd Warner. (He and David Riesman remain good friends, and Herb coedited a festschrift—with Nathan Glazer, Joseph Gusfield, and Christopher Jencks—in Riesman's honor, On the Making of Americans.) After completing the MA, Herb worked as a city planner for three years and when Martin Meyerson took a teaching position in the Department of City Planning at the University of Pennsylvania, he persuaded Gans to come to Philadelphia to do graduate work. By the end of 1957, the year in which Gans finished his PhD in planning at the University of Pennsylvania, he had already published his first 10 articles. They are on subjects ranging from political apathy, education, popular culture, ethnicity, new towns, suburbs, and urban planning. It is worth noting the breadth of his early interests and the extent to which he continued a sustained agenda of original work in each of these areas while at the same time developing them in increasingly ambitious endeavors. Herb spent the majority of his professional years since the dissertation—a sociological and policy analysis of leisure and public recreation—at Columbia University (Teachers College, 1964-69; Sociology Department, 1971 to the present; as Robert S. Lynd Professor since 1985), but he also taught in both Sociology and the Department of City Planning at Pennsylvania (1958-64), and in the planning program at MIT (1969-71).

Herbert J. Gans

Herb is an extraordinarily prolific sociologist, yet he also writes in other academic disciplines, having published in law reviews, planning journals, education and journalism publications, and architecture journals. In the urban planning pieces with which I am most familiar he writes in jargon-free nonpatronizing English in order to walk his nonsociologist reader through a sociological argument, spelling out, for example, the social implications of different physical arrangements and the importance of residents' and planners' class positions and social values for their respective vested interests. Here is applied sociology at its best; and, Herb Gans' influence in planning and these other fields has been enormous. Often the narrative thinly veils some more abstract point about, for example, the importance of the physical environment in creating and reinforcing social opportunities and constraints. Herb cannot help but be a sociologist, and while he engages in many dual enterprises he simultaneously widens the vistas of sociology and helps to nurture the reader's sociological good sense. Quite often what is written for planners, educators, or lawyers one year appears as a reprint in a sociology collection a few years later. This is because what is lurking in the background of a piece on city planning, education, or a legal issue is a set of fundamental sociological concerns, such as power and privilege, cohesion and intolerance, or quality and individualism. One of his most widely reprinted works is actually anonymous; refusing to pay his taxes during the Vietnamese War, his name could not be attached to his chapter (number 9) in the Kerner Commission Report!

Herb, however, writes for still another audience in a forum that gives him greater license than academic and professional journals do to delve into political, intellectual, and ethical issues. Besides being a film critic for nearly eight years, he has often contributed to journals of opinions, including The Nation, Dissent, Commonweal, and The New Republic. Some of these extracurricular projects—for example, a New York Times op-ed piece about the neglect of nonprestigious buildings in the City's landmark preservation decisions—are suave and cosmopolitan. He has sized up his audience. Others—for example, essays on intellectual snobbery and cultural pretentiousness—are wittily caustic. Herb is the populist attacking a wing of the intellectual establishment—a theme turned into a full-fledged analysis in his book, Popular Culture and High Culture. His series of film reviews (Social Policy, 1971-78) also provided him with a forum for discussing political and social issues, reflecting on American aesthetic values, and assessing the effects of economic constraints on the quality of the media. These reviews are a pleasure to read; they are written by someone who has a keen sense of what American life is all about, a curiosity about the premises of American popular culture, and, a special talent to turn a literary point into a sociological one without, at the same time, destroying the former.

What makes a classic contribution to sociology? Long before I met Herb, I started using Urban Villagers in 1967 in a course on urban sociology in a tiny Midwestern college. It has stayed on one or another syllabus of mine ever since: in methods courses for graduate students; in a bureaucracy course; and in classes on urban sociology. Every year when I use it, different issues come up in class discussions; students of various cohorts interpret the implications differently; and the book seems to have a chemistry that changes with the social and political conditions. Owing to its emphasis on analytical dimensions of social life, it generates discussions on a broad range of topics including social networks, social functions, marxian and nonmarxian conceptions of social class, the link between the stratification system and ecological processes, group formation, the nature of authority. As a case study, it provides the proverbial microcosm that refracts powerful processes and large social structures. Of course, the students like to snarl and tangle about values and social policy; at the same time, they are learning about the nature of science.

In Gans' books there is always a story, but the plot is never simple. The life of the underdog is something that warrants the sociologist's sympathy, but there is enough that is "right" with that life to provide the underdog with incentives not to want to change it—other than putting an end to being treated as an underdog. The forces that work for a cohesive community life are the same ones that perpetuate intolerance and the incapacity to work with larger political organizations. Arrangements that disadvantage the poor are often the same ones that provide many of us with jobs, research agendas, and academic security. Guardians of the symbolic order compete over power and influence, when, in fact, people's perceptions of events and issues, and their cultural and lifestyle preferences are largely shaped by their economic and social positions.

Herb teaches "soft sociology." Right? Wrong. The graduate methods course on field work is well known at Columbia as a gruelling and demanding course. It is where field work is learned as a combination of science, art, and common sense, and it is a course with a ruthless concern for empirical rigor, double checking sources, reassessing evidence, and then, still comes the hardest part—inferring good sociological conclusions from the data. One challenge of the field methods course is that it encourages students to think in a broad, nonspecialized way about a topic, and another is that the measurement problems are, if anything, more difficult than those that accompany more standardized quantitative methodologies. Something in which all students get an intensive lesson is the primary importance of scientific integrity. Look carefully at the first chapter of Deciding What's News or the postscripts in The Urban Villagers. We are grateful to that rare scholar who discloses to his reader why and how his interpretations change and how bias may alter the conclusions, and, more generally, who involves the reader step by step in the processes of sociological inquiry.

I have been talking about scientific integrity. What also pervades Herb's work is a personal integrity, which is to say, a candid disclosure of a social philosophy that he brings to his work. In all of his extraordinarily diverse and rich contributions Herb Gans shares with us his commitments that motivate the questions he entertains. He invites his reader to consider with him the merits of these commitments. Preeminent among them is a belief in quality that accompanies an impatience with this country's slow development in fostering programs to enhance educational, economic, and gender equality. (He considers More Equality his most important book.) Another is a commitment to pluralism—the recognition of the diversity in American society. This means full acknowledgment of the rights people have to choose their lifestyles, and it subtly raises questions about the right of "experts" to impose their tastes and preferences on others.

Herb encourages us—as human beings—to have a firm grasp on our ethical commitments, but he enjoins us—as sociologists—to acknowledge the possibility that ethical commitments are sabotaged in the complexities of social life. While his writings challenge us to consider the social uses to which knowledge can be put, he places foremost emphasis on the quality of the process that generates that knowledge. As a science and as a humanistic endeavor, sociology has benefited immensely from Herbert J. Gans' wide range of contributions. It is a great pleasure to welcome our new Resident.

Footnote

<sup>1</sup>Herb Gans' colleagues and students provided very helpful insights and information that I have relied upon in this essay. I would especially like to thank the following: Leon Aron, David Halle, Bruce Link, Mary Murphree, and Lynn Rapaport. □

MFP Announces New 1987-88 Fellows

The Minority Fellowship Program (MFP) is supporting 23 Fellows at 17 universities during the 1987-88 academic year. Thirteen new Fellows join the ten continuing on the Program. The number of Fellows being supported this year is one more than last year, but still represents a steady decline from the high of sixty-nine predoctoral students funded in 1980-81. This trend is one result of the long-term decline in support for social and behavioral sciences at NIMH and similar institutions. The names of the 1987-88 Fellows, their institutional affiliations, and other pertinent facts are shown on the accompanying table.

As in previous years, demand among minorities for financial assistance for graduate studies outstrips supply. This year, there were more than 60 applications for the thirteen fellowships.

The MFP Committee met in February to select this year's Fellows, the fourteenth cohort since the Program's inception in 1974-75. Applicants can be prospective or current graduate students; carefully screened, Fellows are selected on the basis of need, potential for success in graduate studies and the discipline, and a documented commitment to research, teaching, and service careers on the sociological aspects of mental health issues among ethnic and racial minorities in America.

The MFP Committee is appointed by Council from among recommendations made by the Committee on Committees. Nine voting members serve three-year terms, with three new members typically appointed each year. Council Liaison and the Director of the Program serve as non-voting members of the Committee. Committee members are sociologists with teaching and research interests in mental health and race/ethnic issues. Recent years have witnessed a number of members who were MFP Fellows while graduate students. The current chair is Patricia Hill Collins, University of Cincinnati, who was a Fellow in the Program's seventh cohort.

The twenty-three Fellows supported this year is more than the number of fellowships allocated to ASA by NIMH (N=21). This greater number is possible due to cooperative support agreements for Fellows between ASA and universities where students are enrolled. Most universities waive tuition and fees, others also make partial contributions to Fellows' stipends.

In addition to this form of contributions, ASA and other sociological associations have made financial contributions to the Program. Sociologists for Women in Society (SWS) was an early contributor when the MFP began facing financial problems. This is the second year of a three-year commitment of at least $1,000 annually. (Last year's contribution was $2,500 and is the target for the current year.) The Association of Black Sociologist (ABS) also has made a commitment of a cash contribution, the sum to depend on fund-raising efforts. The Midwest Sociological Society and the Southwestern Sociological Association have launched drives to raise money to support ASA Fellows in their regions. The Mid-South Sociological Association made a cash contribution and Alpha Kappa Delta, the sociological honorary, recently notified the MFP of an award of $1,500 for 1988-89, with an expectation to continue support in subsequent years.

Another form of contributions is from the editors of a successful text on race/ethnic relations. In the process of revising the text for its 3rd edition, A. Gary Dworkin (University of Houston) and Rosalind J. Dworkin (Baylor College of Medicine) pledged a major portion of their royalties to the MFP. Moreover, each of the text's various chapters will be authored by a former Fellow, yet another form of support for the Minority Fellowship Program.

The MFP also has been designated a top priority of the recently established American Sociological Foundation. Here, a portion of the interest from the Fund's endowment specifically is earmarked for minority fellowships.

The combination of these efforts have been a major help to the MFP during its current financial crisis. Some have had an immediate impact, others will take longer to realize. Additional major long-term activities have been initiated on behalf of the Program. The MFP Task Force—appointed by Council in 1985, funded by a Ford Foundation grant, and chaired by Charles V. Willie (Harvard)—is nearing completion of one major aspect of its work.

Charged initially with generating new funds for the program, the Task Force broadened its mandate. As a result, it has come up with a highly innovative proposal that adds undergraduate and postgraduate components to the existing predoctoral program.

The undergraduate component is seen as key to the new MFP. It is a mechanism for identifying promising minority scholars early in their junior year and recruiting them into the program in order to enhance their preparation while encouraging their pursuit of graduate studies. It calls for an intensive honors summer program prior to the senior year, the focus of which would be on the logic of inquiry, and the development of a project to be carried out under the direction of a sponsor at the student's home institution during the senior year. The program also would stress professional socialization and assist in preparing applications to graduate schools. Initially, the program is to be pilot tested in one region of the country, with the expectation that eventually there would be a number of regional centers operating simultaneously. Task Force members expect to approach a number of foundations this academic year for funds to pilot test the undergraduate program.

The existing predoctoral program is to be expanded so that Fellows may have options for research training support in areas beside mental health issues, the focus of the MFP's current grant. Indeed, proposals have been submitted to several federal agencies and others are in preparation. ASA expects to learn the fate of two proposals during the current academic year.

The postdoctoral component remains to be worked out in greater detail. It depends partly on success in the two components sketched above. It will continue the theme of professional development by establishing links between Fellows and personnel at funding agencies through one-day workshops and sponsoring didactic seminars at regional and national meetings on such topics as proposal writing, trends and developments in various substantive areas, and enhancing teaching skills, among others.

The integrated program outlined here calls for a coordinated effort among the ASA, regional sociological societies, host institutions for the undergraduate program, and universities where predoctoral students are enrolled. Its innovative nature is that it seeks to recruit, retain, and enhance the careers of minority sociologists by beginning earlier than the existing program, sustaining the effort over a longer period, and combining the resources of more formal structures.

This year's ASA Fellows brings to 249 the number of students supported by MFP. As of Fall, 1986, 97 Fellows had completed the PhD and the majority of the remainder were making good progress toward completion. Data currently are being collected on Fellows' activities since last year's survey and should show an increase in the number of degree completions.

It also should be pointed out that many MFP Fellows are making significant contributions to the discipline. Some have earned tenure at prestigious research universities and the quality of their scientific work has earned them high visibility and acknowledgment. Others are making significant contributions as teachers in a wide range of colleges and universities, helping to prepare the next generation of sociologists. Still other Fellows have elected to practice sociology in non-academic settings.

Applications are available for the 1988-89 ASA/MFP awards. For 1988-89, two types of awards are available. One is the regular fellowship award for predoctoral studies, the other is for dissertation expenses. The latter is restricted to dissertation related expenses, such as acquiring data sets, computer expenses, typing and printing costs, etc. Applications for each are available from the ASA office. □

Catastrophe Major Medical Plan

ASA members have from now until December 15, 1987, to enroll in the $1 million Catastrophe Major Medical Insurance Plan, a special ASA membership benefit. All members and spouses regardless of age and their unmarried dependent children, to age 25, are guaranteed acceptance into the plan during this special enrollment period. Just $1 pays for the first month of coverage; thereafter, premiums will be billed twice a year.

This plan provides supplementary coverage for basic major medical and hospitalization insurance. Since it is considered supplementary coverage, this plan has a $25,000 deductible. This deductible can be satisfied by eligible expenses paid by any basic health insurance policy or those expenses paid out-of-pocket by the insured.

Once the deductible is met, the Plan provides 100% coverage for all eligible expenses with up to $1 million in benefits for up to ten full years from the date the first eligible expense is incurred against the deductible.

What type of expenses does this plan pay? A partial list includes hospital room and board, doctor and surgeon fees, private duty nurse care, x-ray and lab, anesthetic, professional ambulance service, and much more.

In addition, specific nursing home benefits are also included in this plan which provide room and board benefits. Plus, a built-in common disaster provision is also included: if more than one insured family members is insured in the same accident or contracts the same disease within 30 days, only one deductible needs to be satisfied, yet each insured family member will be eligible for the full $1 million in total benefits.

All ASA members will be receiving enrollment information for the $1 million Catastrophe Major Medical Insurance Plan $1 offer through the mail soon. For further details, contact: Albert H. Wohlers & Co., ASA Group Insurance Plans, 1500 Higgins Road, Park Ridge, IL 60068-5750; (800) 323-2106. (Illinois residents, call (312) 698-2221.) □

MINORITY FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM: NEWLY SELECTED AND REFUNDED FELLOWS FOR 1987-88

Fellow	Race/Ethnicity	Degree/University	Graduate School
Alegado, Dean Tiburcio	Filipino	MA/Goddard College	University of Hawaii
Baird-Olson, Phyllis Karren	Native American	MA/University of Montana	University of New Mexico
Boachie, Erma D.	Black	MA/Texas Southern University	Texas Woman's University
Calderson, Jose	Chicano	BA/University of Colorado-Boulder	University of California-Los Angeles
Cortes, Dharma E.	Puerto Rican	MA/University of Puerto Rico	Fordham University
Deanda, Roberto Moreno	Chicano	MA/University of Arizona	University of Arizona
Do, Hein duc	Vietnamese	BA/University of California-Santa Barbara	University of California-Santa Barbara
Espiritu, Yen Le	Vietnamese	BA/University of California-San Diego	University of California-Los Angeles
Fa, Angelina Maria	Chinese	MA/Brown University	University of California-Berkeley
Ho, Christine Hsiu-Hwae	Chinese	AB/Harvard-Radcliffe	University of California-Berkeley
Joe, Karen Ann	Chinese	MA/University of California-Davis	University of California-Davis
Johnson, Cheryl Denise	Black	MA/University of Minnesota	University of Minnesota
Lawson, Sylvia Cicily Claire	Black	MA/University of Florida-Gainesville	University of Florida-Gainesville
Molina, Edna Martiza	Chicana	BA/Pitzer College	University of California-Los Angeles
Price, Paul Christopher	Black	MA/Fisk University	University of California-Los Angeles
Royster, Deirdre Alexia	Black	BA/Virginia Technical Institute	Johns Hopkins University
Shively, JoEllen	Native American	MA/Stanford University	Stanford University
Smith, Herbert Lovell	Black	MA/University of Massachusetts-Amherst	University of Maryland-College Park
Smith, Lenora	Black	MA/Cleveland State University	University of Chicago
Stewart, Ronnie	Black	MA/Ohio State University	Howard University
Valdez, Elsa Olga	Chicana	BA/University of California-Riverside	University of California-Riverside
Valenzuela, Angela	Chicana	MA/University of Texas	Stanford University
Williams, Cedric	Black	BA/Texas Christian University	Northwestern University

TRC Seeks Teaching Materials

Although the current list of available teaching materials is impressive, it represents only a portion of the potential universe of materials. Consequently, you are cordially invited to send your materials to the Teaching Resources Center (TRC) for consideration as a possible product. Your ideas and suggestions for products and services as well as your reactions to existing products and services are also solicited.

At the present time, the following products are under development. If you have pertinent materials, please contact the individuals listed below. (Please do not write to them requesting the product; when products are finished, they will be publicized in Footnotes and distributed through the Teaching Resources Center.)

Syllabi and Instructional Materials for Social Problems Courses. J. Michael Brooks, University of Kentucky, Lexington, KY 40506.

Syllabi and Instructional Materials for World Conflicts. Allen Grimshaw, Indiana University, Bloomington, IN 47405.

Graduate Education in Sociology. William Mayrl, University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, WI 43201.

Learning Groups Exercises for Political Sociology. William Gamson, Boston College, Chestnut Hill, MA 20167.

Syllabi and Instructional Materials for Sociology of Culture. Rosanne Martorella, Department of Sociology, William Paterson College of New Jersey, Wayne, NJ 07470.

The Undergraduate Sociology Curriculum. Jess Enns, Kearney State College, Kearney, NE 68847; and John Seem, Viterbo College, LaCrosse, WI 45601.

Syllabi and Instructional Materials in Complex Organizations. William M. Cross, Illinois College, Jacksonville, IL 62650.

Training Teaching Assistants to Teach. Edward Kain, Southwestern University, Georgetown, TX 78626.

Syllabi and Instructional Materials for Courses in Social Stratification (revision). Carol J. Auster, Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, PA 17604.

Teaching Social Change: Course Designs, Syllabi, and Instructional Materials (revision). Rosalie Cohen, Temple University, Philadelphia, PA 19122.

Teaching Introductory Sociology: A Resource Manual. Charlene Black, Georgia Southern College, Statesboro, GA 30460.

Materials under revision (send submissions to the ASA Teaching Resources Center):

Sociology of Minority Groups: Syllabi and Related Materials, and Marriage and the Family. □

Sociologists Win Awards, Honors, Fellowships

Etzioni Awarded Professorship at Harvard Business School

Amiati Etzioni, George Washington University, has been named to the Thomas Henry Carroll Ford Foundation Professorship at the Harvard Business School. The professorship brings outstanding visiting scholars to the School and honors the work of the late Thomas Henry Carroll, a former faculty member at Harvard and former vice-president of the Ford Foundation.

Etzioni is widely known for his application of sociology to a broad spectrum of fields including economic theory, biology, nuclear disarmament, genetic technology, and the reindustrialization of America. Some of the major themes that reappear in his work are the significance of moral values as a corrective to self-interest, the significance of people treating one another as ends and not only as means, the place of the individual within the community and society, and the use and abuse of power. Etzioni is currently developing a new discipline called socio-economics, which blends elements of sociology, psychology, and political science with economics. According to Etzioni, socio-economics sees the individual (including executives, investors, shoppers) as torn between their urges and their values, as deeply affected by emotions, and as rarely making independent decisions, free from group influence.

At the School, Etzioni will teach a doctoral seminar on socio-economics and serve as a resource person for a faculty seminar. Professor Jay Lorsch, senior associate dean and director of research at Harvard Business School praised the appointment saying, "Amiati Etzioni has thought a lot about the inadequacies of economic theory and is known for building social theories. We thought it would be interesting to have him serve as a resource person in which we examine our own relationship to the field of economics." Etzioni served as a senior adviser to the White House from 1979 to 1980 and from 1983 to 1985 he was the only non-economist on the Economic Forum of the Conference Board. He has served as a department chair at Columbia University and a member of ASA Council. These experiences should put Etzioni in good stead as he enters his fellowship year at Harvard Business School. □

Grad Students Win Fellowships

Three graduate students in sociology have been announced as recipients of Spencer Dissertation Year Fellowships in Research Related to Education by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation. The three are:

Elisabeth S. Clemens, University of Chicago: "Redefining the Boundaries of Public Responsibility: Progressive Politics and the Family in the American States, 1890-1930."

Mustafa K. Emirbayer, Harvard University: "Moral Education in American Public Schools: A Comparative Historical Study."

Phyllis I. Riddle, Stanford University: "World Rates of University Expansion, 1200-1985."

Two other graduate students in sociology have received Charlotte W. Newcombe Dissertation Fellowships from the Wilson Foundation for proposed work on some aspect of ethical or religious values. They are:

Francis C. Mullaney, Harvard University: "Embattled Muslim Religious Leaders: The Higher Ulama in Contemporary Egypt."

David J. Weinberg, University of California Berkeley: "Reciprocity Reconsidered: Motivations to Return in the Social Exchange of Favors." □

LIMDEP™

Econometric and Statistical Software

BASIC STATISTICS: Plots; Histograms; Descriptive Statistics.

STANDARD ECONOMETRIC TECHNIQUES: OLS; GLS; Polynomial distributed lags; 2SLS; 3SLS; Panel data models; Autocorrelation.

LIMITED DEPENDENT VARIABLES: Tobit; Sample selectivity.

DISCRETE DATA MODELS: Probit; Multinomial logit; Nested logit.

SURVIVAL ANALYSIS: Proportional hazards, Weibull, Exponential, Lognormal, or Gompertz survival curves; Censored and stratified data; Time dependent regressors.

MATRIX ALGEBRA: A complete matrix programming language.

DATA MANIPULATION: Read ASCII or binary data; Merge data sets; Sort; Write data files; Algebraic and function transformations; Random number generators; Up to 200 variables; Unlimited sample size.

DOZENS OF OTHER FEATURES: Nonlinear optimization program; Program library manager; 300 page indexed manual with many examples.

Availability: IBM PC/XT/AT or compatible with 256K; IBM, DEC, VAX, and most other mainframes. In use on over 300 PC and mainframe systems.

Price: $250. Site license available. Send $10 for demonstration disk.

Call or Write: William Greene, Graduate School of Business Administration, New York University, 100 Trinity Place, New York, NY 10006, 212-285-6164.

Rural Society Presents Awards

The Rural Sociological Society at its 50th Anniversary meeting in Madison, Wisconsin in August presented the following sociologists with awards:

Minnie Miller Brown, Emeritus Extension Professor, North Carolina State University, Raleigh, NC, received the Distinguished Service to Rural Life award. Professor Brown's work spans almost 50 years, and is especially noteworthy for her dedication to the improvement of rural people through nutrition education programs for the poor, work with desegregation efforts of land grant institutions in the South, and a long career of teaching and voluntary work on national and regional committees and in local communities.

Glenn V. Fuguitt, Professor of Rural Sociology, University of Wisconsin-Madison received the Distinguished Rural Sociologist award for his high standards of scholarship, productivity of research, stimulation of graduate students, and promotion of international scholarly interchange in rural sociology.

C. Shannon Stokes, Professor of Rural Sociology at Penn State University was given the award for Excellence in Research, for his outstanding and innovative research record concerning agricultural development and demographic processes.

Jerry W. Robinson, Professor of Sociology and Rural Sociology at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, was honored for Excellence in Extension and Public Service. His work concerns training and community education in the area of stress and wellness among rural and farm people.

Lorraine Garkovich, Associate Professor in the Department of Sociology at University of Kentucky, Lexington, won the Excellence in Instruction award for her outstanding teaching record, encouragement of students, and numerous publications concerning quality and creativity in teaching.

Gerald E. Klonglan, Professor of Sociology at Iowa State University received a Certificate of Appreciation from the Rural Sociological Society for his promotion of rural sociology in national research priority setting endeavors. □

Boldt Wins Major Award

University of Lethbridge (Alberta, Canada) sociologist Menno Boldt is one of three recipients of the prestigious Sir. Frederick Haultain Prize awarded in June by the provincial government. The Haultain Prize is part of the Alberta Heritage Scholarship Fund awarded annually in recognition of exceptional accomplishments which have benefited Albertans. The prizes are given in the areas of arts, sciences and humanities.

Dr. Boldt, who won the $25,000 prize in the field of social sciences, is internationally known for his work in suicide prevention. It is largely due to Dr. Boldt's research and leadership that Alberta has become one of the world leaders in suicide prevention.

Taylor Wins Bunche Award

David Garth Taylor, University of Chicago, is the co-winner of the American Political Science Association's 1987 Ralph E. Bunche Award for his book Public Opinion and Collection Action: The Boston School Desegregation Conflict (University of Chicago Press). The Bunche Award recognizes "the best scholarly work in political science which explores the phenomenon of ethnic and cultural pluralism." □

ASA/NSF Grant Deadline

The ASA Council Subcommittee on Problems of the Discipline invites proposals for the second round of its 1987 ASA/NSF Small Grant Program. The deadline is November 15, 1987.

The program has become popular with scholars looking for opportunities to confer with colleagues on new developments in research and for a means of launching innovative projects. Pressure from a high number of proposals on limited funds was relieved earlier in 1987 by a three-year grant from the National Science Foundation which now enables both a spring and fall grant round.

Guidelines for grant applications are as follows:

Scope: Requests for funds must show relevance for some problem of importance to sociology as a discipline. The Subcommittee will rate more highly those applications which are on the "cutting edge" of the discipline, represent innovative activity, are of substantive importance, would be most helped by a small grant, would have difficulty being funded through traditional sources, foster networking among scholars, and foster the discipline of sociology as opposed to the profession. The nature of the request may include but is not limited to the following: an exploratory study, a small conference, travel to consult with several widely dispersed specialists, a program of study at a major research center, and projects not ordinarily supported by other sources of funds. The grants are restricted to postdoctoral research.

Funding: While the upper limit of each award normally will be $2,500, the Subcommittee will entertain proposals of exceptional quality for somewhat higher amounts. These are small grants with no indirect costs involved; payment goes directly to the principal investigator. An accounting statement is to be submitted to the Executive Office at the end of the project and unspent funds returned to the ASA. Grant money may not be used for convention travel, or for honoraria.

Submissions: November 15 deadline: decisions announced in February; June 15 deadline: decisions announced in September. Submissions which are too late for one deadline will be carried over to the next review period only with written request by the applicant.

Format: Proposals should include the following: a text of no more than three single-spaced pages (with no appendices), a bibliography, and vita. Both title and author(s) should appear at the top of the first page of the text. A budget statement should appear on a separate page immediately following the text of the proposal. Send nine (9) individually bound copies of the entire packet to: Small Grant Program, ASA, 1722 N Street, NW, Washington, DC 20036. □

Six Receive ASA/NSF Small Grant Awards

Six of seventeen proposals were funded from the June round of the joint ASA/NSF Small Grants Program. The grants are administered by the ASA Council Subcommittee on Problems of the Discipline; proposals were judged at the Annual Meeting in Chicago.

Joining the Subcommittee as representatives of NSF were Stanley Presser and Phyllis Moen. As announced last spring, a three year NSF grant has supplemented monies from the Fund for the Advancement of the Discipline and now makes possible two grant rounds per year rather than one. Deadline for the second grant round is November 15 (see announcement elsewhere in this issue).

Those receiving awards in the June grant round are:

Emily K. Abel (Santa Monica, CA) and Margaret K. Nelson (Middlebury College), "Circles of Care," $1,825;

Michael Hechter (University of Arizona), "The Emergence, Maintenance, and Effects of Social Institutions: An International Conference," $2,500;

Judith A. Howard (University of Washington) and Peter L. Callero (Western Oregon State College), "Self and Society: A Social Cognitive Approach," $2,500;

Michele Lamont (Harvard University), "Upper-Middle Class Cultures in a Comparative Perspective," $2,500; Allan Mazur (Syracuse University), "Conference on Testosterone," $2,500; Steven Seidman and David G. Wagner (SUNY-Albany), "General Social Theory and Its Critics: Contemporary Debates," $2,500. □

New Rose Monograph

The American Sociological Association is pleased to announce that the newest volume in the ASA Rose Monograph Series, The Field of Social Investment by Severyn T. Bruyn, is now available.

Members should note that this new hardcover monograph does not appear on the 1988 Publications Price List, which they will receive as part of their benefits package. The list price from Cambridge University Press is $34.50; ASA members receive a 50% discount on the 304-page volume, making their cost $17.25.

Members should send prepaid orders to the ASA Executive Office, 1722 N Street NW, Washington, DC 20036. Non-members and institutions must order directly from Cambridge University Press, 32 East 57th Street, New York, NY 10022. □

New Products Available from TRC

The following products made their debut at the 1987 Annual Meeting. You can order them (prepaid) from the ASA Executive Office. The first price listed is for ASA members, the second for non-members. Prices include postage and handling.

■ *The Humanist Sociology Resource Book** ($6.25/7.50). Edited by Martin D., Schwartz. A joint project with the Association for Humanist Sociology. The volume contains essays about the nature of humanist sociology and how to teach it; pedagogical approaches for the humanist sociologists in the classroom; humanist approaches to teaching the introductory course; quantitative and qualitative humanist teaching tips for class exercises. 104 pp., 1987. (*10% discount to members of the Association for Humanist Sociology.)

■ *Research Methods Course: Syllabi, Assignments, and Projects** ($12.75/16.00). Second edition. Edited by Russell K. Schutt, Theodore C. Wagenaar, and Kevin Mulvey. The revision updates and improves the earlier set of materials on graduate and undergraduate methods courses including 20 sample syllabi, assignments on such topics as sampling, experimentation, and computer usage, and sample projects. Includes references and bibliographies. 338 pp., 1987. (*10% discount to members of the Section on Undergraduate Education.)

■ *The Sociology of Sexuality and Homosexuality: Syllabi and Teaching Materials** ($6.25/7.50). Edited by Martin P. Levine and Meredith Gould. A joint project with the Lesbian and Gay Caucus. A collection of syllabi and class projects and exercises on sexuality courses, sexual variation and AIDS course, lesbian and gay studies courses. Includes essays on pedagogy, a reading list, and a film guide. 110 pp., 1987. (*10% discount to members of the Lesbian and Gay Caucus.)

■ *Teaching Rural Sociology: A Resource Manual** ($7.00/8.50). Edited by Eric O.

Hoiberg with the assistance of Donald Crider, Joseph Donnermeyer, George Ohlendorf, Irving Spaulding, and Alton Thompson. A joint project with the Rural Sociological Society. A collection of 19 syllabi for beginning, advanced, and specialized courses in rural sociology. Includes a list of resources and readings. 123 pp. 1987. (*10% discount to members of the Rural Sociological Society.)

■ Comparative Historical Sociology: Teaching Materials and Bibliography ($10.00/13.00). Compiled by William G. Roy with the assistance of Rachel R. Parker. Describes courses on general historical comparative sociology, then specialized courses in historical comparative methods; class and stratification; gender; race and ethnicity; capitalism; political sociology; ideas, ideology and culture; demography, family and age structure; and cities and urban sociology. 215 pp., 1987.

■ Sociology and the Liberal Arts ($5.00/6.50). By Raymond G. DeVries. A monograph about the place of sociology in the liberal arts college; sociology and the evolution of the liberal arts; sociology as preparation for students graduate work and careers; the sociology curriculum; two sample syllabi from interdisciplinary courses; internships and applied sociology within a liberal arts context; and an essay on "The Liberal Arts as Counterculture" by Stephen Schultz. 81 pp., 1987.

■ Using Films in Sociology Courses: Guidelines and Reviews ($5.00/6.50). Third edition contains a revised and expanded section of film reviews by Sally Rogers. Opening essay on using films by Robert Wolensky. The set includes substantive, pedagogical, and logistical considerations in the use of films; a glossary of film terms; a listing of filmographies; general reference source; and addresses of film distributors. Film reviews include source of film, length, color or b/w, brief description, and suggestions for use. 86 pp., 1987.

■ *Syllabi and Instructional Materials for Sociology of Religion** ($8.00/9.50). Edited by Madeleine Adriance and Dallas Blanchard. A joint project with the Association for the Sociology of Religion. Essays on the social context of teaching, broadening the course, and techniques and resources for teaching the sociology of religion. Fifteen syllabi show a range of approaches to sociology of religion courses. A final section describes projects, assignments. Bibliography. 148 pp., 1987 (10% discount to members of the Association for the Sociology of Religion).

Available in Fall of 1987:

■ An Inclusive Curriculum: Race, Class, and Gender. Edited by Patricia Hill Collins and Margaret Andersen. Curriculum materials that bring together issues of race, class, and gender into sociology courses. A joint project of the ASA Teaching Service Program, and the ASA Sections on Sex and Gender, and Racial and Ethnic Minorities.

■ Discussion in the College Classroom: Applications for Sociology Instruction. By William Ewens and Vanetta D'Andrea. Chapters on the major purposes of discussion, preparation for discussion, implementing discussion, assessing discussion, discussion and personal empowerment, and a bibliography.

■ Teaching Sociology on the Branch Campus. By Juliet Saltman. Discussion of the special organizational arrangement of the branch campus-main campus relationship, including issues of communication and equity.

■ Bibliography, Course Syllabi and Instructional Materials for Urban Sociology Courses. Edited by Philip Olson.

To request a Teaching Resources Center Catalog, please write to: Teaching Resources Center, American Sociological Association, 1722 N Street, NW, Washington, DC 20036. □

Awards, from page 3

University of Denver. The story is recounted often that when Moore went to Denver to give a talk, he told the faculty and administrators they should not hire a well-known person because they could get considerably more work from two assistant professors for the same money. Violating his own prediction, Moore not only lent great luster to the department, he often has carried the load of two junior faculty. It is clear from the comments of his colleagues at Denver that to all, junior and senior faculty alike, Wilbert Moore remains a leader, not merely for his patience and hard work, but because he is endlessly literate, witty, and remains a man who shares their passion.

Wilbert Moore's fifth decade hardly has witnessed any less commitment. It is, perhaps, the decade of his work on world modernization, the book by that title published in 1979 and which is an effort to organize and synthesize the voluminous literature on social change in the Third World. It is also a decade during which Moore increasingly is making contributions to the sociology of law. And as was his standard guideline in the first decade of his career with regard to economic issues, Moore sees that issues of law are simply too important to leave to the lawyers and judges. He is busy applying his keen theoretical insight to issues that range from law and development to Islamic legal systems. His forthcoming monograph, with Joyce Sterling, focuses on the rationalization of law, reinterprets Weber's theory of rationalization, and is bound to have yet another major impact on the discipline of sociology for decades to come.

Wilbert Moore is a man who has given greatly to sociology. His legacy clearly will grow as he continues to contribute to the discipline. □

Call for Papers

CONFERENCES

American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies 20th National Convention, November 18-21, 1988, Hilton Hawaiian Village, Honolulu, HI. Theme: "The Soviet Union and the Pacific Rim." Proposals for complete panels are invited on the theme and other topics. (Individual papers cannot be considered.) A copy of program guidelines and a panel proposal form may be obtained from: AAASS, 128 Encina Commons, Stanford University, Stanford, CA 94305-6029; (415) 723-9668. Deadline for proposals is January 1, 1988.

American Studies Association Annual Meeting, October 27-30, 1988, Miami Beach Fontainebleau, Miami Beach, FL. Theme: "Creativity in Differences: The Cultures of Gender, Race, Ethnicity, and Class." Submit proposals for presentations by January 15, 1988, to: American Studies Association, 309 College Hall, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, PA 19104-6303; (215) 898-3408.

Association for Area Studies, April 27-30, 1988, Radisson Hotel, Denver, CO (in conjunction with the Western Social Science Association). Submit a 250-word abstract by November 30, 1987, to: F. Andrew Schoolmaster, AALS Program Chair, Department of Geography/Anthropology, North Texas State University, Denton, TX 76203.

Association for Death Education and Counseling 1988 Conference, April 22-24, 1988, Crown Plaza Hotel, Orlando, FL. Theme: "Out of the Shadows—Into the Light Through Death Education and Counseling." Submission of research reports, scholarly papers, practice reports/experiential papers, or roundtables is invited. Five copies of each proposal, including 300-500 word abstract and separate cover sheet, should be sent by December 15, 1987, to: Darrell Crase, Health Education Division, Memphis State University, Memphis, TN 38152; (901) 454-2311.

Association for the Study of Food and Society Second International Conference, May 27-29, 1988, National 4-H Center, Washington, DC. Theme: "Food in Society." Abstracts or completed papers are due February 1, 1988. For a list of paper topics, contact: William Whit, President, ASFS, Department of Sociology, Aquinas College, Grand Rapids, MI 49506.

Center for the Small City Eighth Conference on the Small City and Regional Community (co-sponsored by Illinois State University), March 24-25, 1988, Illinois State University, Normal, IL. Theme: "Governance in the Small City and Regional Community." Proposals are due November 6, 1987. Papers will be due on March 1, 1988. For a submission form, contact: Nancy S. Lind or Ann H. Elder, Department of Political Science, Illinois State University, Normal, IL 61761-6901.

Conference on the Future of Academic Freedom: Context and Challenge, January 14-16, 1988, University of Florida, Gainesville, FL. Deadline for 500-word abstracts is November 15, 1987. Finished papers will be due December 28, 1987. For a detailed conference description, contact: Hernan Bera, Department of Sociology, University of Florida, Gainesville, FL 32611; (904) 392-0261 or 373-7639.

Conference on State Change, May 25-27, 1988, University of Colorado, Boulder, CO. Submissions are invited that address all or part of the question, "How, why, and with what effects do states change?" Interested scholars should submit a detailed 2-3 page abstract and a curriculum vitae by November 1, 1987, to: Edward S. Greenberg, Director, Program on Political and Economic Change, Institute of Behavioral Science, University of Colorado, Boulder, CO 80309. Paper presenters will earn an honorarium of $300, travel expenses to Boulder, CO, and room and board.

Common Interest Community Associations Conference, November 21, 1987, University of California, Berkeley, CA. Papers are solicited dealing with social, political, economic, administrative, policy, and legal aspects of community associations (mandatory home owner associations that maintain common property and enforce the rules of community life in condominiums.) Papers from the conference will be compiled in an edited volume for publication. If you are interested in presenting a paper, please call Stephen Barton or Carol Silverman, Institute of Urban and Regional development, 316 Worster Hall, University of California, Berkeley, CA 94720; (415) 642-4874, as soon as possible.

Decision Support Systems Eighth International Conference, June 1988, Boston, MA. Deadline for submitting papers, case histories or panel session proposals is October 30, 1987. Accepted presentations will be published in the DSS-88 Transactions. Copies of format instructions are available from: DSS-88, Institute of Management Sciences, 290 Westminster Street, Providence, RI 02903. Other questions relative to submissions should be addressed to Michael Ginzberg, General Chair, Weatherhead School of Management, Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland, OH 44106.

Eastern Educational Research Association Annual Conference, February 24-27, 1988, Miami Beach, FL. Paper proposals should be sent to: Robert Wall, Program Chair, School of Education, Towson State University, Towson, MD 21204; (301) 321-2391.

Eastern Sociological Society Annual Meeting, March 11-13, 1988, Philadelphia, PA. Theme: "Societal Alternatives: Which Are Better and Why." Submit three copies papers on conference theme or any sociological topic (10-15 pages) to: Kenneth Kammeier, Chair, ESS Papers Committee, Department of Sociology, University of Maryland, College Park, MD 20742.

Fifth Annual Qualitative Research Conference, May 16-18, 1988, University of Windsor, Ontario, Canada. Theme: "Interactionist Research '88: A Tribute . . . Herbert Blumer and the Study of Social Action." Sessions will be developed around the following themes: (1) Herbert Blumer and the Interactionist Tradition; (2) The Interactionist Challenge: Social Science Grounded in Action; (3) Ethnography and the Study of Social Action; and (4) New Ethnographic Forays and Methodological Practices. Send paper title, abstract, and curriculum vitae, as soon as possible, to: Mary Lou Deitz, Sociology, University of Windsor, Windsor, Ontario, Canada N9B 3P4; (519) 253-4232, x 2208. Deadline for final papers is March 31, 1988.

First Annual Conference on Humanities, Science, and Technology, March 11-12, 1988, Ferris State College, Big Rapids, MI. Proposals should include a 300-word abstract and curriculum vitae. All proposals are due December 1, 1987. Please indicate if interested in serving as session chair or commentator. Send proposals to: Coordinating/Program Committee, Department of the Humanities, Ferris State College, Big Rapids, MI 49307; (616) 592-2758/2771.

Midwest Sociological Society 1988 Meetings, March 23-26, 1988, Minneapolis, MN. Feminist and Marxist critiques of the assumptions of symbolic interactional theory are solicited. Send manuscripts by November 1, 1987, to: T.R. Young, Organizer, Red Feather Institute, Box 17430, Boulder, CO 80308; (303) 493-2611. Papers are also sought on the theme "'Relationships Between Parents and Adolescents.'" Contact: Steve Carlton-Ford, Institute of Child Development, 51 East River Road, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, MN 55455-0345.

National Academy of Management 1988 Meeting, August 7-10, 1988, Anaheim (Disneyland)/Los Angeles, CA. The Research Methods Interest Group invites submission of quantitative and qualitative research methodologies, and the history and philosophy of science. Papers describing the use of innovative research methods are particularly welcomed. Awards will be presented for the best overall paper as well as the best student paper. Send submissions by January 8, 1988, to: Urs E. Gattiker, Program Chair 1988, Research Methods Interest Group, School of Management, University of Lethbridge, Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada T1K 5G1; (403) 320-6966.

National Conference on Transitional Services for Troubled Youth, May 8-11, 1988, Lexington, KY. Theme: "Youth in Transition." For a submission form for presentations and papers, contact: Bruce Wolford, Training Resource Center, Eastern Kentucky University, 202 Perkins Building, Richmond, KY 40475; (606) 622-1497. Completed forms are due December 1, 1987.

New England Undergraduate Research Conference in Sociology, April 9, 1988, Providence College, Providence, RI. Student submissions of undergraduate work of an empirical, theoretical, critical review, applied, or interdisciplinary nature are invited. Co-authored papers are welcomed. Proposals for theme sessions, group, and/or roundtable presentations will also be considered. Cash prizes of $75 each will be awarded for the two most outstanding papers presented. All papers must be accompanied by a completed application form. Deadline for receipt of papers and application materials is January 15, 1988. For information and application forms, contact: Josephine A. Ruggiero, Conference Coordinator, Department of Sociology, Providence College, Providence, RI 02918; (401) 865-2514.

Society for the Advancement of Scandinavian Study 78th Annual Meeting, April 28-30, 1988, University of Oregon, Eugene, OR. Persons interested in submitting papers in history and the social sciences should write to: Steven Koblik, Department of History, Pomona College, Claremont, CA 91711. All others should contact: Virpi Zuck, Department of Germanic Languages and Literatures, University of Oregon, Eugene, OR 97403. The deadline for submission of paper proposals is December 10, 1987. All conference participants must be current members of SASS.

Society for Applied Anthropology 1988 Annual Meeting, April 21-23, 1988, Hyatt Regency Westshore Hotel, Tampa, FL. Theme: "Applied Anthropology in Multidisciplinary Perspective." Session proposals and paper abstracts are due October 30, 1987. Conference registration fees ($45 or $20 for students) must accompany submissions. For an abstract form or additional information, contact: Program Co-Chairs 1988, Society for Applied Anthropology, P.O. Box 24083, Oklahoma City, OK 73124-0083.

Society for Phenomenology and the Human Sciences Meeting, May 19-21, 1988, Ontario Institute for Studies in Education, Toronto, Canada. One-page abstract proposals for papers, sessions, or other presentation are invited. Send three copies of proposal and a separate cover sheet with identifying information to: David Horrick, Department of Sociology, University of New Brunswick, Fredericton, Canada E3B 5A3; (506) 453-4849.

Sociologists for Women in Society, Capital Area division (Washington, DC) invites submissions on the emerging topic of the future of the service sector in the U.S. and its implications for women. Related topics include the increasing international division of labor and its impact on women workers worldwide. The division hopes to provide a forum for discussion at monthly meetings and to organize a panel focusing on the topic at 1988 ASA Annual Meeting in Atlanta (August 24-28). Submit drafts of 15-20 pages in length by October 30, 1987, to: Beatrice Edwards, Center for Applied Research, 1312 C Street NE, Washington, DC 20002. For a schedule of meetings, see the SWS newsletter.

Southwestern Social Science Association 1988 Meeting, March 23-26, 1988, Adam's Mark Hotel, Houston, TX. Theme: "Social Science, the Scientific Revolution, and the American Founding." Sociologists interested in submitting papers or abstracts should mail them to: Teresa A. Sullivan, Program Chair, Department of Sociology, University of Texas, Burdine Hall 436, Austin, TX 78712-1088. Students are encouraged to participate since there will be several student sessions and one session on dissertations-in-progress. Deadline for papers/abstracts is October 31, 1987.

Training Industries and Educational Conference, November 15-18, 1988, Westin Hotel, Cincinnati, OH. Individuals and organizations interested in making presentations at the conference should submit a proposal by February 15, 1988. For complete information on submission requirements, contact: TIE Conference, Department of Correctional Services, Eastern Kentucky University, 202 Perkins Building, Richmond, KY 40475; (606) 622-1497.

Western Social Science Association Annual Conference, April 27-30, 1988, Denver, CO. The Chicano Studies Division of the WSSA invites proposals for sessions, panels, roundtables, and papers. Send submissions of papers or detailed abstracts by December 1, 1987, to: Irene I. Blea, Department of Sociology, Box 28, Metropolitan State College, Denver, CO 80204. The Chronic Disease and Disability Section invites papers focusing on disability studies theory, qualitative and quantitative research, or disability policy. Send a two-page developed abstract by November 30, 1987, to: Gary Kiger, Department of Sociology, Utah State University, Logan, UT 84322-0730.

World Congress of Rural Sociology, June 26-July 2, 1988, Bologna, Italy. Theme: "Food Security and Rural Development: Struggling with Uncertainties." Submissions relating to thematic sessions should be directed to: Philippe Collomb, Institut National d'Etudes Demographiques, 27 rue de Dombasne, 75675 Paris-Cedex 14, France. Other submissions should be sent to: Ken Wilkinson, Rural Sociology Department, Pennsylvania State University, 207 Weaver Building, University Park, PA 16802.

PUBLICATIONS

The ASA Teaching Resources Center solicits materials for a monograph on using teaching assistants in sociology. Among items appropriate for submission are: (1) materials used to train TAs; (2) essays on topics such as the selection of TAs, use of graduate vs. undergraduate students as TAs, and the TA experience as a way of training graduate students to teach sociology; and (3) research evaluating the effectiveness of TAs. Materials should be sent by January 10, 1988, to: Edward L. Kain, Department of Sociology, Southwestern University, Georgetown, TX 78626.

Evaluation Review invites papers that report evaluations of social programs as well as the conceptual and empirical work in the more general field of applied sociology. Contact the editors for submission guidelines: Howard E. Freeman or Richard A. Berk, Department of Sociology, 234 Haines Hall, University of California, Los Angeles, CA 90024.

Journal of Adolescent Research on Black Adolescence invites manuscripts dealing with the development of youth ages 11-22 for a special issue scheduled for 1989. Deadline for receipt of manuscripts is March 1, 1988. Manuscripts should follow the format of the American Psychological Association and should be 12-20 pages in length. Submit four copies of manuscript with a 100-150 word abstract to: Patricia Bell-Scott, School of Family Studies, U-58, University of Connecticut, Storrs, CT 06268; or Ronald L. Taylor, Department of Sociology, U-68, University of Connecticut, Storrs, CT 06268.

Journal of Aging Studies invites 20-30 page summaries of proceedings of topical conferences whose themes fall within the journal's mission of critique and renewal in the field of aging. Conferences should deal with the broad concerns of the social and behavioral sciences and the humanities. Accepted submissions will appear regularly in a "Summary Proceedings" section of the journal. Direct inquiries to: Jaber F. Gubrium, Department of Sociology, University of Florida, Gainesville, FL 32611.

Journal of Urban Affairs welcomes manuscripts that represent diverse ideological and disciplinary perspectives, and contribute to substantive and methodological knowledge concerning public policies, programs, and administration. Send manuscripts (four copies in AJS style) to: Journal of Urban Affairs, Urban Studies Center, College of Urban and Public Affairs, University of Louisville, Louisville, KY 40292.

NWSA Journal, a forthcoming journal by the National Women's Studies Association, invites manuscripts from all disciplines, especially essays written from an interdisciplinary approach, research focusing on feminist pedagogy, and articles by and about women of color. It will also publish reviews of books, films, and other educational materials, and, on occasion, some student research. The first issue is scheduled for Spring 1988. For complete information on submission requirements, contact: Marjory Wagner, Editor, Center for Women's Studies, 207 Dulles Hall, 230 West 17th Avenue, The Ohio State University, Columbus, OH 43210; (614) 292-7014/1021.

Papers are invited for an upcoming volume on "Georg Simmel and Contemporary Sociology," based partly on an upcoming symposium at Boston University (see "Meetings" in this issue). Tentative submission deadline is January 15, 1988. Contact: Bernard Phillips, Department of Sociology, Boston University, 100 Cummings Street, Boston, MA 02215.

Perspectives on Social Problems, part of the Research Annuals series, invites submission of theoretical grounded studies of social problems. Manuscripts may be conceptual, empirical, or methodological, and should be developed within a clearly articulated theoretical framework. Submit two copies of manuscript to the editors: Gale Miller or James A. Holstein, Department of Social and Cultural Sciences, Marquette University, Milwaukee, WI 53233.

Qualitative Sociology, now edited by Charles W. Lidz and Victor Lidz, invites submission of essays and research notes of all kinds bearing on qualitative sociology. A special issue on applied qualitative research is being planned, and the editors are currently seeking fresh contributions to that field in particular. Submissions should be sent to: Charles W. Lidz, Western

Call, continued

Psychiatric Institute and Clinic, University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine, 3811 O'Hara Street, Pittsburgh, PA 15213-2593.

Research on the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, a new interdisciplinary series, seeks manuscripts. Any topic may be considered, but papers on current issues will be given priority. The first volume is scheduled for late 1988 or early 1989. Submit papers for the first volume, or ideas for future volumes, to: T. Anthony Jones, Editor, Department of Sociology, Northeastern University, Boston, MA 02115.

Scandinavian Studies invites submissions for a special issue on Scandinavian medical and health care systems. Papers are invited that address core features of one or more Scandinavian systems or central problems facing that system. Papers interpreting the shape of the medical care system in light of some general feature of the society in an attempt to explain why the system has developed as it has are especially welcomed. Manuscripts should be sent by December 15, 1987, to: Andrew Twaddle, Department of Sociology, University of Missouri, Columbia, MO 65211.

Sociological Viewpoints, the official journal of the Pennsylvania Sociological Society, seeks research articles, theoretical manuscripts, critical essays, and book reviews for its Spring 1988 issue. Provocative and enlightening essays are as encouraged as technically specific research pieces. Mail articles in triplicate with name appearing only on a detachable title page, for blind review purposes, and use ASA style reference format. Send materials to: Leo Barrie, Editor, Department of Sociology and Social Welfare, Bloomsburg University, Bloomsburg, PA 17815.

The Sociological Quarterly invites submission of manuscripts for a special issue on gender and aging. Papers or proposals may be offered for editorial consideration. When the initial submission is in proposal form, a final paper must be delivered by the closing date of November 1, 1987. Four copies of the paper should be submitted with a $10 submission fee (payable to the Midwest Sociological Society) to: Judith A. Levy, Associate Editor, School of Public Health, University of Illinois, P.O. Box 6998, Chicago, IL 60680.

Technological Innovation and Human Resources, a new series of books whose first volume will appear in late 1987, invites submissions for Volume II, "Technology and End-User Training." The volume will include manuscripts which apply organizational, educational, psychological, or other theories to the study of end-user training in the areas of information and other technologies in organizations. Technology in this sense is not limited to computers and office automation. Papers should conform to APA style. Review process is anonymous. Send four copies of manuscript by December 1, 1987, to: Urs E. Gattiker, School of Management, University of Lethbridge, Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada T1K 3M4; (403) 320-6966 or 329-2169.

Meetings

October 6. Mini-conference on The Changing Face of Justice: The Historic, Social and Economic Impacts. Lake Forest College, Lake Forest, IL. Contact: Jennifer Wallace, Department of Sociology, Lake Forest College, Lake Forest, IL 60045; (312) 234-3100.

October 10-13. The Alliance of American Indian Leaders and the Indian Rights Association symposium, Philadelphia, PA. Theme: "In Search of a More Perfect Union: American Indian Tribes and the United States Constitution." Contact: Wayne Kelly, Indian Rights Association, 1505 Race Street, PA 19102; (215) 563-8349.

October 15-16. Association for Voluntary Action Scholars, Hilton Plaza Inn, Kansas City, MO. Theme: "Politics, Public Policy, and the Voluntary Sector." Contact: Robert Herman, Coochingham Institute, University of Missouri, Kansas City, MO 64110; (816) 276-2894.

October 16-17. Georgia Sociological Association's Annual Meeting, Fort Valley State College and the Holiday Inn, Warner Robins, GA. Theme: "Dimensions of Social Inequality: New Directions in Research, Teaching and Application." Contact: Yvonne Beaufort, Fort Valley State College, Fort Valley, GA 31030; (912) 825-6450.

October 15-17. Tenth Annual Meeting of the Fulbright Alumni Association, Georgetown University, Washington, DC. Contact: Harriet Maynor, 1307 New Hampshire Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20036; (202) 331-1590.

October 26-30. The Tenth International Conference on the Social Sciences and Medicine, Hotel Terramar, Sitges, Spain. Contact: P.J.M. McEwan, Glengarden, Ballater, Aberdeenshire, AB3 5UB Scotland, UK.

November 1-4. Society for Risk Analysis' Annual Meeting, Wyndham Hotel, Houston, TX. Theme: "Risk Assessment in Setting National Priorities." Contact: George O. Rogers, Oak Ridge National Laboratory, Post Office Box X, Oak Ridge, TN 37831; (615) 574-4016.

November 5-7. The Chicago Symposium on Culture and Human Development, Swift Hall, University of Chicago. Theme: "Children's Lives in Cultural Context." Contact: James Stigler and Richard Shweder, Committee on Human Development of the University of Chicago, 5730 South Woodlawn Avenue, Chicago, IL 60637; (312) 753-3871.

November 9-10. Alzheimer's Disease '87. First International Alzheimer's Conference. Fountainbleau Hilton, Miami Beach, FL. Theme: "Bio-Medical Research and Psycho-Social Aspects of Alzheimer's Disease." Contact: Gerontology Institute of New Jersey, PO Box 345, Milltown, NJ 08850; (201) 257-4380.

November 10-12. Fourth Annual Correctional Symposium: Classification and Casework, Lexington, KY. Contact: Bruce Wolford or Charles Reedy, Eastern Kentucky University, Department of Correctional Services, 202 Perkins Building, Richmond, KY 40475-0951; (606) 622-1497.

November 11-13. Annual Training Symposium of The North American Association of Warden and Superintendents, Lexington, KY. Contact: Bruce Wolford or Charles Reedy, Eastern Kentucky University 202 Perkins Building, Richmond, KY 40475-0951; (606) 622-1497.

November 13. Institute for the Study of Genocide public conference, City University Graduate Center, 33 W. 42nd Street, New York, NY. Theme: "Looking but not seeing." Contact: Judith Bronfman, ISG, John Jay College of Criminal Justice, 444 West 56th Street, Room 31145, New York, NY 10019; (212) 489-3284.

November 20-21. National Association for the Advancement of Science National Forum for School Science, Hyatt Regency Crystal City, Arlington, VA. Theme: "Forum '87: Students and Science Learning." Contact: National Forum for School Science, AAAS, 1333 H Street, NW, Washington, DC 20005; (202) 326-6620.

November 21. Institute of Urban and Regional Development Conference, University of California, Berkeley. Theme: "Common Interest Community Associations: Private Government and the Public Interest." Contact: Stephen Barton and Carol Silverman, Institute of Urban and Regional Development, 316 Wurster Hall, University of California, Berkeley, CA 94720.

November 21-24. International Convention, American Studies Association and Canadian Association for American Studies, New York Hilton, New York, NY. Theme: "Creating Cultures: Peoples, Objects, Ideas." Contact: American Studies Association, 309 College Hall, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, PA 19104-6303; (215) 898-5408.

November 23. First Annual Boston University Symposium on Foundational Issues in Sociological Theory and Methods, Boston University, Boston, MA. Theme: "Georg Simmel and Contemporary Sociology." Contact: Bernard Phillips, Department of Sociology, Boston University, 100 Cummington Street, Boston, MA 02215.

January 14-16, 1988. National Education Association and the University of Florida College of Law and Department of Sociology Conference, University of Florida, Gainesville, FL. Theme: "The Future of Academic Freedom: Context and Challenge." Contact: Herman Vera, Department of Sociology, University of Florida, Gainesville, FL 32611; (904) 392-0261.

January 28-30. American Academy of Nursing's Annual Nursing Practice Symposium, Kansas City, MO. Theme: "Leadership Through Practice: The Cutting Edge." Contact: Marketing, American Nurses' Association, 2420 Pershing Road, Kansas City, MO 64108; (800) 821-5834.

January 30-February 2. The International Correctional Association in cooperation with the State Directors of Correctional Education Association and the George Washington University Corrections/Special Education Program Leadership Forum, George Washington University and Capitol Hill, Washington, DC. Contact: Gail Schwartz, The

Continued next page

"...of serious interest to all those involved in survey research"

Here's what the reviewers say about the Ci2 System:

"This is a major-league software package implementing computer-directed and computer-assisted interviewing using the microcomputer...A system such as Ci2 can also have a revolutionary impact on household interviewing...the Ci2 System is a mass-market package that is a serious tool for day-in and day-out research activity."

Public Opinion Quarterly

"...the most complete and lowest-priced software of its type on the market. Ci2 will be of serious interest to all those involved in survey research."

Sociological Science Microcomputer Review

"The Ci2 System, a sophisticated program for the development and use of microcomputer-based questionnaires, represents substantial advancements over earlier microcomputer questionnaire programs."

Many of its features are typically associated with mainframe CATI systems."

Computers and the Social Sciences

Whether it is telephone interviewing, door-to-door interviewing, research or teaching, Ci2 does it all. It is used commercially by more researchers than any other interviewing software.

There is a low-cost full-featured Ci2 System for classroom use.

Ci2 CATI for computer-assisted telephone interviewing uses PCs in a local-area network. It has telephone features you'd expect from a mainframe—but at PC prices!

Ci2 runs on the IBM PC or compatibles and produces data for analysis by any cross-tab or statistical software.

Ask about our academic system policy.

Call or write for a free demo disk.

Sawtooth Software

P.O. Box 3429

Ketchum, ID 83340 208/726-7772 (Main Office)
312/861-7105 (Chicago Office)

Ci2 CATI—MAINFRAME FEATURES AT PC PRICES!

	Use this to compare CATI/other systems	Use this to compare CATI/other systems
NUMBER OF STATIONS
Small System	6
Medium System	20
Large System	36
SAMPLE LIST CREATION AND CONTROL
Electronically transfer sample from another computer OR enter manually	✓
Automatically transfer sample from disks (such as Survey Sampling)	✓
Generate random OR household +1 numbers	✓
Interviewers can enter sample from lists/phone books while interviewing	✓
Automatically sort, filter, edit, or merge lists	✓
Pre-assign calls to specific interviewers	✓
Pre-schedule individual interviews	✓
Pre-assign respondent's quota cell when known	✓
Control number of call attempts per phone number	✓
Control time interval before re-dialing busy's	✓
Automatic call-back control	✓
NUMBER OF STUDIES
Simultaneous studies	5
QUOTA CONTROL
Automatic quota control	✓
Number of quota cells	100
Qualifications per quota cell	5
Assign precedence to lower incidence cells	✓
Control groups of quota cell sub-totals	✓
Close quota cells automatically OR manually	✓
CALL DISPOSITION MONITORING
Automatic call disposition monitoring	✓
User-definable codes	38
QUESTIONNAIRE DESIGN
Questionnaire design software	Ci2
Complete control of screen format	✓
Library for storing frequently-used text screens	✓
Logic and arithmetic skip-branches	✓
Randomization of question answer choices	✓
Records open-ended responses	✓
Color screens	✓
Quick editing/adding of questions	✓
AUTODIALING
Can be used at some or all stations	✓
INTERVIEWER ASSISTANCE
Automatic rail-backs and re-dial of busy's	✓
Call-back: call-history screen for each call	✓
Automatic qualification control/termination	✓
Study schedule shown for call-back scheduling	✓
Automatic control of call times by time zones	✓
QUESTION SCREEN SPEED
Instantaneous question screens	✓
Not slowed by adding stations	✓
PROGRESS REPORTS
Reports available during interviewing	✓
Quota reports	✓
Disposition reports	✓
Incidence reports	✓
Top-line reports	✓
Interviewer productivity reports	✓
DATA PROCESSING
Uses any cross-tab or statistical package	✓
EASE OF USE
No computer operator required	✓
No special interviewer skills or training	✓
Menu-driven study set up	✓
Easy-to-learn questionnaire writer	✓
Well-written manuals	✓
Responsive customer support	✓
OTHER BENEFITS
CATI questionnaire can be administered stand-alone without modification	✓
Clients can be given questionnaire for review on their PCs	✓
Clients can write field-ready CATI questionnaire with their Ci2 System	✓
Clients can be given date on disk	✓
PCs can be used for other office tasks	✓
HARDWARE
IBM PCs or compatibles	✓
IBM Token Ring or compatible local area network	✓
Hayes modems or compatibles for autodialing	✓
Color OR monochrome monitors	✓
RELIABILITY
Interviewing continues if a station fails/supervisor computer interrupted	✓
Data saved at supervisor computer AND station for added safety	✓
PRICES AND GUARANTEE
Small System	4,000
Medium System	10,000
Large System	12,000
Each additional Medium System	2,000
Each additional Large System	3,000
Per station fee	None
License for stand-alone interviewing	1-yr
Monthly or annual license fee	None
Trade-up credit	Full
Installation and training	Avail
Money-back guarantee	90 day
Installation payment plan	✓

Meetings, continued

George Washington University, Department of Special Education, 2201 G Street, NW, Room 524, Washington, DC 20052; (202) 994-0246.

February 7-9. Suedenborg Symposium '88, Bryn Athyn, PA. Contact: Jane Kintner Williams-Hogan, The Academy of the New Church College, PO Box 278, Bryn Athyn, PA 19009; (215) 947-4200 ext. 301.

February 10-12. The Carter Center of Emory University, Georgia State College and the Jimmy Carter Library major symposium. Atlanta, GA. Theme: "Women and the Constitution: A Bicentennial Perspective." Contact: Eleanor Main, College Office, 300 White Hall, Emory University, Atlanta, GA 30322; (404) 727-6059.

February 24-27. Annual Conference of the Eastern Educational Research Association, Miami Beach, FL. Contact: Robert Wall, Program Chair, School of Education, Towson State University, Towson, MD 21204; (301) 321-2391.

March 3-5. Middle States Council for the Social Studies 85th Annual Conference, Radisson Hotel, Wilmington, DE. Theme: "Out of the Past, Into the Future." Contact: Robert K. Taylor, Program Chair, 1538 St. James Place, Roslyn, PA 19001.

March 9-12. 1988 Annual Meeting of the Urban Affairs Association, St. Louis, MO. Theme: "The Urban Policy Agenda." Contact: Urban Affairs Association, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19716; (302) 451-2394.

March 11-12. Ferris State College's First Annual Conference on Humanities, Science and Technology, Ferris State College, Big Rapids, MI. Contact: Coordinating/Program Committee, Department of Humanities, Ferris State College, Big Rapids, MI 49307. (616) 592-2758.

March 20-23. U.S. Bureau of the Census Fourth Annual Research Conference, National Clarion Hotel, Arlington, VA. Contact: Maxine Anderson-Brown, ARC Conference Coordinator, Office of the Director, Bureau of the Census, Washington, DC 20233; (301) 763-1150.

March 23-26. Southwestern Social Science Association 1988 Meeting, Adam's Mark Hotel, Houston, TX. Theme: "Social Science, the Scientific Revolution, and the American Founding." Contact: Teresa A. Sullivan, Program Chair, Department of Sociology, University of Texas, Burdine Hall 436, Austin, TX 78712-1088.

March 23-26. Midwest Sociological Society meetings, Marriott Hotel, Minneapolis, MN. Theme: "Sociology and the Sociological Imagination." Contact: Norman K. Denzin, Program Chair, Department of Sociology, University of Illinois, 326 Lincoln Hall, 702 S. Wright Street, Urbana, IL 61801; (217) 333-4708.

March 24-25. Eighth Conference on the Small City and Regional Community, Illinois State University at Normal, IL. Theme: "Governance in the Small City and Regional Community." Contact: Nancy S. Lind or Ann H. Elder, Department of Political Science, Illinois State University, Normal, IL 61761-6901.

March 24-26. Political Economy of the World-System Section of the ASA, 12th Annual Conference, Emory University, Atlanta, GA. Theme: "War and Revolution in the World-System." Contact: Terry Boswell, Chair, PEWS Organizing Committee, Department of Sociology, Emory University, Atlanta, GA 30322.

March 25-27. The Gypsy Lore Society North American Chapter Symposium, Wagner College, Staten Island, NY. Contact: Matt T. Salo, Centennial Program Coordinator, 2104 Dexter Avenue, #203, Silver Spring, MD 20902.

March 27-31. American Orthopsychiatric Association's 65th Annual Meeting, Hilton Square, San Francisco, CA. Theme: "Adapting to Social Change, Therapy, Technology and Services." Contact: ORTHO, 19 W. 44th Street, Suite 1616, New York, NY 10036; (212) 354-5770.

Funding

The American Council of Learned Societies has a number of fellowship and grant competitions for 1987-88. For a complete brochure, contact: ACLS, 228 East 45th Street, New York, NY 10017-3398.

The American Institute of Pakistan Studies offers fellowships for predoctoral research, postdoctoral study, library service, and professional development as part of its program to promote research on Pakistan. Application deadline for all grants is January 1, 1988. Inquiries for additional information should be address to: Director, American Institute of Pakistan Studies, 138 Tolentine Hall, Villanova University, Villanova, PA 19085; (215) 645-4738/4791.

The American Statistical Association (ASA) invites applications for ASA/NSF/Census Bureau Research Fellowships and Associateships beginning around September 1, 1988. Positions are at the Census Bureau for one year or less. Fellows must have PhD and research record in relevant field; associates must have at least two years of graduate study in relevant field plus computer experience. Stipends are commensurate with experience. Apply by January 8, 1988 for fellows and February 15, 1988 for associates. For complete information, contact: Daniel Kasprzyk, Coordinator for SIPP Research, Population Division, Room 2025-3, Bureau of the Census, Washington, DC 20233; (301) 763-3846.

Brown University, Pembroke Center for Teaching and Research on Women, has postdoctoral research fellowships of $20,900 available to untenured scholars in humanities and the social sciences. Fellows pursue individual research and meet regularly in a research seminar on "Cultural Constructions of Gender." Two of the four fellowships are designated for Third World and minority scholars. Application deadline is December 18, 1987. Applications are available from: Pembroke Center, Brown University, Box 1958, Providence, RI 02912.

The Community Associations Institute Research Foundation will award a $1,500 grant for work in progress or recently completed, unpublished work that focuses on community associations (i.e., condominiums, cooperatives, and homeowner associations in planned unit developments). Selected papers will be considered for publication in the CAI Monograph Series. Deadline for submitting papers is January 29, 1988. Send three copies of paper and a cover letter to: Vivian G. Walker, CAI Research Foundation, 1423 Powhatan Street, #7, Alexandria, VA 22314; or call Doug Klein, Director of Research, at (800) 342-5224 between 9:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m. EST.

The Council on Foreign Relations solicits applications for the 1988-89 International Affairs Fellowships. The fellowships, for individuals from government, business, professional, and academic communities, seek to bridge the gap between analysis and action in foreign policy by supporting a variety of policy studies and active experiences in policy-making. The Program, for younger scholars, does not support pre- or postdoctoral scholarly research. Applications are due October 31, 1987. For complete information, contact: Director, International Affairs

Fellowship Program, Council on Foreign Relations, 58 East 68th Street, New York, NY 10021.

Harvard University, Center for International Affairs and Center for European Studies, invites applications for dissertation and postdoctoral support for research on the relationship between European society and Western security. The fellowships, funded by the Ford Foundation, carry stipends of $12,000 for the dissertation program, and $24,000 for the postdoctoral program. Fellows will spend the 1988-89 academic year at the Centers pursuing their studies in the fellowship topic area and participating in a research seminar. Deadline for applications is February 19, 1988. For more information, contact: Fellowship Office, Room 402, Center for International Affairs, Harvard University, 1737 Cambridge Street, Cambridge, MA 02138.

The Institute for Advanced Study announces awards for postdoctoral research fellowships in the School of Social Science for 1988-89, focusing on the revival of ethnic and religious commitment and the political forms that revival takes in Western societies. The School also invites applications on programs across the full range of social science topics. For additional information and application forms, contact: School of Social Science, Institute for Advanced Study, Olden Lane, Princeton, NJ 08540. Application deadline is December 1, 1987.

Institute of International Education announces that the annual competition for Fulbright and other grants will close October 31, 1987. Most grants provide transportation, tuition, and maintenance for one academic year; a few provide international travel only or a stipend intended as a partial grant-in-aid. Application forms may be obtained from: Institute of International Education, 809 United Nations Plaza, New York, NY 10017. Requests for applications after October 15 will not be honored.

The Judicial Fellows Commission invites applications for the 1988-89 Judicial Fellows Program, which seeks to attract and select outstanding individuals from a variety of disciplines who have an interest in judicial administration. Two or three fellows will be selected to spend a year, beginning in September 1988, at the Supreme Court of the U.S. Fellowship stipends are based on comparable salaries but will not exceed $615, step 3 level, presently $57,418. For additional information, contact: Vanessa M. Yarnall, Associate Director, Judicial Fellows Program, Supreme Court of the United States, Room 5, Washington, DC 20543. Applications are due November 30, 1987.

The National Academy of Education has 25 fellowships available for postdoctoral scholars doing research in education. Each award is $25,000 and is to be used as salary replacement while conducting the proposed research. Fellows may elect to use the fellowship stipend during one or two years of research. Selection is restricted to scholars holding a doctoral degree for five years or less. Deadline for application is January 1, 1988. Application material is available from: National Academy of Education, Har-

Continued next page

ShowCase™

Do Your Students Cheer When Class Begins?

In hundreds of classrooms across North America students in undergraduate sociology courses do cheer. And what they are cheering is real sociology, demonstrated live, right in the front of their classrooms. Better yet, the students are able to suggest hypotheses and immediately test them. Sound far-fetched? Not with ShowCase presentational software. With ShowCase, you show students how sociologists actually work. You do real analysis, in vivid color graphics, on a big TV screen in front of the class. And to help you get started your colleagues have written scores of class-tested demonstrations, ready to go, for many undergraduate courses.

We can not guarantee that your students will actually applaud when you first use ShowCase, although many do. But, we can guarantee that you will be satisfied or get your money back.

Ask around. You probably know someone who knows about ShowCase. Course-specific ShowCases and special-interest international and historical ShowCases cost $195 each. For only $95 we offer each U. S. state by county with 216 variables. Send for our new literature packet today.

Cognitive Development, Inc.

Suite 141, 12345 Lake City Way NE, Seattle, Washington 98125
(206) 363-6905

Yes, I want to hear applause; send me information on ShowCase™.

Name	Title
School
City	State      Zip

For IBM and compatible computers with 128K memory and color graphics.

Funding, continued

vard Graduate School of Education, 108 Longfellow Hall, Cambridge, MA 02138.

The National Cancer Institute invites applications for the Cancer Prevention Fellowship Program. Up to 10 post-doctoral fellows will be accepted for up to three years of training, beginning August 28, 1988. Benefits include relocation and travel expenses, paid federal holidays, and health insurance. Application packets may be obtained by sending a postcard with name and address to: CFPF Coordinator, NIH/NCI/DCPC/CCAB, 9000 Rockville Pike, Blair Building, Room 4A05, Bethesda, MD 20892-4200; (301) 427-8788.

National Endowment for the Humanities announces the 1988 Younger Scholars Award Program. Any college student below the senior level or high school student may apply. Award recipients are expected to work full time for nine weeks during the summer—doing research and writing a paper under the close supervision of a humanities scholar. Each recipient will receive a $1,800-$2,200 stipend. For guidelines and application forms, contact: Younger Scholars Guidelines, Room 316, Division of Fellowships and Seminars, National Endowment for the Humanities, 1100 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Washington, DC 20506.

National Endowment for the Humanities, Travel to Collections Program, provides grants of $750 to assist American scholars in meeting the costs of long-distance travel to research collections of libraries, archives, museums, or other repositories. Awards are made to help defray costs such as transportation, lodging, food, and photocopying. Application deadlines are January 15 for travel between June 1 and November 30, and July 15 for travel between December 1 and May 31. Information and application materials are available from: Travel to Collections Program, National Endowment for the Humanities, 1100 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Washington, DC 20506; (202) 786-0463.

National Institute on Aging, Behavioral and Social Research Program, seeks research and research training on Aging and Formal Health Care. For further information, contact: National Institute on Aging, Behavioral and Social Research, ATTN: Aging and Health Care, Building 31-C, Room 4C32, Bethesda, MD 20892.

The National Science Foundation supports social scientific studies of law and law-like systems of rules through its Program for Law and Social Science. The review process for the Program takes 6-9 months and includes appraisal by ad hoc reviewers and by an advisory panel that meets twice a year. The next target dates for submission of proposals are January 15, 1988, for proposals to be funded on or after July 1988 and August 15, 1988, for proposals to be funded after January 1989. For further information, contact: Felice J. Levine, Program Director, Law and Social Science Program, National Science Foundation, Washington, DC 20550; (202) 357-9567.

The Ohio State University, Mershon Center, announces an annual postdoctoral fellowship for research in international security studies. Preference will be given to applicants with a solid design for completing a book-length manuscript during the fellowship year. The winning candidate will pursue research with one or two Mershon Faculty Associates as mentors and will be a full member of the Center's activities. Appointment will begin July 1, 1988. The stipend is commensurate with experience, but will be at least $29,000. Ohio State PhDs are not eligible. Application deadline is November 16, 1987. For further information, contact: Grace Franklin, Assistant Director, Mershon Center, The Ohio State University, 199 West Tenth Avenue, Columbus, OH 43201.

Radcliffe College, Mary Bunting Institute, invites applications for its five 1988-89 fellowship programs for women scholars: (1) The Bunting Fellowship Program, (2) Science Scholars Fellowship Program, (3) Affiliation Program, (4) Peace Fellowship, and (5) Berkshire Summer Fellowship. Deadline for the first three programs is October 15, 1987; the deadline for the Peace Fellowship and Summer Fellowship is March 15, 1988. Stipends range from office space at the Institute to $20,000 plus research expenses. For information, contact: Fellowship Program, Bunting Institute of Radcliffe College, 34 Concord Avenue, Cambridge, MA 02138; (617) 495-8212.

Rockefeller Foundation announces a program of support for students for Sub-Saharan Africa enrolled in U.S. universities at the doctoral level. The program will enable about 25 PhD students to return to Africa for 12-18 months of dissertation research in the fields of agricultural sciences, health and life sciences, and related social sciences and history. Awards of up to $24,000 will be negotiated. Applicants must arrange for affiliation with an African institution able to provide appropriate research support. Preliminary inquiries are encouraged. Deadline for applications is December 31, 1987. For additional information and application forms, write to: African Dissertation Internship Awards, Rockefeller Foundation, 1133 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10036.

University of California-Los Angeles, Institute of American Cultures, offers fellowships to postdoctoral scholars to support study of Afro-Americans, Asian Americans, Chicanos, or American Indians. Stipends range from $20,000 to $25,000 per year. Fellowships can be awarded for less than one year. Deadline for submitting applications is December 31, 1987. For additional information and application forms, contact the appropriate ethnic center at UCLA: Center for Afro-American Studies, Los Angeles, CA 90024-1545; Asian American Studies Center, Los Angeles, CA 90024-1546; Chicano Studies Research Center, Los Angeles, CA 90024-1544; or American Indian Studies Center, Los Angeles, CA 90024-1548.

Washington University School of Medicine invites applications for fellowships in psychiatric epidemiology and biostatistics. Interdisciplinary training and research experience is offered over one to three years. If interested, send curriculum vitae, three letters of recommendation, and a sample of research writing. Candidates with a strong quantitative background are preferred. Contact: Lee N. Robins, Washington University School of Medicine, Medical Center, 4940 Audubon Avenue, Medical School Box 8134, St. Louis, MO 63110.

The W.K. Kellogg Foundation seeks candidates for the 1988 Group of the Kellogg National Fellowship Program. Up to 50 individuals in the early years of their careers will be selected to receive a grant of $35,000 over three years to pursue an individualized learning plan and take part in Foundation-designed seminars and activities. Each employer must agree to provide the fellow with 25% release time. (Self-employed fellows are eligible for a monthly stipend.) Applications are due December 18, 1987. Contact: W.K. Kellogg Foundation, 400 North Avenue, Battle Creek, MI 49017; (616) 968-1611.

The Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation offers Spencer Dissertation Year Fellowships in Research Related to Education. Applicants must be a PhD or EdD candidate in a doctoral program at a U.S. graduate school. Twenty-five fellows will receive $12,500 for one year of full-time dissertation research. Applications are due December 1, 1987. Application forms are available from: Spencer Fellowships, Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation, P.O. Box 410, Princeton, NJ 08542. The Foundation also has Charlotte W. Newcomb Dissertation Year Fellowships designed to encourage original and significant study of ethical or religious values in all fields. Winners will receive $10,000 for one year of dissertation research and writing. Applications are due January 1, 1988. Applications may be requested from the Foundation.

The Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation invites applications for the new Rural Policy Fellowship program. Fellowships of up to $15,000 for 12 months, plus allowances for field work and tuition, will be awarded to up to 15 American graduate students who have completed all pre-dissertation requirements and who are planning to investigate a topic concerning rural policy, economy, or society. Grants will be available for a year of field work as well as a final year of dissertation writing. Application deadline is December 1, 1987. Contact: Rural Policy Fellowships, Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation, Box 410, Princeton, NJ 08542.

People

Ronald Abeles was a Visiting Fellow at the Max Planck Institute for Human Development during March-July 1987.

James Ault is a Visiting Scholar at Trinity Church in New York City during October 1987. With funding from the Lilly Endowment, he is writing a book on the sources of the "Moral Majority" phenomenon in American life.

Nachman Ben-Yehuda, The Hebrew University of Jerusalem had his book, Deviance and Moral Boundaries, selected to be on Choice's list of the most outstanding academic books in 1987.

Charlene R. Black, Georgia Southern College, is the Dean and Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs.

Tom R. Burns, University of Uppsala, Sweden, has been appointed Robinson University Professor at George Mason University.

William Buxton, University of New Brunswick, is a visiting scholar at the Center for European Studies, Harvard University, for the fall, 1987 semester.

Terry Caine is the new director of the Formosan Association for Public Affairs.

Lois Cohen, National Institute for Dental Research, was selected as the first recipient of the Distinguished Senior Scientist Award for the International Association for Dental Research Behavioral Sciences Group.

Brian Copp, University of Wisconsin—River Falls, has been selected as one of thirty-one American Council on Education "Fellows" for the 1987-88 academic year.

Janice Costanzo is now working in the Population Division of the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

Thomas O. Cushman has joined the sociology faculty at the University of Texas-Austin.

Sandra K. Danziger has joined the faculty of University of Michigan in the school of Social Work.

Debra David, San Jose State University, has been awarded a 32-month grant by the Retirement Research Foundation to evaluate Phase II of their initiative on personal autonomy in long term care. She has been appointed Director of the Gerontology Education and Training Center at the University.

Caroline Dillman, is now Director of Off-Campus Programs and Continuing Education at Reinhardt College, Waleska, GA.

Gisele Freund, Paris France, is a Getty Scholar for 1987-88. She will pursue her interest in sociology of photography at the Getty Center in Santa Monica, CA.

Marshall J. Graney, Wayne State University, is now at the Department of Biostatistics and Epidemiology, University of Tennessee, Memphis.

Jay Gubrium has been appointed Professor of Sociology at the University of Florida, Gainesville.

Rebecca Guy is the new chair of the Department of Sociology at Memphis State University.

Michael T. Hannan, Cornell University, was awarded a Guggenheim fellowship to study organizational diversity and social inequality.

Robin Jarrett, University of Chicago, has received support from the Rockefeller Foundation Research Fellowship

Program for Minority-Group Scholars for her project on "Household Formation Patterns Among Low-Income Black Women."

William S. Johnson, Ball State University, is now the Director for the Center of Academic Assessment at the University.

Gary Lee, has joined the faculty at the University of Florida, Gainesville.

Judith Lasker, Lehigh University, was appointed to a two year position as Associate Dean of Arts and Science at the University. Her book, In Search of Parenthood: Coping with Infertility and High Tech Conception, co-authored with Susan Boy, has just been published by Beacon Press.

John Kennedy, University of Hartford, will become a co-director of the Survey Research Center, and adjunct Assistant Professor of Sociology at Indiana University.

Ronald J. Knapp, Clemson University, was appointed an Alumni Professor of Sociology. His alumni professorship is sponsored by the Class of 1934.

Mirra Komarovsky, emeritus professor, Barnard College, Columbia University, will give the Burgess Award address at the National Council on Family Relations annual meeting in November.

Richard F. Larson, Clemson University, has established and endowed the Larson-Krupka Award in Sociology for the Outstanding Rising Senior in the Department of Sociology at Clemson University.

Richard P. Madsen, University of California—San Diego, received a Ford Foundation fellowship to study "Moral Vision and Foreign Policy: The Case of U.S.—Chinese Relations."

Douglas Massey, University of Pennsylvania, will join the Department of Sociology and Population Research Center at the University of Chicago.

Alexander Jan Matejko, University of Alberta, has his books: Comparative Work Structures, The Self-Defeating Organization, and In the Search of New Organizational Paradigms, published by Greenwood Press/Traeger Publishers.

Reece McGee is now Head of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at Purdue University. He succeeds Robert Perrucci who returns to research and teaching after eight years of highly effective service in the Head's office.

Kathleen McKinney has joined the faculty at Illinois State University.

Marilyn McMillen, National Cancer Institute, and David McMillen, Bureau of Census, have taken over as joint editors of PAA Affairs.

George C. Myers, Duke University, will continue as editor-in-chief of the Journal of Gerontology through 1987. He will serve as editor of the JG: Social Sciences.

Joseph Morrissey is now working at the Medical School of the University of North Carolina.

Philip R. Newman has his book, Development Through Life: A Psychosocial Approach, co-authored with Barbara M. Newman, published by The Dorsey Press.

Robert Nisbet, has been named the Jefferson Lecturer in the Humanities for 1988.

William P. O'Hare, has become the director of Policy Studies at the Population Reference Bureau.

Mark Oromaner is Executive Vice President at Hudson County Community College, New Jersey.

Novella Perrin, Central Missouri State University, has been installed as national president of Sigma Phi Omega (national gerontology honorary).

Matilda White Riley, National Institute on Aging, has had a new under-

Continued next page

INTERACTIVE GRAPHICS AND STATISTICS

Invest in software that offers a return for your money!
Software that does more than many well-known packages for half the price!

Create graphs the way you want them:

- 35 basic graph types; generate numerous renditions
- Key character font, size, position, and color
- Stack and overlay graphs
- Add annotations using cross hairs
- Self standard error bars to histograms, trace and scatter graphs
- Create 3-dimensional graphs (ribbed and contour)

Make word charts and posters.
Pull-downs help screens provided.

Presentation, Business, Analytical, and Scientific Graphs

Obtain a wide range of data analyses, including:

- Descriptive Statistics
- Linear, Multiple Linear, and Non-Linear Regression Analysis
- Stochastic Distribution Fitting
- Independence Testing and Grid Generation
- User-supplied FORTRAN functions fitted and plotted

Extremely Flexible, Yet Powerful

IBM PC/XT & PC/AT (and compatible), CDC Cyber, Prime, DEC VAX. Supports most pen plotters and dot matrix printers. IBM Enhanced and Professional Graphics Adapters, Hercules, Techar, and many others.

Contact:
Scientific Programming Enterprises, P.O. Box 689 Haddet, MI 48849. (517) 339-9859

Pie Graphs: Individually Shaded and Colored Pie Slices.

Extremely Flexible, Yet Powerful

Superb Curve Fitting Capabilities

People, continued

graduate prize established in her honor at Bowdoin college. The annual prize recognizes an outstanding research project by a student majoring in sociology or anthropology at Bowdoin. Riley has been on the Faculty since 1973.

Alice S. Rossi, University of Massachusetts will give a master lecture on "Gender and Parent-Adult Relationships in a Life Course Program" at the National Council on Family Relations annual meeting in November.

Judith L. Rothman, Editor-in-Chief, Harper and Row, College Division has been named one of the winners of the Women's National Book Association Book Women Award. This award honors women in the book world who have made a difference in bringing authors and their readers together.

Joyce Rothschild, University of Toledo, is the recipient of the Society for the Study of Social Problems' C. Wright Mills Award.

David Rottman now works for the National Center for State Courts.

John W. Ryan, Clemson University, is the corecipient of a $48,986 grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services to study social rules, eating behavior and obesity.

John Scanzoni, has joined the faculty of the University of Florida, Gainesville.

David Scullli has joined the faculty at the University of Delaware.

Mildred M. Seltzer, Miami University of Ohio, was re-elected as the Secretary of the Gerontological Society of America.

Douglas A. Smith, Indiana University, is now Associate Professor at the Institute of Criminal Justice and Criminology at the University of Maryland and is Editor-in-Chief of Criminology, the official journal of the American Society of Criminology.

Brad Stewart is now on the faculty of Miami University in Ohio.

D. Kinly Sturkie, John Ryan and Larry G. Peppers, Clemson University, are corecipients of a $88,114 training grant from the South Carolina Department of Social Services.

Barrie Thorne has joined the faculty at the University of Southern California, as the Barbra Streisand Professor of Intimacy and Sexuality.

Marta Tienda, University of Wisconsin will become the Director of the Community and Family Studies Center, and a member of the Department of Sociology at the University of Chicago.

Isidor Wallimann, School of Social Work, Basel, Switzerland, has been awarded a Fulbright grant to Bulgaria in 1987-88.

Michael J. White, will join the Urban Institute in Washington, DC.

Robert P. Wolensky, University of Wisconsin—Stevens Point, received one of two distinguished achievement awards presented last spring by the UWSP Academy of Letters and Science. He is currently leading the UWSP semester abroad program in London.

James D. Wright, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, testified about homeless families before the House Select Committee on Children, Youth, and Families, February, 1987.

Don Zimmerman, University of California, Santa Barbara, was elected to an Honorary Simon Visiting Professorship at the University of Manchester, England.

Stuart Queen. A note from Stuart Queen's daughter, Margaret E. Queen. Queen is the oldest living ASA Past President: "Dr. Stuart A. Queen has been confined to a convalescent hospital for the past three years. He was able to keep up with some news of ASA via excerpts from Footnotes and other publications I read to him. During the past year he has slipped physically and somewhat mentally, though still alert for 97. The American Sociological Association means a lot to him."

Competitions

Brown University Press awards prizes of $2,500 and publication by the Press for outstanding manuscripts of exceptional quality. A single copy of manuscript, the author's curriculum vitae, and a covering letter stating that the manuscript is being submitted for the book prize should be sent to: Brown University Press, Box 1881, Providence, RI 02912.

The Population Association of America invites pre- or postdoctoral graduate students to submit papers for the 1988 Dorothy S. Thomas Award. The best paper submitted in the fields of internal migration or the interrelationships among social, economic, and demographic variables will be awarded $1,500 and an appropriate certificate. Papers exceeding 35 pages, including double-spaced text, tables, footnotes, and appendices may not be considered. Students should request their research advisor to submit a letter confirming eligibility for the award. Submission deadline is January 15, 1988. For complete submission procedures, contact: William A.V. Clark, Department of Geography, University of California, Los Angeles, CA 90024-1524.

The Society for the Study of Social Problems invites nominations for the Crime and Delinquency Division's 1988 Award for Outstanding Scholarship. The award is given to work that makes a significant contribution to the sociological understanding of crime and delinquency. Works published in 1986 or 1987 that have not been previously nominated are eligible for the 1988 award. Deadline for nominations is April 15, 1988. Send nominations to:

Continued next page

CASSETTE ORDER FORM

IN CASE YOU MISSED IT. . .

The American Sociological Association

82nd Annual Meeting • August 17-21, 1987 • Palmer House & Towers/Chicago

Cross-National Research in Sociology

All programs contain two cassettes — $14.00

- ASA 701 Session #1—Comparative Stratification and Mobility: New Directions
- ASA 702 Session #14—Cross-National Studies in Law and Social Control
- ASA 703 Session #34—Comparative Urban Sociology
- ASA 704 Session #35—Violence and the Nation State
- ASA 705 Session #45—Strategies of Cross-National Research
- ASA 706 Session #55—Cross-National Studies in Class Analysis
- ASA 707 Session #56—The Rise and Fall of Civilizations
- ASA 708 Session #57—The Nature of Sociological Research and Practice, Worldwide
- ASA 709 Session #58—Ethnicity, Poverty, and Family Structure in the Inner City
- ASA 710 Session #59—The New International Division of Labor: Implications for Working Women and Working Men
- ASA 711 Session #68—Cross-National Research in Educational Systems
- ASA 712 Session #69—Capital Corruption
- ASA 713 Session #88—Theoretical Implications of Comparative Research on Gender Inequality
- ASA 714 Session #99—Presidential Address and Awards Ceremony
- ASA 715 Session #100—Cross-National Research on Social Structure and Personality
- ASA 716 Session #112—Organizations in Comparative Context
- ASA 717 Session #124—The Trans-National Meaning of Concepts
- ASA 718 Session #135—Comparative Health Systems
- ASA 719 Session #136—Work, Family, and Personality: Transition to Adulthood
- ASA 720 Session #146—Protest, Dissent, and Social Change
- ASA 721 Session #158—Social Change and the Life Course: Cross-National Perspectives
- ASA 722 Session #159—Welfare States in Crisis?
- ASA 723 Session #160—American Sociology and the Study of International Conflict, War, and Peace: A Sociology of Neglect?
- ASA 724 Session #161—Anniversary Session: Emile Durkheim
- ASA 725 Session #162—Comparative Research on Labor Markets: Internal and Secondary Labor Markets
- ASA 726 Session #174—International Social Surveys
- ASA 727 Session #175—The Civil Wars in Chile (or the bourgeois revolutions that never were) and Landlords and Capitalists: The Dominant Class of Chile
- ASA 728 Session #185—Cross-National Research in Demography
- ASA 729 Session #195—Comparative Perspectives on Economic Development and Its Social Consequences
- ASA 731 Session #218—Cross-National Research on Race, Ethnicity and Immigration

HOW TO ORDER:

1. Check the cassettes you want.
2. Fill in name and address below.
3. Mail your order to Teach 'em, Inc., 160 E. Illinois St., Chicago, IL 60611 (312) 467-0424.

Order Toll-Free:

1 800 225-3775
(Outside Illinois)

Amount of order ..... $ _____
 Foreign Countries: Please add appropriate air mail postage ..... + $ _____
 Sales tax (IL orders only) ..... + $ _____
 Billing charge (if applicable) ..... + $ _____
 Shipping and Handling ..... + $ 3.00
 Total amount of order (in U.S. funds) ..... - $ _____

Please indicate:  Check enclosed (payable to Teach 'em, Inc.)  Bill me and add $3 for billing

VISA  MasterCard  AMEX Expires _____ Card No. _____

Name _____ Title _____

Organization _____

Street Address (No P.O. Boxes, please) _____

City _____ State _____ ZIP _____

Telephone ( ) _____ Signature _____

PLEASE PRINT

TAKE CONTROL of your DATA ENTRY

- Improve Accuracy
- Faster Turnaround
- Reduces Costs

DATA ENTRY VALIDATION SYSTEMS by MYCOM, INC.

Designed for the rigors of STATISTICAL AND SURVEY DATA ENTRY

NO PROGRAMMING REQUIRED

PC DATA ENTRY

- Precise edit checks
- Rekey verification
- Range checks
- Boolean logic checks
- Code translations
- Multi-key access
- Record reformatting
- Operator reports
- and more

Single Unit License $395.00
Site License $1500.00

PC CATI ENTRY

- All of the above and
- Automatic skips
- Automatic question rotation
- Verbatim responses

Single Unit License $595.00
Site License $2000.00

Easy to use, cost effective for IBM compatible PCs

To order, or for free demonstration diskette call or write:

MYCOM, INC.
3140 Trenholm Drive
Oakton, VA 22124
(703) 620-6043

Competition, continued

Marvin Krohn, Department of Sociology, State University of New York, Albany, NY 12222.

Contact

A search is presently underway to collect the American correspondence of Florian Znaniecki, accompanying the contributions left in Poland and other sources. The University of Poznan and Bielefeld University of Germany are cooperating in the effort. Please send letters and similar contributions to: Robert Rosenthal, Department of Special Collections, Joseph Regenstein Library, University of Chicago, 1100 E. 57th Street, Chicago, IL 60637.

Do you have an internship program? Susan P. Chizeck is interested in starting a network with others who supervise student interns or who are interested in setting up internship programs. In her program, she supervises senior students in most majors, while others may handle only sociology majors. Send name, address, and any materials you wish to share to: Susan P. Chizeck, Director, Internship Program, School of General Studies, MS GR 26, University of Texas-Dallas, P.O. Box 75083-0688, Richardson, TX 75083-0688; (214) 690-2323.

Irish sociologist, with interest in deviance and mass media, would like to exchange with American sociologist for July-December 1988. Contact: Ciaran McCullagh, Department of Social Theory and Institutions, University College, Cork, Ireland.

Deaths

Donald R. Cressey, University of California-Santa Barbara, died on July 21.

Fredrick Fliegel, University of Illinois-Urbana, died of a stroke in Pakistan on September 11.

Hans Haferkamp, chair of the German Theory Section, died in an accident on his sailboat.

Uriel Schoenbach, husband of Carrie Schoenbach of Kensington, MD, died on August 29.

Obituaries

Paul Duncan-Jones
(-1987)

Paul Duncan-Jones, Principal Research Fellow in the National Health and Medical Research Council (NH&MRC) Social Psychiatry Research Unit, died on Saturday 11 July while bushwalking with friends near Mount Majura. He was 58.

Duncan-Jones was born in London and educated at Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge. He had extensive experience in the social sciences in the United Kingdom, particularly in survey research while a Research Fellow at Nuffield College, Oxford. In 1972 he was appointed Senior Research Fellow in the Department of Sociology, Research School of Social Sciences (RSSS), where he took part in a large study of social mobility.

From 1976 until his death, he was a Senior Research Fellow in the NH&MRC Social Psychiatry Research Unit. There, he brought his considerable knowledge of statistics to bear on the epidemiology of psychiatric disorders, and was a major contributor to the 1978-79 survey of psychiatric disorders in Canberra. He continued this track of work, carrying out highly creative studies on the natural history of common symptoms, particularly anxiety and depression. In this field, he earned an international reputation. His work on the aetiology and cause of minor psychiatric disorders was characterized by innovation, the creative application of recent statistical methods to psychiatric research, and a relentless insistence on following the data, rather than traditional thinking.

Duncan-Jones was an adviser to many younger investigators in mental health research throughout Australia. These included psychiatrists, clinical psychologists and social scientists. The international literature in psychiatric research will remain enduring evidence of his contribution, particularly in the areas of latent trait theory and structural equation modelling. The Australian psychiatric research community, with its obligations to the public health, is now deeply conscious that one of its most useful resources has gone. There are many at ANU, elsewhere in Australia and overseas, who will continue to regret that he is no longer with us.

Duncan-Jones is survived by his wife, two daughters and a son, to each of whom we offer our sympathy.

(Reprinted from the Australian National University Reporter)

Gilberto Freyre
(-1987)

Gilberto Freyre 87, an internationally acclaimed sociologist and the author of about 120 books who as a conservative federal congressman from 1946 to 1951 helped rewrite Brazil's constitution, died July 18 in his native city of Recife, in northeastern Brazil, after a stroke.

His best-known work was the 1933 "Masters and Slaves," a study of the relationship between Brazil's Portuguese colonizers and their African slaves. He expounded the theory that the Portuguese were best able to colonize tropical regions because they had liberal tendencies and Catholic traditions tempered by Moorish and Jewish influences.

Roger H. Jenhenson
(-1987)

Roger H. Jenhenson died in an automobile accident on November 30, 1986 at the age of 59. His 17-year tenure as a faculty member of the Anderson Schools of Management (University of New Mexico) was much too brief.

Professor Jenhenson was born in Brussels and earned a graduate degree in theology in 1955 at the Dominican College of Philosophy and Theology in Belgium. He also earned graduate degrees with majors in industrial sociology from the University of Louvain in Belgium, and in industrial psychology from the University of Montreal in Quebec. From 1947 until 1968, Roger served as a member of the Dominican Order. In 1972 he was awarded the PhD from Yale University, where his area of specialization was organizational behavior.

Roger continuously developed his professional capabilities through post-doctoral training, consulting, research and writing. He was deeply committed to a wide variety of scholarly inquiry of an interdisciplinary nature that included the study of authority relationships, high technology and the quality of life, and ethical and religious values. Much of his research interest and expertise involved the critical study of formal organizations from a phenomenological approach. Those of us who knew Roger well shall always remember him as a scholar par excellence.

We shall also remember him as a patient and concerned colleague who was adept at helping us to resolve the many issues that inevitably come before a college faculty. His interpersonal skills were enviable. Because of Professor Jenhenson's example, efforts and accomplishments, the students and faculty of the Anderson Schools are clearly the beneficiaries of his having been among us.

John A. Yeakel, University of New Mexico

Anatoly G. Kharchev
(-1987)

Anatoly G. Kharchev, the senior sociologist of the family in the USSR, died in Moscow on June 15, 1987. Since 1974 he had been Editor-in-Chief of the principal sociological journal, Sociological Researches.

After his doctorate from Moscow University of 1949, he launched the study of marriage and its domestic sequels in the Soviet Union. From 1953 to 1971 he conducted a series of field studies of families, published in 1964, and reprinted several times, in the influential book, Marriage and Family in the USSR. Since 1960, he had been a major resource in Eastern Europe for the International Sociological Association, and especially for its Committee on Family Research. In this capacity he contributed papers to International Social Science Journal (Unesco), 1962; Acta Sociologica, 1964; and chapters to many books published in Western Europe. In 1972, he organized and chaired the Twelfth International Seminar on Family Research on the theme "Family Relations Under Conditions of Social Change." This seminar showed the applied aspect of his work, since it heard about public solutions to domestic problems like desertion or divorce; these studies arose from rules laid down in an all USSR conference in Minsk in 1970.

Moving from Leningrad to Moscow in 1971, he continued until his unexpected death, to promote concrete social research and its publication in scientific journals. His influence on, and encouragement of, cross-national studies will now be lost to the discipline world-wide.

John Mokey, Annapolis, MD

Emory Kimbrough, Jr.
(1934-1987)

Emory Kimbrough, Jr., Professor and Head of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at Washington and Lee University, died from a brain tumor on January 8, 1987. He was fifty-two years old and served on the Washington and Lee faculty from 1962 until his untimely death. Born and raised in Clarksville, Tennessee, Professor Kimbrough graduated from Davidson College in 1957 cum laude, Phi Beta Kappa, with honors in sociology. He earned his MA in 1959 and PhD in 1963 from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Through his graduate school years, he held Odum and Woodrow Wilson fellowships.

During his tenure at Washington and Lee, Professor Kimbrough distinguished himself in many ways. He served diligently on important university committees. He was a visiting professor at the University of North Carolina, Hollins College, Vanderbilt University, and Chung Chi College of the Chinese University of Hong Kong. He published articles in Social Forces, the Virginia Social Science Journal, and the Washington and Lee Law Review, read papers at the American, Southern, and Mid-Atlantic sociological societies, and contributed book reviews to Social Forces and the Roanoke Times. In recent years, he participated in seminars at Oxford University on topics such as medieval archaeology, evolution, and the development of industrial communities.

Professor Kimbrough will be remembered best by his students and colleagues as a dedicated teacher who spent countless hours preparing his lectures, counselling students, and agonizing about the quality of his work. It may well be that his most effective level of teaching was achieved during the final year of his life.

Those who knew him well will remember his courage. Following an operation for a brain tumor nineteen years ago, he lived with the realization that death may be imminent. Perhaps that experience explains his effort to make every minute count. We miss him as a teacher, a scholar, and especially a friend.

O. Kendall White, Jr., John McDaniel, and David Nowack, Washington and Lee University

Herman R. Lantz
(1919-1987)

On the morning of May 27, 1987, Herman R. Lantz died quite unexpectedly of a heart attack at his home in Carbondale. He was 67. A native of New York City, he earned his MA and PhD degrees in sociology from the Ohio State University, where he taught briefly before joining the Southern Illinois University (SIU) faculty in 1951.

Herman Lantz was an unusually productive scholar. He authored or co-authored eight books, several monographs, and scores of articles. Moreover, his research interests ranged widely. Foremost among them was the study of the family for which he was internationally recognized. While his work on the family was diverse, one theme gave much of it sharp focus. He was convinced that most generalizations about the impact of industrial capitalism on the family, marriage, and the status of women lacked sufficient foundation in historical studies on the pre-industrial family to which several of his former doctoral students contributed. Of nearly equal priority on his research agenda were community studies. He especially wanted to unravel the mystery of why many communities failed to realize their apparent social and economic potential, as well as ferret out the social roots of community-wide apathy and resignation. Of his publications in this vein, two studies of southern Illinois towns, People of Coaltown and A Community in Search of Itself, will probably be remembered longest.

Herman's impact on sociology at Southern Illinois was enormous. He played a key role in shaping the department and in developing the sociology graduate program which he directed for several years. He edited the SIU Press' series in sociology and organized one of the University's first foreign exchange programs with sociology as its centerpiece. In the early 1960's he spent a year as research fellow at Harvard University and, in the 1960's and 70's, served variously as visiting scientist to the Polish, Romanian, Hungarian, and Yugoslavian academies of science. He was among the first American sociologists to be awarded a grant to study the state of sociology in Eastern Europe. From 1981-84 he co-edited The Sociological Quarterly. Both in his work abroad and later as editor he sought to deepen sociological understanding of the sociological enterprise itself.

After retiring from SIU in 1985, Herman served as a consultant on the University's international exchange programs. He also undertook new research on the role the Rockefeller Foundation played in laying the basis for modern social science and the reception America accorded refugee sociologists during the Nazi era. Regrettably, this research was only in embryonic form when he died.

Herman Lantz was a thoroughly professional sociologist, scholar, and teacher. He had high standards and applied them to students, colleagues, and himself. To students who sought to benefit his knowledge and wisdom, he was challenging yet always encouraging and supportive. Behind a rather formidable, and sometimes abrasive, professional exterior resided a sensitive, reflective, generous, delightfully witty, and charming man who was fiercely loyal to his family, students, friends, and the values he held dear.

He is survived by his wife, Judith, two daughters, Sarah and Rachel, and a brother, Louis.

Charles R. Snyder, Southern Illinois University-Carbondale

Mass Media

Walter R. Allen, University of Michigan, and Clifford L. Broman, Michigan State University, were cited in a July 17 article in The Detroit News about an MSU report on the inequality that still exists for blacks in Michigan.

Elijah Anderson and Marvin E. Wolfgang, University of Pennsylvania,

Continued next page

A New Slant on Statistics

$990. That's the cost of joining the many others who have already discovered STATA. Of course, quantity discounts, leases, and discounts for qualified educational institutions are available. And there's a $400 money-back guarantee.

$20. That's the cost of our Demonstration System. Call 1-800-STATAPC, or from California, Alaska, and Hawaii, call 1-213-470-4341. Place an order or just ask questions.

<input type="checkbox"/> ANOVA and ANCOVA	<input type="checkbox"/> Chi-square tests
<input type="checkbox"/> Contingency tables	<input type="checkbox"/> Cumulative functions
<input type="checkbox"/> Cross-tabulation	<input type="checkbox"/> Covariance & Correlation matrices
<input type="checkbox"/> Fisher's & Lesn's	<input type="checkbox"/> Influence statistics
<input type="checkbox"/> Logit & probit	<input type="checkbox"/> Multiple-comparison tests
<input type="checkbox"/> Non-parametric tests	<input type="checkbox"/> Predicted and residual values
<input type="checkbox"/> Random numbers	<input type="checkbox"/> Regression
<input type="checkbox"/> Univariate Statistics	<input type="checkbox"/> Weighted & unweighted data and more.

STATA

Computing Resource Center
10801 National Boulevard
Los Angeles, California 90064
1-800-STATAPC
(In California, Alaska, and Hawaii:
1-213-470-4341)
Telex: 263-199-STATAPC

1-800-STATAPC

Media, continued

were quoted in The New York Times on June 18 about the Bernard Goetz verdict and the nature of urban life.

James Ault's Ninety-minute documentary film, "Born Again: Life in a Fundamentalist Baptist Church," was broadcast nationally on PBS as a prime time special on September 23, 1987.

Ellen Auster, Business School, Columbia University, had a letter to the editor published in Business Week, July 13, 1987 issue, challenging the conclusions drawn in cover story on "Corporate Women They're About to Break through to the Top." More appropriate: "Corporate Women: The Barriers to the Top Still Exist."

Frank D. Bean, University of Texas, was quoted in a July 27 article in The Los Angeles Times on the birthrate of Latinos in the United States.

Warren Bennis, University of Southern California, had his article on sports clichés in business published in the business section of the New York Times on July 5.

Deirdre Boden, Washington University in St. Louis, was featured in the August issue of Glamour magazine in an article about succeeding in small talk.

Daniel Cornfield, Vanderbilt University, had his recently released book, Workers Managers, and Technological Change, reported on the front page of the June 30 issue of the Wall Street Journal.

William V. D'Antonio, ASA Executive Officer, appeared on the Today show on September 10 talking about the national survey on attitudes of Catholics he has conducted with Ruth Wallace, Dean Hoge, and James Davidson.

William Darrow, Centers for Disease Control AIDS program, was quoted in the June issue of Health magazine on the importance of using condoms during oral and anal sex for the prevention of AIDS.

Harry Edwards, University of California at Berkeley, was featured in a New York Times article about his job as consultant to major league baseball on the recruitment of blacks and hispanics into the world of baseball.

Erwin H. Epstein, University of Missouri-Rolla, was interviewed by La Nación, a leading Latin American newspaper, regarding his analysis of the growth and function of university labor unions in Argentina.

Mary Frank Fox, The University of Michigan, was interviewed and quoted in a story on women, men and white collar crime in the business section of The Detroit News, August 3.

Razelle Frankl, Glassboro State College, has appeared on the MacNeil-Lehrer News Hour and local television and radio shows as the result of the publication of her book, Televangelism: The Marketing of Popular Religion.

Donna Gaines, SUNY-Stony Brook, wrote an article "After the Suicides: Teenage Wasteland" for the Village Voice, July 14, 1987. She is writing a book on teen suicides.

Bill Gibson, Southern Methodist University, was featured in Steve Smith's Dallas Times Herald on September 2 for his research on paramilitary warriors.

Paul J. Goldstein, Narcotic and Drug Research, Inc., was interviewed on a news broadcast of the ABC affiliate station in Houston about the findings of his drug and homicide study conducted with Henry H. Brownstein, New York State Division of Criminal Justice Services.

Gerard J. Hunt, University Hospital, Baltimore, was cited in a feature story in the Baltimore Sun, "Sun Magazine," about the life of a Psychiatrist staff resident at University Hospital.

Richard Kania, Guilford College, was interviewed, by the WPMY-TV, Good Morning Show, July 22, about the Iran/Contra hearings in Congress and their revelations about decision-making practices in the White House.

Rebecca E. Klatch, University of California, Santa Cruz, had her research on women on the Right featured in a June 16 article in The Washington Times.

Ronald J. Knapp, Clemson University, was interviewed on CNN's Sonya Live in L.A. on June 22 about his book Beyond Endurance a look at various aspects of the death of a child.

Fred Koening, Tulane University, was interviewed and quoted in an article in The Christian Science Monitor, and interviewed on WVL-TV news in New Orleans about Lt. Colonel Oliver North. He was also cited in a story on love indicators for the Tampa Tribune as well as in another article in The Los Angeles Times about beer contamination.

Jeanette C. Lauer and Robert H. Lauer, United States International University, had excerpts of their book, Til Death Do Us Part: How Couples Stay Together, published in the July issue of Ladies Home Journal.

Aisha al Mani, a Saudi sociologist, was quoted in a June 19 Washington Post article on Saudi women.

Fred Milano, Appalachian State University, was featured in a July 20 Charlotte Observer article on the political uses of manipulation of violence by Hollywood war films.

Philip Nyden, Loyola University of Chicago, was quoted in the Evenston Review about how the city could help to maintain stability in its integrated neighborhoods.

Harriet Presser, University of Maryland, was cited in an August 5, Los Angeles Times article "Child Care Hasles Causes Birth Decline."

Lee Robbins, Washington University in St. Louis, was quoted in the New York Times on June 23 in an article about his research on memory distortion of the past.

H. Laurence Ross, University of Helsinki, Finland, was the subject of an April 10 feature in the capital's newspaper Ilta-Sanomat, contrasting perceptions of drunk driving as a social problem in the United States and Finland. He was also quoted in the IIIHS Status Report for his research with James P. Foley on drunk driving.

Terrence Russell, American Chemical Society, was cited in the April 26 issue of the Chicago Tribune about the rising unemployment rate in the chemical industry. Russell was also quoted, with Daryl E. Chubin, Congress' Office of Technology Assessment, and Patricia K. Woolf, Princeton University, in the April 13 issue of Chemical and Engineering News, on misconduct and ethics in scientific research.

William Sampson, Northwestern University, and a twice a week columnist for the Chicago-Sun Times, was quoted in Ira Berkow's New York Times June 13 article on Larry Bird.

Allan Schnaiberg, Northwestern University, was cited in A Pioneer Press Newspaper in a May 27 article on young adults returning home to live.

Ethel Shanas, University of Illinois at Chicago, was quoted in the Washington Post on August 31 about the elderly entering nursing homes for nonmedical reasons.

Theda Skocpol, Harvard University, and Paul Starr, Princeton University, were featured in a May 18 Boston Globe article on academic tenure.

Michael W. Smith, University of Maryland-European Division, spoke on "Predictable Crises and Transitions in a Military Career" on the Gausthaus Show on AFN TV (Frankfurt, Germany).

David Snow, University of Texas, was featured in the lead article in the April 8 In These Times for his research on the homeless in Texas.

Magdalena Sokolowska, Academy of Sciences, Poland, was mentioned in a New York Times article as one of the four Polish scholars filing a slander suit against the Government's chief spokesman who accused them of meeting with an American suspected of spying.

Rose Somerville, San Diego State University, writes a monthly column, "Legislative Watch," in San Diego Woman, and a bi-monthly "Legislative Update" in the newsletter of the Older Women's League, San Diego. Her article on the retirement years appeared in the April Postscript, the newsletter of the San Diego State University Faculty/Staff Retirement Association. Her letters to the editor on health decisions and death were published in the February and March Daily Californian, as was an invited article on autopsy.

Steven Stack, Auburn University, had his research on youth suicide over the past decade reported in the May 17 Birmingham News.

Michael Wallace, Ohio State University, was interviewed in an April 7 Cincinnati Enquirer article about his research on the General Motors plant closing in Norwood, OH.

Stanton Wheeler, President, Amateur Athletic Foundation of Los Angeles, was quoted in the New York Times on the Foundation's goal to fund amateur athletics in the Los Angeles area as a result of the money gained during the 1984 Summer Olympic Games.

William Julius Wilson, University of Chicago, was one of the recipients of the MacArthur award going to "outstandingly talented and promising individuals," in an article in The New York Times on June 16.

Charles Vert Willie, Harvard University, was featured on June 10 in the Christian Science Monitor and August 3, in the Arkansas Democrat for his role in advising the Little Rock, AR School District on desegregation. He also authored a Miami Herald "Viewpoint" article on school integration.

Publications

Bulletin of the Council of Societies for the Study of Religion, which suspended publication in April 1985, will resume publication in early 1988. It will appear quarterly; the format and contents will be similar to that of the first 16 volumes. Yearly subscription rates are: $18 for individuals and $24 for institutions; add $6 for foreign postage. Back issues are also available. Contact: CSSR Executive Office, Mercer University, Macon, GA 31207; (912) 741-2376.

Films and Video for Sociology, a new catalog from the Penn State Audio-Visual Services, describes more than 1,500 programs covering a wide range of topical subjects. More than 200 new titles are included, as well as a series list and detailed subject index. Copies are available to prospective users at no charge. Contact: Penn State Audio-Visual Services, Special Services Building, University Park, PA 16802; (814) 863-3103.

Continued next page

Put the entire General Social Survey— all 14 years—at your fingertips, ready for instant analysis.

Finally, this rich resource is available to everyone

The General Social Survey (conducted by NORC) is one of the most valuable data bases ever collected. But also one of the most cumbersome and difficult to use—even on a mainframe computer. Now, anyone with an IBM or compatible personal computer, can easily use the GSS.

Exclusive data packing makes it possible

MicroCase stores the entire GSS data set for some years on a single 360K diskette, complete with full variable and category labels, ready for instant use. The other years run over onto a second diskette. So, even someone with a 256K computer and two disk drives can get right to work. And, if you have a hard disk, you will be able to get the whole 14 years of data, all labels, and the MicroCase program installed in about 6 mb.

MicroCase offers speed, power and ease of use

This is the statistical analysis tool about which Earl Babbie says: "MicroCase is the easiest to use stat package I have ever seen. It includes all the statistics I recommend survey analysts use and a mighty data transformation capability. At $395...I'm convinced."

With MicroCase you can easily select across years of the GSS. Maybe you want to study Italians, or widows, or Southerners. With a data base of over 20,000 respondents and the power of MicroCase, you can do it, yourself, on a PC, in very little time, with no mainframe hassle.

GSS Special Interest Years

- 1977 race relations, feminism and abortion
- 1982 black over sample/race relations
- 1983 religion
- 1984 military services/peace and war expectations
- 1985 network relations
- 1986 feminization of poverty
- 1987 political participation

Save $726—buy the entire GSS now for $999.

At the regular prices of $95 per year for the GSS and $395 for MicroCase this is a $1725 value. (Offer ends 12/15/87.)

- Send me all 14 years of the GSS and MicroCase for $999. Payment or purchase order enclosed. (1987 will be ready for shipment about October 20.)
- Send me a complete literature packet, including site license pricing.

Name	Title
School	Department
City	State	Zip

Cognitive Development, Inc.

Suite 141, 12345 Lake City Way NE, Seattle, Washington 98125
(206) 363-6905

For IBM and compatible computers with 256K memory, two disk drives and color graphics.

Publications, continued

International Journal of Technology and Aging is a new, semi-annual journal edited by Gari Lensoff-Caravaglia of the University of Massachusetts Medical Center. Subscriptions are $22 for individuals, $50 for institutions. For additional information, contact: Human Sciences Press, 72 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10011-8004; (212) 243-6000.

Women and Tenure at Albany: A Guide provides helpful advice to junior faculty women in all disciplines and across institutions. Copies of the 20-page booklet are available for $5 per copy from: Gloria DeSole, Affirmative Action Office, SUNY, Albany, NY 12222. Checks should be payable to SUNY-Albany.

Resource Directory of Scientists and Engineers with Disabilities, 2nd edition, is now available from the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The directory contains 950 listings of individuals in all fields of science, cross-references by scientific specialty, disability, geographical location, and gender. A Braille edition is also available. Copies are $10 each, plus $3 for postage and handling, from: Project on Science, Technology, and Disability, AAAS, 1113 H Street NW, Washington, DC 20005; (202) 326-6667 (voice/TDD).

The Sociology AIDS Network (SAN) named Edward L. Kain as the new editor of its newsletter at the 1987 ASA Annual Meeting in Chicago. A major function of the newsletter is to link researchers who are studying social aspects of AIDS. If you are currently working on research on AIDS, please send a brief, one paragraph description of the research as well as your complete address and phone number to: Edward L. Kain, Department of Sociology, Southwestern University, Georgetown, TX 78626; (512) 863-1967. The next issue of the newsletter will be published this fall and will include information on as many research projects as space allows.

The Urban Institute has two new papers available in the Policy Discussion Paper series: "U.S. Immigration Policy, Immigrants' Ages, and U.S. Population Size," W. Brian Arthur and Thomas J. Espenshade, PDS-87-1, 14 pages, June 1987; and "Foreign and Undocumented Workers in California Agriculture," J. Edward Taylor and Thomas J. Espenshade, PDS-87-2, 27 pages, June 1987. Each paper is available for $6 each from: The Urban Institute, Library/Information Clearinghouse, P.O. Box 7273, Department C, Washington, DC 20004. Please include paper number and the name of this newsletter.

Other Organizations

The Annenberg/CFP Project has three new audio series available for fall 1987: American History, 1492-1865; American History, 1865 to the present; and Legacies: An Introduction to the History of Women and the Family in America, 1607-1870. Interested learners can purchase the tapes and work through the University of Wisconsin for possible academic credit in the Humanities. Contact: Annenberg/CFP Audio-Print Collection, University of Wisconsin-Extension, WHA Radio, 821 University Avenue, Madison, WI 53706; (608) 263-3970.

The Association for the Study of Food and Society, a newly-formed organization of sociologists, anthropologists, and nutritionists, recently held its first annual meeting. Officers elected were: Bill Whit, Aquinas College, President; Yvonne Vissing, Ferris State College, Vice President; Sondra King, Northern Illinois University, Secretary; and William Alex McIntosh, Texas A&M University, Treasurer. The Board of Directors includes Ann Hertzler, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University; David Kallen, Michigan State University; and Jan Poppendick, Hunter College. The second annual meeting is scheduled for May 27-29, 1988, at the National 4-H Center in Washington, DC. (See "Call for Papers," this issue.) To join the Association, contact: Sondra King, Department of Human and Family Resources, Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, IL 60115.

The Canadian Film Distribution Center, located at SUNY-Plattsburgh, now distributes educational films produced by the National Film Board of Canada. Films are available to educational institutions and cultural groups in the U.S. for a handling fee of $15 each. For a new catalog of available films, contact: Canadian Film Distribution Center, Feinberg Library, Room 126, SUNY, Plattsburgh, NY 12901; (518) 564-2396.

The German Historical Institute has been established by the Federal Republic of Germany in Washington, DC. The Institute began operation on April 1, 1987. For additional information, contact: German Historical Institute, 1759 R Street NW, Washington, DC 20009.

The National Council on Family Relations announces new officers: David H. Olson, St. Paul, MN, President-Elect; Brent Miller, Utah State University, Program Vice-President-Elect; Greer Litton Fax, University of Tennessee, Secretary; and Rebecca Smith, Treasurer.

The Northwest Asian Council has announced the new chair of the Council. All Council-related correspondence should be sent to: Eleanor Westney, E52-546, Sloan School of Management, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, MA 02139.

The Society for the Study of Social Problems, Crime and Delinquency Division, presented its 1987 Award of Outstanding Scholarship to Darrell Steffensmeier for his work, The Fence, published by Rowman and Littlefield, 1986, an analysis of the life of Sam Goodman. The Award Committee was chaired by Marvin Krohn.

New Programs

University of Bristol, England, offers a new Masters and Diploma in Gender and Social Policy, beginning October 1988. The course is a full-time, one-year course involving three seminar courses over two terms, plus a short dissertation for MSc candidates. The course will draw on staff from the Faculty of Social Sciences. Applications are invited. Contact: Ann Warren-Cox, Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Bristol, Senate House, Bristol, BS8 1TH, England.

Summer Programs

The Newberry Library invites applications for the 1988 Summer Institute in Transatlantic Encounters: New Systems of Thought and Action in France and America, 1400-1700. The Institute, funded in part by the National Endowment for the Humanities, is designed to provide an intensive four-week exposure to recent scholarship and interdisciplinary methods for the study of the French-American encounter of early modern times. Fellowships are available to scholars. For additional information and application forms, contact: Transatlantic Encounters Program, The Newberry Library, 60 West Walton, Chicago, IL 60610; (312) 943-9090.

Section News

The Section on Emotions announces the following new officers: Archie Russell, Hochschule, Chair; Thomas J. Scheff, Chair-Elect; Carolyn S. Ellis, Secretary-Treasurer; and Norman K. Denzin, Steven L. Gordon, and David D. Franks, Council Members.

Classified Ads

Computer generated social history of fictitious youth for students of crim. & del., law, soc. work, counseling, etc. IBM-PC, Apple IIe, Comm. 64 (specify) Printer req. $25. C. McGehee, 1904 Parklane, Ellensburg, WA 98926.

I'll bring out the best in your book or paper. Expert editing for style, clarity, mechanics. Twenty years' experience with sociological material. Karen Feinberg, 5755 Nahant, Cincinnati, OH 45224; (513) 542-8328.

ANNOUNCING

Two Significant Revisions from
F.E. PEACOCK PUBLISHERS, INC.

DUE IN NOVEMBER

STATISTICS FOR SOCIAL DATA ANALYSIS Second Edition

by George W. Bohmstedt, Indiana University
David Knoke, University of Minnesota

DUE IN MARCH

SOCIOLOGY OF OCCUPATIONS AND PROFESSIONS Second Edition

by Ronald M. Pavalko, University of Wisconsin-Parkside Campus

F.E. PEACOCK PUBLISHERS, INC.
ITASCA, ILLINOIS 60143

the COSSA

Advantage

The Consortium of Social Science Associations (COSSA) represents more than 185,000 American scientists across the full range of the social and behavioral sciences, functioning as a bridge between the research world and the Washington community. COSSA is staffed by Executive Director David Jenness and associates Howard Silver, Simon Cordery, and Katrina R. Styles. The ASA is a charter member of COSSA, and contributes on a per member basis to its budget. ASA Executive Officer William D'Antonio meets regularly with the COSSA Board and staff to follow legislation, appropriate, and political activities that bear upon the work of sociologists. COSSA has lobbied for research funding in a wide range of agencies and has been successful in having funds restored to depleted budgets. COSSA is also a source for social science experts who testify in Congress, serve on review panels, make presentations at Congressional breakfasts, or speak to the press about social science research. COSSA is an effective collective voice for social scientists where there was once only individual voices. ASA membership is a way for you to support COSSA's work and to reap the benefits, directly or indirectly, in your professional work as teacher, researcher, or practitioner.

Membership in ASA benefits you!

Footnotes

Published monthly except June, July, and September. Distributed to all persons with membership in the ASA. Subscriptions to non-members, $18. Single copy, $2.50.

Contributions to "Open Forum" should be limited to 800 words; "Obituaries," 500 words; and "Letters to the Editor," 400 words. News items and announcements are due the first of the month preceding publication (e.g., April 1 for May issue) and are printed once only on a space available basis.

Editor: William V. D'Antonio
Associate Editors: Carla Howery, Bettina Huber, Lionel Maldonado, William Martineau, Stephen A. Buff
Production: Karen Gray Edwards, Susan Frensilii
Secretary: Michael T. Aiken

Send communications on material, subscriptions, and advertising to: American Sociological Association, 1722 N Street NW, Washington, DC 20036; (202) 833-3410.

Copyright 1987, ASA. Third class postage paid at Washington, DC and additional mailing offices. ISSN 0749-6931.

NON-PROFIT ORG.
U.S. POSTAGE PAID
WASHINGTON, D.C.
PERMIT NO. 504